MARCHERS TO PARADE AND GO

EXTRA SESSION IS SEEN IN DEFEAT OF REPEAL; GARNER YET HOPEFUL Limiting of Debate Bitterly Scored By Members.

6 VOTES SHY OF PASSAGE

Lady Astor Is Present At Dramatic Fight on Procedure.

By LAWRENCE SULLIVAN.

Repeal of the eighteenth amendment failed in the House of Representatives yesterday by a margin of six votes.

In a dramatic and historic three-hour session launching the final legislative assemblage of the fighting Seventy-second Congress, the resolution framed by Speaker John N. Garner, the Democratic Vice President-elect, was rejected by a vote of 272 to 144. Under the Constitution, 278 votes would have been required to send the repealer along to the Senate.

The roll call provided the first direct vote on repeal in the House since the prohibition amendment was proclaimed operative in January, 1920.

82 Lame Ducks Against.

The party division on the Garner resolution was:

Republicans for repeal	103
Democrats for repeal	168
Farmer-Laborite for repeal	1
Total	272
Republicans against repeal	101
Democrats against repeal	43

Among the 144 members who voted against the Garner resolution, 82 were "lame ducks"—71 Republicans and 11 Democrats. Among the supporters of the repealer were 69 "lame ducks"—48 Republicans and 21 Democrats.

Gavelling down the vigorous protests of both Republicans and Democrats who sought to oppose consideration of a constitutional amendment under a special rule limiting debate to 40 minutes, Speaker Garner pushed his resolution to a roll call within two hours of the end of the chaplain's opening prayer. Fifteen minutes short of three hours of the call to order at noon, the House had adjourned for the day—with prohibition repeal dead for the session, in the opinion of leaders of both parties in House and Senate.

Lady Astor Present.

A colorful but tense gallery throng, which included hundreds of notables in the official and social life of the Capital, followed the debate closely and greeted the decision with a striking exhibition of sharply divided sentiment. Throughout the proceedings, Speaker Garner gave the gallery its head much more generously than the House itself. With the announcement of the vote, a spontaneous outburst of applause from the opponents of repeal was drowned out quickly by the general rush for the exits.

Lady Nancy Astor, a leader in the temperance movement in England, was a spectator from the floor of the House, a guest of Representative Ruth Pratt, of New York. Lady Astor was accorded the privilege of the floor

MRS. NORTON JOINS WET DISTRICT MOVE

8 of 12 on Committee Vote for Repeal; She Is Still Hopeful of Passage.

Chairman Mary T. Norton, of the House District committee, yesterday joined the movement for a moist District—when and if the eighteenth amendment is repealed.

Mrs. Norton, not at all disheartened by yesterday's rejection of the Garner resolution, has no doubts at all about the eventual success of the repeal forces.

That her District committee believes largely as she does on the liquor question was indicated by a count of noses during yesterday's roll call. Twelve members of the committee, eight of them Democrats, joined in the vote for repeal. Four voted against.

Representative Wright Patman, of Texas, the only Democrat on the House District committee voting against the Garner proposal, differs with Mrs. Norton on the issue of a dry District.

"I think the National Capital ought to be dry," he said. "Of course, if the majority of the States go wet, that might put a different face on it. In that case there might be a local Beer by Christmas Is Prediction of Speaker.

COLLIER BILL IS SET TODAY

No One Ventures to Forecast Action By Senate.

By J. BERNARD McDONNELL.

The House will modify the Volstead act and legalize some sort of beer before Christmas, Speaker John N. Garner, of Texas, predicted yesterday a few minutes after defeat of his "Democratic" straightout prohibition repeal amendment.

Defeat of the repeal resolution, which required a two-thirds vote, "may mean more votes for beer," the Speaker told newspapermen during a press conference after the repeal vote.

The ways and means committee is to begin hearings on modification tomorrow morning, Representative James W. Collier (Democrat), of Mississippi, chairman of the committee, was expected to introduce a beer bill in the House yesterday. He was reported to have held it up pending further conferences with legal lights before he prescribed the alcoholic content which should be made legal. He is expected to introduce a bill today which shall be formally referred to the committee.

Representative John J. O'Connor (Democrat), of New York, however, introduced a beer bill. It provided for an alcoholic content of 3.2 by weight and proposed a tax of $7.50 on

$20,000,000 Pay Cuts Ordered in New York

New York, Dec. 5 (A.P.).—Reduction of $20,000,000 in city salaries was ordered today by the Tammany-controlled board of estimate. This was the first gesture of the economies demanded by banking groups before they would make loans for relief.

The corporation counsel was ordered to draft bills for presentation at the special session of the General Assembly. The board said no salaries under $2,000 would be trimmed and pension rights would be preserved.

Duke Files House Petition Demanding Impeachment of Court Officials.

Impeachment of Associate Justice F. Dickinson Letts of the District Supreme Court and United States Attorney Leo A. Rover was asked yesterday in a petition filed with Speaker Garner of the House by Attorney Jesse C. Duke, and referred by the Speaker to the House judiciary committee for investigation.

The petition charged Justice Letts and District Attorney Rover sent the Court of Appeals "a false, inaccurate, incomplete, deleted and diluted bill of exceptions" in the pending case of Adolph R. Moder et al. versus the United States of America. Both Letts and Rover, Duke charged, "are thus guilty of falsification of records and obstruction of justice, which are two Federal crimes."

Meanwhile Duke presented a motion to the United States Supreme Court, asking leave to file petition for a writ of mandamus requiring the District Court of Appeals to decide the pending motion for rehearing and modification of opinion in the Moder case.

Adolph Moder, Thomas Crane, James Caparrotta and Rocco Pellicano, represented by Duke, were convicted in the District Supreme Court of conspiracy to violate the national prohibition act, by making, trans-

105 Dead as Tokyo Warship Capsizes

Destroyer Found Drifting Upside Down After Heavy Storm.

Tokyo, Tuesday, Dec. 6 (A.P.).—The navy office announced today that the destroyer Sawarabi, struck by a storm 100 miles off northwest Formosa late Monday, was found drifting upside down today and that 105 members of the crew apparently lost their lives.

Sixteen survivors had been taken from the waters by rescue ships, one of them dying later, and the navy office said there were no signs of any other survivors. The ship, it said, apparently had capsized.

The Sawarabi, 900 tons, accompanied by her sister ships, Sanaya, Kuretake and Wakatake, left the Kure naval base December 3, en route to the Mako base. The destroyer encountered heavy seas Monday afternoon. The Sawarabi was in distress shortly thereafter, and was rolling heavily in the high seas when the other ships lost sight of her in the darkness.

SENATE HEARING ON FURLOUGH TO BE ENDED TODAY

Organized U. S. Workers to Make Last Stand in Uphill Fight.

FEDERAL BORROWING IS URGED ON GROUP

Taxation to Meet Deficit Better Than Pay Cuts, Shaw Declares.

By ROBERT C. ALBRIGHT.

Organized Federal workers will make a last stand today before the Senate economy committee in their uphill fight to sidetrack the furlough and block still deeper cuts in the Federal pay roll.

Relentlessly cross-questioning witnesses who yesterday sought to convince the committee of the unwisdom of continuing economy act provisions, members of the committee left no doubt as to how they stood on the question of reduced pay scales.

Hearings will resume at 10:30 a. m. today in the Senate appropriations committee room, bringing to a close three daily sessions devoted exclusively to the pleas of the Government worker.

Money Is Question.

"Where are we going to get the money?" was the inevitable question put by Senator Kenneth McKellar (Democrat), Tennessee, to each of the witnesses appearing yesterday.

N. P. Alifas, of the local branch of the International Association of Machinists, told him Congress should borrow the money rather than furthur curtail purchasing power with the resulting lowering of living standards.

John Arthur Shaw, president of the American Federation of Government Employes, argued that taxation to meet the deficit would be preferable to cutting salaries and lowering standards. It is his contention that the Government can balance its budget if it separates capital items from current expenses as is the rule in private industry.

Married Clause Attacked.

A plea for revocation of the married workers clause of the economy act was made by a group of witnesses led by Mrs. Edwina Avery, chairman of the Government Workers' Council of the National Woman's Party. She said hundreds of women have lost their jobs because of the clause, and others have been forced to separate from their husbands to evade its provisions.

William J. O'Brien, representing a group of machinists recently discharged from the Navy Yard, said 45 men with high efficiency ratings had been let out of the service because of the clause, and many with lower ratings retained in the service.

Committee members, however, replied that it was a case of "two meal

Officer Races 80 Miles For Antirabies Serum

Dover, Del., Dec. 5 (A.P.).—Capt. H. C. Ray, of the Delaware State highway patrol, raced 80 miles from Dover, Del., to Philadelphia and back today to obtain serum for six persons bitten by a mad dog.

Dr. C. B. Scull, of Dover, was summoned yesterday to the farm of M. M. and Eli Miller. Both men and Eli Miller's four small children had been bitten by the dog, owned by a neighbor. A posse of 75 farmers, led by State health and game officials, is searching the countryside for the dog today, with orders to shoot the animal on sight.

DEBT PAYING VOTED BY FASCIST COUNCIL

Negotiation for New Accord Before June 15 Also Is Recommended.

Rome, Dec. 5 (A.P.).—The grand council of Fascism presided over by Premier Mussolini tonight recommended that Italy pay the entire $1,245,437 due the United States December 15.

The council, Mussolini's highest consulting body, at the same time recommended that upon payment of this sum the Italian government initiate negotiations for a new accord before June 15, when Italy's next principal payment was due. The Italian payment due this month represents no principal, but merely the interest due on its debts.

The council said a new accord should be based "on the recent declarations" of President Hoover and

GET PERMISSION TO GIVE PLEA AT CAPITOL TODAY

Maj. Brown's Offer for Limited Demonstration Is Accepted.

PROCESSION UNDER WAY AT 9:30 A. M.

All But Western Group Will Leave Tonight; Latter Off Tomorrow.

Route to Be Followed in 'Army' Parade Today

The route to be followed by the hunger marchers in their parade today follows:

Southwest on New York avenue to New Jersey avenue, south on New Jersey avenue to Constitution avenue, west on Constitution avenue to Pennsylvania avenue, west on Pennsylvania avenue to Thirteenth street, north on Thirteenth street to M street, east on M street to New York avenue, northeast on New York avenue to camp.

By ROBERT F. WHITNEY.

As tension increased to the danger point and bloodshed threatened, authorities and leaders of the hunger march last night compromised in an agreement which will allow a parade to the Capitol today.

The marchers, galling under the heavy hand of police, broke out into cheers when the news that they would be allowed to demonstrate filtered through their ranks.

The marchers were offered an opportunity for a limited demonstration by Superintendent of Police Ernest W. Brown. They accepted his proposal, though not in good grace.

If arrangements are carried through, the army will commence its trek back home tonight. The decision was announced simultaneously by police and Herbert Benjamin, march leader, early today.

To Take Plea to Congress.

By the agreement, the marchers will be allowed to go within two blocks of the Capitol. There, from a stopping place on Constitution avenue, a delegation of approximately twenty persons will be allowed to take the relief demands of the group to Congress.

The march is scheduled to begin at 9:30 a. m. The tentative line of march, which is subject to the approval of Director of Traffic Will-

Einstein to Get U. S. Visa Today; Quiz Enrages Him

Consul Decides Professor's Political Beliefs Harmless Enough to Permit Entry; Scientist, Infuriated at Questions, Says He Was "Begged" to Come.

(Associated Press.)

Whatever Prof. Albert Einstein's political beliefs may be, America's consul general at Berlin believes they are not sufficient to bar him from the United States and the noted scientist will receive his visa today.

The State Department announced yesterday that George S. Messersmith had "examined Prof. Einstein in the same manner as he would any applicant (for a passport visa) and has reached the conclusion that Prof. Einstein is admissible to the United States."

Messersmith advised the department he would issue the visa today. Earlier in the day he had interviewed Prof. Einstein and the scientist had stomped from his office in a rage.

Asserting he did not ask to go to America, "your countrymen invited me; yes, begged," Einstein said to Messersmith:

"If you don't want to give me a visa please say so, then I'll know where I stand. But don't ask me humiliating questions."

The Woman's Patriot Corporation had filed a complaint with the State Department charging he was inadmissible to this country "because of his affiliations with certain organizations claimed to be connected with the Communist Internationale."

Frau Einstein, who accompanied her husband to the consulate in Berlin, said afterward the professor was neither a Communist nor an anarchist, but was a confirmed pacifist.

The State Department, in announcing the consul's report, also made public a letter which Secretary Stimson had written to Roger N. Baldwin, of the American Civil Liberties Union, which had protested against the move to bar Einstein.

The Secretary said "the department is fully aware of the distinguished reputation" of Prof. Einstein, but pointed out that it was necessary to forward the complaint to the consul general because the responsibility for issuing a visa rests with him under law.

Doolittle Is Safe In Marsh Landing

Speed Flier Forced Down at Franklin, La., With Two Passengers.

New Orleans, Dec. 5 (A.P.).—After being missing for several hours tonight on his flight from Houston, Tex., to New Orleans, Maj. James Doolittle was reported to have made a forced landing 20 miles below Franklin, La. He carried two passengers in his low-winged monoplane.

The speed flier, on a tour of cities in the interest of the 1933 Chicago World's Fair, left Houston on his swing southward from Chicago at 2:45 p. m. After he had been two hours overdue here inquiries were made as to his whereabouts and a search was begun for him. Maj. Doolittle reported from Franklin that he had been forced down in a marsh, but that the landing was safe and no one was hurt.

The speed flier left Chicago at 6:45 a. m. today for Kansas City, where he delivered Chicago's invitation to the fair. He visited Tulsa and Dallas and then stopped off 10 minutes at Houston.

Bogus Detectives Steal Rare Edison Documents

New York Thieves Pose as Investigators Seeking Missing Walter Scott Manuscript; Peruvian Collector and Historian Victim of Robbery.

New York, Dec. 5 A.P.).—On a pretext of investigating the theft of a Sir Walter Scott manuscript two weeks ago, three men posing as city detectives stole a collection of documents valued by their owner, Dr. Jorge M. Corbache, at $50,000, last Thursday, police disclosed today.

The documents relate to the early life of Thomas A. Edison and the discovery and conquest of South America. Dr. Corbache expressed a belief the thieves hoped to sell the Edison documents and took the Spanish papers to disguise their purpose.

Dr. Corbache, a Peruvian antiquary and historian, said the men came to his apartment last Thursday and told him they were searching every collection in New York City for a volume of Scott's "Guy Mannering," which disappeared from Columbia University on November 22.

Although he showed them a diplomatic passport, rendering him immune from such investigation, Dr. Corbache said the men took the Edison and South American documents from his trunk and asked him to accompany them to police headquarters, so he could establish the fact that he did not have the Scott manuscript.

On the way downtown, he said, they suggested he get out of their automobile and telephone his lawyer from a corner drugstore "to save time." When he left the car the men sped away. Dr. Corbache took the license number, but police said the machine had been rented.

Dr. Corbache, who is said to have the largest private collection of documents in the world on the discovery and conquest of South America, is in this country studying the organization of American museums and having some of his documents copied at the Library of Congress.

He said the stolen Spanish documents were needed for a book he was compiling for publication under the auspices of all the North and South American governments.

Dr. Corbache said he was a brother-in-law of F. A. Pezet, former Peruvian ambassador to Washington, and that he had founded two museums in Peru.

BROWN ASKS POSTAL PAY AND RATE CUTS

Annual Report Lists Deficit of $135,000,000 for Current Year.

(Associated Press.)

A reduction of postal expenditures "in general and the wage account in particular," rather than further rate increases to balance the postal budget, was recommended to President Hoover yesterday by Postmaster General Brown.

In his annual report, Mr. Brown said "normal revenues can be restored only by a return of normal business activity," and continued:

"In the meantime, efforts to eliminate or reduce the present unprecedented postal deficit must necessarily be concentrated upon a reduction of postal expenditures in general and the wage account in particular.

Deficiency of $135,000,000.

"In the Postmaster General's judgment, resort should not be had to further rate increases as a means of balancing the postal budget."

Mr. Brown estimated a gross revenue deficiency of $135,000,000 for the current fiscal year, and a net postal deficit of about $80,000,000 after allowing for nonpostal expeditures and services rendered without charge to other governmental agencies."

Rate increases expected to add $100,000,000 to revenues this year, brown said, would fall short of balancing the postal budget. He added, however, there had been "no unexpected diversion of business from the mails as the result of the higher rates."

He attributed "the present disappointing volume" of business to "the continued commercial stagnation," but said the higher letter postage rate had resulted in a diminished use of the mails by companies sending out bills.

A return to a 2-cent rate for local letters was recommended, Brown said, contending a loss of revenue "is believed to be justified because of the lower cost of this service and "the widespread public convenience which will result."

With this change and such others as experience may suggest, Brown suggested existing rates "should be continued until the postal finances have been restored to a sound basis."

Hits Nonessential Service.

"Until that time," he said, "it is the department's view that the postal facilities should not be extended or enlarged, except as may be necessary in new and growing communities, and that nonessential service should be everywhere dispensed with."

Increasing revenues from a return of business activity, he said, would be returned to the public through lower postage rates as soon as "this can be done without destroying the balance" between postal receipts and expenditures. Receipts for the 1932 fiscal year were placed at $588,171,922, against "audited expenditures" of $793,722,534.

The mail volume has declined to about the level of 1922, Brown said, and revenues have fallen off $117,000,000 since 1930, while expenditures dropped "but $10,000,000." He explained that fixed and contracted charges which "can not be suddenly curtailed to correspond with a shrinkage in the volume of mail" prevented a further decrease in expenditures.

"Strictly Postal Services."

He predicted a further decline in expenditures during the current 1933 fiscal year because of the economy law, and estimated that against expected receipts of $735,000,000, the outlay for "strictly postal purposes" would be reduced to $690,000,000.

Criticism of the ocean mail service was attributed by Brown to "a misapprehension of the facts due to misstatements circulated by prejudiced or partisan propagandists."

He said the ocean mail was aiding in developing an American Merchant Marine, and was "of incalculable benefit to all classes of our people * * *."

Other Recommendations.

He repeated recommendations for enactment of a bill pending in the House to provide for purchase or construction of postoffice stations, branches and garages. Among his other suggestions were:

To increase postal savings limits from $2,500 to $5,000.

To permit railroad and electric car companies to transport mail by motor vehicles.

DAY IN CONGRESS

DECEMBER 5.

SENATE.

Met at noon and adjourned at 12:20 p. m. until noon Tuesday.

Fixed the daily meeting hour at noon, unless otherwise specially provided for.

Three new senators were sworn in, Robert B. Reynolds, of North Carolina, and Walter Walker, of Colorado, Democrats, and E. S. Grammer, Republican, of Washington.

Notified the House by resolution the Senate was ready to do business, and sent similar notice to the President by a joint committee.

HOUSE.

Met at noon and adjourned at 1:25 p. m. until noon Tuesday.

Fixed noon as the daily meeting hour unless otherwise specially provided for.

Notified the Senate and the President the House was in session and ready for business.

Oath of office was administered to six new members.

Representative Rainey (Democrat), of Illinois, moved to suspend the rules and adopt a resolution repealing the eighteenth amendment.

Defeated the prohibition repeal amendment by a vote of 272 to 144, which was 6 short of the required two-thirds.

by virtue of her membership in the House of Commons.

As the House launched its prohibition field day, the Senate hurried through a 19-minute session of organization routine, and then adjourned out of respect to the memories of Senators Wesley L. Jones, of Washington, and Charles W. Waterman, of Colorado.

Annual Message Today.

Both houses will assemble today to receive President Hoover's annual message, and tomorrow the administration's budget and taxation program will be presented. The real business of the session is expected to begin in the House tomorrow when Chairman Byrns, of the appropriations committee, hopes to have the Postoffice-Treasury annual supply bill ready to report. On Thursday, the Senate will take up the question of Philippine independence, under a special order.

Although Speaker Garner had predicted approval of his resolution an hour before the session began, he was anything but dejected by the result. Smiling triumphantly over the success of his parliamentary coup d'etat in forcing a vote and limiting debate to 40 minutes, the Speaker found ample solace in the fact that the presence of the entire House membership might have changed the result.

"We figured on 110 Republicans and 165 Democrats," he said.

Extra Session Inevitable.

No Senate resolution qualifying the Democratic platform pledge of outright repeal, he said, would be permitted to come to a vote in the House during the present session. The Glass amendment, now before the Senate, does not conform to his ideas of adequate measures, he added.

He repeated that the House Democrats would proceed with plans to bring a beer bill to a vote before Christmas. In this connection, however, there was no discussion of alcoholic content.

Chairman Collier of the ways and means committee announced after the repeal vote that hearings on the beer bill, a revenue measure, would begin Wednesday morning. Later, Representative Lea (Democrat), California, introduced a bill to legalize "naturally fermented" wines.

Coupled with their acknowledgment that yesterday's vote ended all hope of repeal at the short session, Democratic leaders in the House declared the result made an extra session of the first Roosevelt Congress next spring inevitable.

Rainey Is Elated.

"Defeat of the prohibition repeal resolution probably makes an extra session necessary," said Representative Henry T. Rainey, of Illinois, the Democratic floor leader. "The vote we got today is a wonderful one. This is a dry Congress. It was a moral victory for opponents of prohibition. We were informed that four members who were absent would have voted for the resolution had they been present. Lame ducks, many of whom were defeated by wets in the last election, beat the resolution."

Chairman Sumners of the judiciary committee agreed that "a special session appears inevitable."

Although opponents of the Garner text were accorded 20 minutes for debate, most of this time was spent in vehement protest against the parliamentary steam roller engineered by the Democratic leaders. Never before in history had a constitutional amendment been considered under a rule limiting debate. Nor had an amending resolution ever been presented on the floor before without hearings in committee.

Representative Snell, the Republican leader, voiced this denunciation of method in a brief explanation of his affirmative vote on the Garner resolution.

Objection by Snell.

"It makes us look like a lot of irresponsible individuals," Snell shouted at one point.

"I want to turn the control of the liquor traffic back to the individual States, for I think a great majority of our people are firmly convinced that we will have better enforcement of temperance laws by the individual States than we have been able to give from Washington," he said. "But when we do this, I want to do it in an orderly way—in a manner that is in keeping with the dignity of the House of Representatives.

"In rushing this through here today under a suspension of the rules, with only twenty minutes debate on each side, before we are fully organized for business, you are not only breaking the precedents of 150 years, but you are not showing proper respect to the office of President, by passing important legislation before the usual notification of meeting. It makes us look like a lot of irresponsible individuals stampeded into action rather than a dignified legislative body—especially when we are dealing with one of the most important functions of government, a change in the Constitution."

"Not Decent Opportunity."

Representative Mapes, of Michigan, continued the attack from the Republican side, and Representative Huddleston, of Alabama, joined from the Democratic ranks.

"It is a travesty on the Cnostitution to pass an amending resolution with only twenty minutes of debate on a side," Mapes declared. "It is a procedure wholly unworthy of the House of Representatives, and if it is to be carried into effect the Democrats of this body ought to take the responsibility for it, and not the Republicans. Let no Republican here think he can hold up the Republican platform as an excuse for voting for this resolution."

Representative Huddleston was even more vitriolic in his denunciation of the parliamentary method. He called it "an atrocity."

"I voted against the prohibition amendment when it was adopted by this House in 1917. My views upon it remain unchanged. I have repeatedly said that I would vote for its repeal if given a decent opportunity to do so. This is not a decent opportunity."

Does Not Heed Gavel.

Turning then to point a quivering finger directly at the Speaker's chair, he continued:

"Mr. Speaker, we who are about to die salute you. Good Democrats who are devoted to principle and who have some comprehension of our system of government and the proprieties of parliamentary practice, are being crucified, are being impaled here today upon this legislative atrocity."

As Mr. Huddleston was approaching the point of oratorical apoplexy, the Speaker's gavel fell.

"The time of the gentleman has expired!"

But there was no stopping Mr. Huddleston at that point. Defying the gavel, he roared on, inaudible against the din up front, but gaining voice with every syllable. After a brief contest in this manner, the gavel lost a beat and Mr. Huddleston's last dramatic sentence rolled out to the excited alleries:

"As for me, I choose death!"

Beck Defends Method.

Representative Moore, of Ohio, said that not one-fourth of the members of the House had so much as read the Garner text before being called upon to vote on it.

"If you search the history of this country from its inception, you will not find a legislative action as drastic and ruthless as the one we are about to take. I do not see how any one who believes in freedom of debate could vote for a thing like this, where we have had no debate, where this resolution was not even numbered until we came in this morning, where not one-quarter of the membership of this House has even read it, where we can make no amendment, where we have not had any hearing, where a new and novel method of submitting it to conventions are set out. And yet this is the thing we are asked to do today."

Representative Beck, of Pennsylvania, leader of the Republican wet bloc, sustained the Garner-Rainey formula, declaring that twelve years of prohibition debate had not got the country anywhere.

Blanton Shouts Disapproval.

"Now is the accepted time, and this is the day of salvation—a day of salvation from a system of moral bondage under which this country has suffered for twelve years, and as to its merits or demerits, it is quite obvious the American people are in no doubt whatever. Discussion would add little to the question before the House, which is not whether the eighteenth amendment should be repealed, but simply whether the American people, for the first time, should be given an opportunity to say, after this amendment has had the test of trial and experience, whether they intend to retain it."

Representative Celler, of New York, said he would cast his vote with President-elect Roosevelt, who, he recalled, had told the Democratic convention at Chicago last summer: "From this day, prohibition is doomed."

Chiding his Democratic colleagues for their precipitate action in the face of the known intention of the Senate against repeal at this session, Representative Blanton shouted: "It took over 100 years for the mothers and fathers of America to banish the saloon, and we are to undo all that work today in 40 minutes."

LaGuardia Is Encouraged.

When Blanton concluded without saying how he would vote, Representative Britten asked, "Is the gentleman from Texas for or against the resoluiton?"

In opening the debate, Representative Rainey confined himself to a reading of the Democratic and Republican prohibition planks in the last campaign, emphasizing that both called for resubmission to State conventions.

Supporting the Democratic view, Representative Britten said that "the integrity of the national platforms of both parties is at stake—indeed, the future dependability of all party platforms is at stake."

Representative LaGuardia, leader of the House insurgents, was encouraged by the day's spectacle.

'As long as this House is as responsive to the popular will as it is today," he said, "this Republic is safe."

Three Senators Leave Sick Beds for Opening

(Associated Press.)

Three senators left sick beds to attend yesterday's opening session.

Senator Brookhart, Iowa Republican, left Walter Reed Hospital, where he is recuperating from pneumonia, just long enough to answer the first roll call.

Senator Nye, North Dakota Republican, recovering from an automobile accident, and Senator Sheppard, Texas Democrat, who has been ill for the last day or two, both left their homes for the occasion, but hurried back.

Nye learned yesterday from an x-ray examination that he broke four instead of two ribs in his accident several weeks ago in Wisconsin.

House, Busy in Repeal Plan, Gets Only 45 Bills

(United Press.)

Members of the House of Representatives were so interested in the prohibition battle yesterday that they almost forgot to introduce any bills.

Only 45 were submitted yesterday as compared with 4,000 introduced on the opening day a year ago. Measures yesterday included several beer bills and others affecting farmers and labor.

Six States Solid In Repeal Dissent

Arkansas Only Dixie Unit to Remain Loyal to Dry Amendment.

(Associated Press.)

Six States which have more than one member in the House voted solidly yesterday against the Democratic repeal resolution, while five others voted just as solidly the other way.

The division showed Arkansas, Colorado, Idaho, Kansas, Maine and Utah mustering 27 votes to help defeat the resolution while Florida, New Jersey, North Carolina, Rhode Island and Virginia polled 38 for it. One of North Carolina's ten members, Abernethy, Democrat, did not vote.

Pennsylvania, despite the wet strength from its cities, contributed 12 votes against the resolution, the largest number from any one State. New York, with 35, led the other side.

GARNER HOPEFUL OF ACTION ON BEER

each 31 gallons. Representative William E. Hull (Republican), of Illinois, introduced a similar bill, while Representative William F. Brunner (Democrat), of New York, introduced another bill providing for 2.75 per cent by weight with a tax of 4 cents a pint. Both Mr. O'Connor and Mr. Brunner introduced bills providing for repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

Senate Action Puzzle.

Although Speaker Garner, Representative Henry T. Rainey, of Illinois, floor leader, and other party leaders expressed confidence that a Volstead modification measure would be put through the House with considerable dispatch, none would attempt to say what would happen in the Senate. The "beer-before-Christmas" cry already has dwindled into expression of hope that a modification measure would at least get through the House before the beginning of the new year. But passage by the House still leaves a measure a long way from the statute books.

Chairman Collier, who is a lame duck by virtue of the mix-up resulting from the reapportionment law in Mississippi, and other members of the committee are disposed to push the hearings on the beer bill to a conclusion as quickly as possible. Exactly how long the hearings will continue is not known, but an outside estimate was two weeks.

Both wets and drys are preparing to deluge the committee with arguments and statistics, not only about the proper, adequate and constitutional alcoholic content which shall be prescribed as the limit of legal beer, but about the amount of revenue which may be expected from this or that tax rate as well as other phases.

Some of the largest brewers in the country are on record as saying that 2.75 per cent beer, limited to sale in bottles which must be taken home to be drunk, is not an adequate beer and will not yield much revenue. There will be an effort to have the modification measure provide for drinking of draught beer on the premises in which it is sold.

Attacks Are Planned.

Dry leaders are prepared to attack this proposal as equivalent to authorizing a return of the saloon. The wets are going to counter with the assertion that the saloon never has disappeared but simply has been renamed "speak-easy," to which the old-time saloon was infinitely preferable.

Passage by the House of a measure modifying the Volstead law is regarded as probable, but representatives of the wine-grape growers are determined that it shall provide for the fermented juice of the grape as well as the brew of the grain. Representative Clarence F. Lea (Democrat), of California, introduced a bill yesterday to legalize the sale of light wines.

Determination of the wine interests to climb aboard the legislative beer wagon adds to the complications, both legislative and legal, which beset any effort to weaken the dictum ensconced in law by the Antisaloon League and their hard-bitten dry members of Congress.

Prompt action on the floor of the House is promised for whatever beer bill is reported out of the ways and means committee because it will come out in the guise of a revenue measure and therefore will have special status.

YOUNG DEMOCRATS REJECT WET MOVE

Refuse Alabama Proposal to Sponsor Drive for Repeal in Various States.

Atlanta, Dec. 5 (A.P.).—Young Democratic Clubs of America, through their national committee, refused late today to assume sponsorship, as a national organization, of movements for repeal of State prohibition laws.

By unanimous vote, however, they adopted a substitute resolution commending and accepting the prohibition plank of the national Democratic platform which calls for repeal of the eighteenth amendment and early modification of the Volstead act.

The action followed an hour's uproarious debate on the State prohibition repeal resolution offered by John P. Kohn, of the Alabama delegation.

Speakers on both sides of that issue, without exception, criticized prohibition as now in force, but sponsors of the resolutions committee substitute for the Alabama proposal protested that in adopting the Alabama measure the national group would violate the fundamental Democratic principle of State's rights.

State delegations which voted with Alabama on the State repeal question were Illinois, Maryland and New Jersey. Twenty-three States backed the resolution committee. They were Arizona, Arkansas, California, Connecticut, Florida, Georgia, Indiana, Kansas, Kentucky, Massachusetts, Michigan, Mississippi, Missouri, Montana, North Carolina, Ohio, Oklahoma, Oregon, South Carolina, South Dakota, Tennessee, Utah, Virginia and the District of Columbia.

Dissolved Sugar Ruling Is Upheld

Action Is Expected to Save U. S. $100,000,000 Year in Duties.

(Associated Press.)

The United States Court of Customs Appeals yesterday rejected the contention of the Savannah Sugar Refining Corporation that by importing sugar dissolved in water it could escape the high tariff on raw sugar.

The appeal court upheld the decision of the customs court at New York, and its action is calculated by Federal officials to save the United States more than $100,000,000 a year in duties.

The company made a test shipment of the dissolved sugar, entering it as "sugar sirups," on which the tariff is one-quarter cent, against 2 cents per pound on raw and refined sugar. The court held it was evident that the importation in dissolved form was not to develop a new commercial product, but to "experiment with the tariff law." Domestic and Hawaiian sugar producers fought the refining company's attempt.

Noted Actor's Daughter Seeking Reno Divorce

Reno, Nev. Dec. 5 (A.P.).—Iris Tree Moffat, daughter of the late Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree, noted Shakespearean actor, has established divorce residence in Reno and will be eligible to file suit against Edwin C. Moffat in mid-December, it became known today.

Mrs. Moffat is staying with Princess Alice Obolensky, the former Alice Muriel Astor, who also contemplates a Reno divorce. Presence of Princess Obolensky in Reno became known Saturday when it was revealed she had retained an attorney in expectation of filing suit against Prince Serge Obolensky, former Russian minister to Poland.

British Unemployment Gains.

London, Dec. 5 (A.P.).—Unemployment in Great Britain increased by 52,800 during the four weeks ended November 21, the ministry of labor announced today. On that date the joblesss totaled 2,799,806, which was 184,691 more than at the same time last year.

Oklahoman Gives Surprise Banquet

Oil Man Invites Friends and Most of Congress Attends.

Seldom does such a number of members of the House and the Senate attend a social affair as gathered last night in the Raleigh Hotel to have dinner with John F. Kroutil, a millionaire miller from Oklahoma, who started out to give a party for his Oklahoma delegation and ended by giving a considerably larger party.

But the larger the party grew the happier Mr. Kroutil was. He has been a financial angel to the Democrats in his home State and it is not without the realm that his reported ambition should be gratified. He came from Czechoslovakia as an immigrant boy. He would like to go back there as the representative of his adopted country.

Lest there should be misapprehension it should be said that Kroutil asked for nothing. He invited the Oklahoma delegation and their friends to dinner and their friends included most of Congress.

Nine Start Terms In New Congress

Three Senators and Six in House Take Oaths of Office.

(Associated Press.)

Three senators and six members of the House began their terms of office yesterday with the opening of the short session of Congress.

The new senators included Walter Walker, Colorado Democrat, who flew 2,100 miles here just in time to take the oath and serve two or three days until the credentials arrive for Karl C. Schuyler, Republican victor in the recent election. The other senators sworn in were Robert R. Reynolds, Democrat, of North Carolina, who succeeds Cameron Morrison, and E. S. Grammer, a Republican, who was appointed to fill out the term of the late Senator Wesley L. Jones, of Washington.

One woman, Mrs. Willa B. Eslick, a Tennessee Democrat, was among the new House members. Other new House members sworn were: B. T. Castellow, Democrat, Third, Georgia; Ambrose J. Kennedy, Democrat, Fourth, Maryland; Robert L. Davis, Republican, Sixth, Pennsylvania; Joseph W. Biddle, Republican, Eighteenth, Pennsylvania; Joel W. Flood, Democrat, Tenth, Virginia.

Fidelity to Oaths Seen in Wet Vote

Clarence True Wilson Says Representatives Refused to Be Stampeded.

Richmond, Va., Dec. 5 (A.P.).—Clarence True Wilson, in a statement here tonight said defeat of the eighteenth amendment repeal measure today was due to representatives who regarded their oath of office seriously and would not be stampeded by hysteria.

The secretary of the Methodist Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals came here from Washington in preparation for a debate with Clarence Darrow on the prohibition question tomorrow night.

He said Americans in the presidential election "were voting for bread and not for beer, for work and wages and not for brewers and bartenders."

REDISTRICTING HELD VALID IN KENTUCKY

Supreme Court Reconvenes and Also Upholds Texas Vehicle Statute.

(Associated Press.)

A decision by a three-judge Federal court holding invalid the Kentucky congressional redistricting act was reversed yesterday by the Supreme Court.

The opinion was handed down in an appeal brought by Sara W. Mahan, Kentucky secretary of state.

Reconvening after a two weeks' recess, the court disposed of 19 of the 33 cases which had accumulated on its docket.

Among other things, it upheld the Texas statute regulating motor vehicles operating under private contract.

A third opinion, in a test case, held that the issuance of bench warrants by a Federal judge is mandatory and not optional with the jurist.

Tax Review Granted.

The Commissioner of Internal Revenue was granted a review by the Supreme Court to test whether the United States has the right to impose estate taxes on approximately $620,000 of intangible personal property belonging to Ernest Augustus Brooks, a British subject, but held in this country at the time of his death. The lower Federal court ruled against the commissioner.

California was refused a review to test the validity of a 1929 statute providing for the confiscation of automobiles used in violating the State narcotic act. The State Supreme Court in a case brought by the General Motors Acceptance Corporation declared the statute unconstitutional.

Search Warrant Expiration.

In a case from New York it held that a prohibition search warrant which had expired by failure to serve within ten days allowed by law can not be rendered valid by redating, but that a new warrant must be issued; that States may impose license fees on corporations for the privilege of doing business when, as the Detroit International Bridge Co., did, they operate bridges across international boundaries; that bonuses received by owners of oil land constitute a return of capital under the Federal reserve act and are subject along with royalties to proportionate depletion deductions.

Steamship companies were placed on notice by the court that they must make their own investigations of the eligibility of aliens to enter this country and must assume all liability arising out of those denied admission.

The court granted reviews in nine cases and refused reviews in twenty, none of outstanding national importance.

The first controversy to be taken up yesterday for oral argument was the complaint of Michigan, Minnesota, Ohio and Wisconsin that the Chicago sanitary district had failed to comply with the court's orders to build sewage disposal plants to reduce the diversion of water from Lake Michigan.

WATERWAYS ITEMS CUT TO $39,388,129

Gen. Brown Trims Budget of Harbors and Rivers Nearly Half in Report.

(Associated Press.)

Economy was something more than a word to Maj. Gen. Lytle Brown, Chief of Army Engineers, in preparing his rivers and harbors budget for next year, and he trimmed it almost in half.

His annual report, made public yesterday, asked for $39,388,129 from July 1, 1933, to June 30, 1934, instead of the $75,596,331, which was provided this year for rivers and harbors work.

The general said $75,000,000 could be spent profitably in this direction and he described the estimates he presented as an alternative proposal.

For maintenance, $24,441,029 was asked as compared with $22,480,150 this year, leaving the slash in costs to fall upon new projects. Only $14,947,100 was requested for improvements, whereas $37,519,850 was provided for the present year.

"The policy has been continued," Brown said, "to execute works by contract where reasonable prices are received. During the past fiscal year 56.6 per cent of the work was done by contract and 43.4 per cent by Government plant and hired labor."

The harbor and channel projects in Virginia and the amounts asked for the maintenance of each follow:

Norfolk Harbor, $295,000; Thimble Shoal Channel, $50,000; James River, $100,000; Appomattox River, $7,500. Total for Virginia, $452,500.

Knobs Creek, $3,000; Pamlico and Tar Rivers, $12,000; Neuse River, $12,000; Contentnea Creek, $1,000; Trent River, $1,000; Beaufort Harbor, $10,000; waterway, Core Sound-Beaufort Harbor, $2,000; Beaufort Inlet, $13,500; Cape Fear River below Wilmington, $225,000; Cape Fear River above Wilmington, $12,000; Northeast (Cape Fear) River, $3,000; Black River, $3,000. Total, $297,500.

Improvement funds asked for intracoastal waterways in the Atlantic and Gulf States of the South included these:

North Carolina:

Waterway, Norfolk-to-Beaufort Inlet, $100,000; waterway, Cape Fear River to Winyah Bay in South Carolina, $320,000. Total, $420,000.

13 WEARY MARCHERS REACH HERE ON FOOT

Are Shown Out of Fairfax After Truck Breakdown; Woman in Troupe.

Washington's first real "hunger marchers" arrived last night when 12 footsore and weary men and one lone woman trudged across Highway Bridge.

They became actual marchers from necessity and not from choice when the truck in which they had ridden from Chicago burned out a bearing at Pender, Va., three miles west of Fairfax. According to James D. Thompson, at whose home they stopped, they proposed to spend the night there. Thompson thwarted this aim by calling Virginia State policemen, who ordered them to "keep moving."

Convoyed by Truck.

After shuffling along about 2 miles toward Fairfax, convoyed by two police cars, the officers stopped a passing truck and asked the driver to bring the unfortunate thirteen to Washington. Still convoyed by the two cars, the truck brought the marchers as far as the end of the Highway Bridge, where they got out and began to walk again. At this end of the bridge, they stopped, planning to spend the night there unless a truck was sent for them from the New York avenue camp. They asked reporters to get word of their arrival to the camp.

The marchers were saved from this when a passing truck driver stopped and offered to take them to the camp. Again they climbed aboard a truck and were taken through the city to join the more fortunate "marchers" who did not have to march.

Group Forced to Walk.

Joe Jackson, a large colored man who headed this contingent of the hungry, was indignant at the Virginia police who had forced his group to walk. He reported they had refused to take in their car the only colored woman in the outfit, who he said was crippled and unable to walk far. Another of the group, a young man who wore horn-rimmed spectacles and spoke with a pronounced accent and prompted Jackson what to say, also complained about the policemen.

According to this youth, who was white, the policemen had refused to treat with Jackson and had wanted to talk to him. When he refused, the Virginia officers ordered them to keep on walking, he reported. Ten of the men were white, while the other three persons in the group were colored. Jackson announced they had started from Chicago together and would not be separated even in jail.

Thompson said he had asked the men to move when they stopped between his house and gas station in Pender, but that Jackson had refused, saying "I'm running this." Jackson denied this, and said he told Thompson he wanted nothing from him but a hot meal.

Figures Show Air Mail Flying Safe

Each air mail pilot, judging from the Postoffice Department's official figures on such matters, is safe for more than 2,000,000 miles of traveling.

Fourteen fatalities during the fiscal year ended June 30 were noted yesterday by the department in its annual report, an average of 1 pilot to each 2,300,155 miles flown. Mail destroyed by fire in crashes was .000151 of the total poundage, and the cost per mile of carrying it was cut to 62 cents against 79 for the previous year.

lam A. Van Duzer, will pass three blocks from the White House.

No announcement was made of any plans to carry demands to the President. It is believed that police will not permit any such action.

All of the marchers, with the exception of the Western division, will move out of the city tonight, leaders announced. The Western group will start for home tomorrow morning.

Banners Not Banned.

Although no announcement was made, it is believed the petitioners will be allowed to carry their signs and banners.

Every available policeman was rushed to the concentration camp late yesterday afternoon when the marchers had formed in a column and appeared to be ready to march against the cordon of police along the west end of the area.

However, after the "Soviet" band had struck up a tune and the columns were almost abreast of the police line, the column turned about and marched back. Police dared them to strike the line.

Meanwhile, reserves were filling up the police phalanx. Herbert Benjamin, march leader, who headed the column, termed the demonstration a "dress rehearsal."

When told of this, Inspector Ogden T. Davis, in charge of the police, said he would term the calling of extra police a dress rehearsal also.

Following the procession, in which the entire coterie of hungry circled their street quarters, like caged animals, they gathered together in a mass and held their first conference.

Several leaders, including Benjamin, harangued them in inflammatory terms. William Reynolds was unanimously reelected president of the National Unemployment Councils and Benjamin was renamed secretary.

Release of Army Sought.

At 9:30 last night a delegation of sympathizers were headed for the camp to attempt to obtain the release of the entire army. This effort was to be made in a try to test Maj. Brown's declaration that the marchers were free to come and go as they pleased so long as the movement was not made in a concerted group.

Representatives of the committee for the defense of political prisoners, the American Civil Liberties Union and the League of Professional Groups were among those who were to try to get the army out of its concentration camp.

They said they had places for the entire group to stay and that they would try to take the marchers through the police lines in small groups.

Isolation Is Charged.

In a meeting held in law offices before they left for the camp the group issued a statement charging that the marchers were "imprisoned and isolated." It read in part: "The difference between their imprisonment and the treatment given to criminals is that criminals are fed and housed by their jailors, while the unemployed and hungry are not."

Taking their troubles to the District Supreme Court, attorneys for the hunger marchers gained two hollow victories when Justice Oscar R. Luhring held that a plea for an injunction to restrain the Commissioners and the police from molesting the marchers, and another plea for a habeas corpus, in which nine persons were named, should be issued, but would not be returnable in court until 10 a. m. Thursday.

Names Are Stricken.

Before issuing the habeas corpus petition, Justice Luhring struck from the petition all names with the exception of that of Anne Burlak, whose name headed the list. The justice indicated he had serious doubts as to the correctness of carrying more than one name in such a petition.

Attorneys for the marchers returned to the courthouse shortly before 5 p. m. yesterday and obtained the signature of Justice Luhring to orders based on the two writs. Assistant Chief Deputy U. S. Marshal John Clarkson immediately set out to locate the Commissioners and Maj. Brown to serve them.

Under the habeas corpus writ, Maj. Brown will have to produce Anne Burlak in court. Under the other writ, the Commissioners and Maj. Brown will have to show a reason for not discontinuing their present surveillance of the marchers and their virtual incarceration on the New York avenue site.

Practically Nullified.

The fact that neither writ is returnable in court until Thursday practically nullifies the effect of both, insofar as the marchers were concerned. They wished for—and they informed Justice Luhring—that they wanted immediate action. By Thursday the trek of the marchers to their homes is expected to be in full swing.

The petition for a writ of habeas corpus was signed by David Levinson, one of the group of attorneys representing the marchers. Justice Luhring informed Levinson he would have to get Miss Burlak's signature instead of his own, but the jurist waived that point to expedite matters.

Benjamin and William Reynolds visited the Vice President at his office in the Senate Office Building. They were ushered to his presence by two plain clothes men.

Bejamin said: "I hear you sent for a delegation of three from our group."

Were Not Sent For.

"I did not," Curtis answered. "I was told that a delegation wanted to see me, but I did not send for them." He later added he would receive a delegation of three with the marchers' demands, but would not issue a permit for a demonstration on the Capitol Grounds or allow the demands to be presented on the floor of the Senate.

Maj. Brown also refused a parade permit to the marchers, saying he could not grant it because of the routes and streets which they had chosen.

After Benjamin's party left the Vice President a group headed by Levinson appeared to protest the isolation of the marchers. They engaged in a heated argument with him.

Up to D. C. Officials.

Mr. Curtis told them the matter was for the District officials to settle. When asked about the presenting of the marchers' demands to Congress he said there would be no objection to its being done in the regular way.

A member of the delegation suggested that there was no "regular way" provided by the Constitution. The Vice President half rose from his chair and shouted across his desk, "Oh, yes there is. What's the matter with you? Haven't you got any sense?"

At the "conference" on New York avenue 2,000 of the group gathered around a rostrum made of benches placed together and heard Benjamin warn the police that the "workers of this army will not be provoked further."

Anne Burlak, a textile worker, followed Benjamin to the platform. "Police told us we could never get here," she said. "Here we are. The police are brave behind their blackjacks and tear gas." A 22-year-old blonde, she aroused the mob so that they roared their derision at police.

Representative P. D. Swing (California) visited the camp last night and after he had left a man who identified himself as a representative of the Civil Liberties Union said the representative had declared he would take up the plight of the marchers in the House today.

William Z. Foster, communist candidate for President at the recent election, yesterday wired the National Hunger March Conference: "Your magnificently successful action of marching to and entering Washington despite all difficulties and provocations from all parts of America is already a big step toward winning relief and unemployment insurance."

Yesterday morning a general disturbance was precipitated when a man thought to be a Government agent was mobbed by angry marchers. He escaped into police lines after some rough treatment.

Dragged Nearly Mile.

He was dragged nearly a mile by a group of several hundred. The disturbance created a general alarm and brought the police tear gas squad to the front, bombs in hand. However, the marchers retired when the man had slipped into the police line.

There were tears in the eyes of the Rev. Kiro Nickoloff, Greek Orthodox priest, when prayers he offered as he walked down the avenue were answered by cries of "Beat it!"

A colored minister who came to the scene looked over the milling restless groups and left after remarking he thought that prayer would not be listened to or would not aid the marchers.

Meals again were served to the band in the same manner, being trucked from the commissary on upper Fourteenth street. Meat sandwiches, apparently on very dry bread, were received with only scattering complaints.

Health Office Is Keeping Close Check on Marchers

Dr. William C. Fowler, District health officer, yesterday instructed Dr. James G. Cumming, head of the contagious disease division of the health department, to detail two medical inspectors to keep a close check on all ailments developing at the camp and attempt to prevent any outbreak of disease.

Dr. Fowler made a careful survey of the camp yesterday and declared the sanitary conditions deplorable. He asked the city refuse department to keep the street clean and the engineer department to send containers for the collecting of garbage and refuse.

Four definite cases of influenza were diagnosed at Casualty Hospital by Dr. Cumming and other cases were feared among the petitioners.

Physicians from Casualty Hospital have been doing much to alleviate suffering among the marchers, despite a definite and often expressed antagonism. The ambulance and two physicians have been at the camp constantly.

Montgomery Blue Laws Under Fire

S. H. Miller Urges Repeal in Chamber Meeting at Bethesda, Md.

Abolishing of blue laws in Montgomery County was urged in a resolution presented last night at a meeting of the Bethesda, Md., Chamber of Commerce by S. H. Miller. The resolution would instruct the chamber delegates to the Montgomery Civic Federation to urge the federation to ask that all so-called blue laws be repealed insofar as trey apply to Montgomery County. The resolution was referred to the committee on legislation and legal action.

A letter from the Maryland Public Service Commission replying to a petition by the chamber that gas rates in Maryland be equalized with those of Washington was read. The commission informed the chamber that rate hearings will be held as soon as valuation proceedings now in vogue are completed.

The chamber appropriated $100 to the Bethesda Volunteer Fire Department toy fund, to be presented by the social welfare committee.

Sam H. Thompson Wins Farm Award

Is Honored by Federation; Agriculture Solidity Held Step Nearer.

Chicago, Dec. 5 (A.P.).—Sam H. Thompson, of Quincy, Ill., member of the Federal Farm Board, tonight was given the distinguished service award of the American Farm Bureau Federation. The reward was for "highest recognition of individual devotion to the advancement and well-being of agriculture through organized effort."

Since 1915 he has been engaged in farm bureau work. He has been president of the Illinois Agricultural Association, a member of the Illinois Legislature and was the third national president of the Farm Bureau.

United support of agriculture behind the domestic allotment plan, current favorite among farm relief theories, moved a step nearer reality today at the American Farm Bureau Federation's annual convention.

Edward A. O'Neal, farm bureau president, approved in his opening address the domestic allotment principle for control of crop surpluses as a means toward higher prices.

FARMER MARCHERS ARRIVE TO SEEK AID

Conference's Advance Guard Brings Own Supplies; Is Unmolested.

Lustily singing the Nebraska farm holiday song, "Solidarity," a group of farmer marchers, the advance guard of the Farmers National Relief Conference, arrived in Washington yesterday to make ready for the relief meetings which begin tomorrow.

About 60 farmers from Nebraska, Idaho, Wyoming, Oregon, Michigan, Arkansas, Illinois and Iowa formed yesterday's arrivals. They came in trucks and cars, bringing food supplies and bedding with them, and no police escort met them at the District line.

Before 11 a. m. tomorrow, when the convention convenes, these men expect to be joined by more than 300 other farmers from all points of the United States, who will aid in drafting a program of farm relief, to be laid before Congress and the President.

Here to Demand Aid.

"We are here to demand immediate help," a spokesman for the group declared. "And we're not goin' to make plans and then go up to Congress with our hats in our hands and ask 'em to please try and do something for us.

"We are going to demand aid. We have to have it. Our children are starving and developing rickets. Our crops rot on the farms for want of a market. And now even our farms are being taken from us through foreclosure proceedings. What are we to do?"

The opening of the convention tomorrow at the Typographical Union Hall will mark the first national meeting of the farmers themselves, and it will be the first time in history that an organized group of farmers has lobbied Congress in person.

Promises Are Attacked.

"We aren't going to depend on professional lobbyists this time," a spokesman for the executive secretary said. "We are going to do it ourselves. We have listened to promises long enough. We've had promises and nothing else, and now most of us have nothing—not even our homes."

As described by the visiting farmers, conditions in the farm belt are almost unbelievable. People are losing their farms and homes because of debts. Those who have managed to retain their farms are faced with the problem of raising marketless crops.

The early arrivals for the convention are being cared for at the homes of friends and at the tourist camp. Arrangements were made by the committee for housing them at farm homes on their way to Washington.

Van Dyke, of Rutgers, Is Dead.

New York, Dec. 5 (A.P.).—John Charles Van Dyke, 76, professor of the history of art at Rutgers University since 1889, and author of a number of books on the subject he taught, died in a hospital here today after an operation. He had lectured on art at Columbia, Harvard and Princeton.

HUNGER MARCHERS GET FREE LODGINGS

Sympathizers Find Way of Freeing Demonstrators From Police Lines.

A scheme to circumvent the authorities' desire to isolate the hunger marchers in the New York avenue area, and to remove every one of the 3,000 men and women from under the noses of the police cordon was begun last night and will be continued by a committee formed of a group of sympathetic organizations.

The effort began as a test of Superintendent of Police Ernest W. Brown's declaration that any person could leave the area if lodgings were available. The committee immediately commenced taking men to various places throughout the city. Before midnight more than 100 persons had been removed from the camp.

A fleet of 20 taxicabs was employed in addition to several private cars in taking the marchers out. Each car was accompanied by a policeman, whose duty it was to determine whether the marchers were being taken to bona-fide lodgings. In two cases this was not so and the cars were forced to return.

Three Groups Unite.

Representatives of the committee for the defense of political prisoners, the American Civil Liberties Union and the League of Professional Groups were included in the committee who were trying to clear the camp.

Four of the automobiles developed flat tires on their return from taking men to lodgings. Michael Blankfort, of the American Civil Liberties Union, said that policemen had slashed the tires. However, he could not back this statement with any evidence of seeing the act committed. Two of the tires were apparently cut with some sort of sharp instrument.

The committee reached the camp about 9:30 o'clock last night. Blankfort approached Inspector Ogden T. Davis and said: "Our understanding is that police will permit any of these people for whom housing can be obtained to leave. We also understand that this statement of Maj. Brown has been a statement for public consumption, but in actuality these people are not allowed to leave, regardless of the provision of lodging places."

Police Give Consent.

Davis answered: "If you have places where these people can be housed, we will permit them to leave, under police escort, and if the escort finds that no lodging provisions have been made, they will be brought back here."

Under this plan, the first two auto loads left about 10 o'clock for an address on Twenty-third street northwest near E street. Shortly afterward, two more full cars went to the 2700 block of Woodley place and to Bates street near First street northwest.

At a meeting of this combined committee last night in law offices in the Columbia Building, this evacuation movement was designed with the objective of gradually removing the entire body of about 3,000.

LADY ASTOR TALKS WITH GIRL AT CAMP OF HUNGER MARCHERS

were faring, the former Nancy Langhorne was introduced to Anne Gerlak, of Providence, R. I., secretary of the National Textile Workers Union.

"I'm not a Communist," was Lady Astor's opening shot. "I'm a red hot capitalist, but I'm interested in women's welfare whatever they are."

"But we're not Communists," rejoined the bobbed-hair hunger marcher.

"Just peaceful boys and girls, I guess," Lady Astor remarked with a glance around at the bristling police guard.

The pair standing face to face formed a colorful contrast. Lady Astor, in front of her impeccably attired noble husband, was smartly turned out in a green suit, trimmed with fur. The girl worker was clad in a leather jacket, a coarse woolen skirt and heavy stockings.

The deep throaty voice of Miss Gerlak several times drowned out the dullest tones of the representative of a line of Virginia beauties. Both were carefully polite and neither lost their tempers, though they disagreed on several points.

Miss Gerlak told of low wage conditions and unemployment and of the many troubles which the hunger marchers recite.

Lady Astor came back with her belief that the enactment of a 38-hour-week law for women would prove a panacea for all conditions confronting women workers.

Once the woman member of Parliament leaned over to the "torch-voiced" weaver girl and started to whisper something apparently "confidential." Immediately newspaper reporters swarmed around and Lady Astor whirled with the good-natured exclamation:

"What I think of the press——"

The visit of Lord and Lady Astor lasted about ten minutes and attracted little attention from the hunger marchers milling around, though plenty from reporters and photographers.

Conservatives Worried At What Astors May Say

London, Dec. 6 (A.P.).—Some members of parliament have expressed worry that views on the war debt question which Lady Nancy Astor and her husband may give the foreign affairs committee of the House of Representatives at Washington may be regarded as the general opinion of the House of Commons.

(Viscount and Lady Astor, the American born and first woman member in parliament, were invited to appear before the House committee, probably Wednesday.)

Peter MacDonald, Conservative member of Parliament, plans to raise the question tomorrow of trying to induce the Government to inform the United States Government that anything the Astors may say would be unofficial and undesirable for the committee to hear.

V. F. W. Pledge Support To District Government

The assistance of the entire membership of fifteen posts of the District of Columbia Veterans of Foreign Wars, a total of 1,830 men who fought for Uncle Sam on foreign soil, was pledged last night to the District Commissioners for the support of law and order in Washington during the stay of the hunger marchers.

The action was taken at the regular monthly meeting of the representatives of the posts held in the board room of the District Building. Another resolution was adopted expressing the appreciation of the organization to the Washington police and fire departments for the excellent spirit and efficiency shown during the existing emergency.

28 Bonus Marchers Reach Capital in Cheerful Mood

Refusing proffered shelter by police, 28 bonus marchers last night trekked their way into Washington from near Bethesda, Md., on the Rockville pike. Their truck had been stalled by a broken connecting rod about 2 miles north of Bethesda. While they denied they were "hunger marchers," several wore hunger march badges on their caps. All had honorable discharges from the armed forces of the United States.

The marchers, several of whom said they were veterans of the B. E. F., were met at the District line by three motorcycle policemen, whom they told they were looking for the bonus headquarters on I street. The policemen escorted them to the concentration camp, on New York avenue. On the way they admitted, police say, that they were members of the hunger marchers section which came from Cumberland, but said they had been delayed by engine trouble.

The truck was parked on the pike in front of the estate of Lieut. Comdr. W. J. Lee, U. S. N., retired, from early yesterday afternoon until last night. The men made themselves as comfortable as they could on blankets and quilts around a fire they built on the old road section at that point and waited patiently for the aid which two of their comrades had hiked into Washington to get and which never came.

The truck bore the inscription, "Rank and File Vets Committee," and another scrawled, "Pay the Bonus Now," written in chalk. The men, one of whom was colored, seemed cheerful about their prospects of having the bonus bill passed. They said that they had heard that President Hoover had said he would sign the bill if the ways and means committee could figure a way to pay the bonus.

The men said they had not had any coffee since the day before, although they had bread and some other foodstuffs. Several of them were ill, they said, from the exposure of the trip. They came from Cleveland in the truck, but several of the men were from Portland, Oreg.

Sergt. Leroy Rodgers of the Bethesda substation of the Montgomery County Police visited the men several times and finally offered them shelter for the night at the substation. The men refused and set out on foot for Washington.

Marcher Attempts Street Car Suicide

Hurls Self Before Oncoming Trolley Near Benning; Taken to Hospital.

Jacef Tomanik, 40, of Allentown, Pa., encamped with the hunger marchers on New York avenue northeast, attempted to commit suicide yesterday by hurling himself beneath the wheels of a Washington Railway & Electric Co. trolley near the Benning, D. C., station, according to Eleventh Precinct police who were investigating the case last night.

Simon T. Nichols, 50, of 1300 Orren street northeast, the motorman, told police the man apparently was walking nonchalantly along the side of the tracks when he was first noticed about 100 feet from the station. As he approached the pedestrian, Nichols said, the man suddenly turned and threw himself squarely across the tracks. An ambulance was summoned and removed the marcher to Casualty Hospital, where he was admitted for severe lacerations to the head and back. His condition was declared undetermined.

Loot in Four Bank Holdups Is $13,000

Pair in Texas Robbery Are Caught With $3,000; Others Escape.

Kansas City, Dec. 5 (A.P.).—Three banks were held up and the robbery of a fourth was discovered in the Southwest today. The total loot involved exceeded $13,000. Three men robbed the First State Bank of Panhandle, Tex., of $3,100 shortly after noon and two of them were arrested with the loot two hours later at Borger. The third robber escaped.

Four robbers obtained $4,000 in a noon holdup of the Bank of Cyril, in southwestern Oklahoma. Two bank employes and a customer were kidnaped, but released unharmed several miles outside Cyril.

Upon opening for business this morning, officials of the Farmers State Bank of Pflugerville, in central Texas, discovered that the institution had been robbed, probably Sunday, of approximately $4,500. Four men obtained $1,500 in a holdup of the Lebo, Kans., State Bank, in eastern Kansas, this afternoon.

SPANISH GOLD MINE MAY BE RELOCATED

Arizonians Feel They Have Discovered 'Escalante' in Santa Catalinas.

Tucson, Ariz., Dec. 5 (A.P.).—Hidden in the fastness of the Santa Catalina Mountains of southern Arizona for more than two centuries, the famous Escalante Mine, more popularly known as the mine with the iron door, is believed to have been relocated.

Charles and Harry McKee and Paul E Perkinson all of Phoenix, reported today the find had been made last Friday, climaxing a search of several years which led through faded old documents in Old Mexico to the rugged wilderness surrounding the little town of Oracle, Ariz.

They displayed what they said was high grade ore taken from the mine.

Perkinson said that a number of years ago the skeleton of a burro and a bullskin filled with gold ore, which brought the finder approximately $19,000, was found near the site of the mine.

Legend has it, Perkinson said, that Spaniards located the Escalante and forced Indians to help them work it. Finally the Indians turned upon their oppressors, killed them and dumped huge quantities of gold ore, which had been loaded on burros for removal from the mine onto the floor of the tunnel and sealed up the entrance with dirt, rocks and worthless ore.

Charles McKee said records in Mexico indicated about 400 men worked the mine for eight years.

The McKees and Perkinson staked out as many claims as the law permits.

Annapolis Degree Awarding Sought

Adams Points Out Navy Will Be Unable to Give Commissions to Many.

The right to award bachelor of science degrees to graduates of the United States Naval Academy was asked of Congress yesterday in a bill proposed by Secretary of the Navy Charles Francis Adams.

Secretary Adams said that from now on the Navy will be unable to commission large numbers of potential ensigns. Only half of the 1933 class will get commissions, he said.

Although general recognition is accorded an Annapolis diploma, the Secretary of the Navy thinks a bachelor of science degree would materially benefit graduates forced to seek other vocations.

He succeeds Representative Linthicum (Democrat), Maryland, who died while Congress was in recess.

Kidnaped Spanish Boy, 5, Is Believed Murdered

Vera Cruz, Mexico, Dec. 5 (A.P.).—Police feared today that Jose Maria Rinade, 5-year-old son of a Spanish merchant, had been killed by men who kidnaped him November 26. The kidnapers were refused a ransom of 2,500 pesos (about $830).

A number of suspects have been arrested. Ranchers and police were searching for the body in the vicinity of a ranch where the boy reportedly was taken.

FURLOUGH HEARING TO BE ENDED TODAY

tickets in one family and none in another."

Mrs. Margaret Hopkins Worrell, of the League of American Civil Service, asked that if any further demands must be made on Federal employes, the exemption be placed at $1,500, with a 10 per cent cut on the amount over that.

R. E. Barton, of the City Fire Fighters Association, told of the dangers faced by members of the association, asking that they be relieved of hardships inflicted by economy legislation.

Edward J. Roche, of the Allied Printing Trades Council, asked an amendment correcting inequities under which Government Printing Office employes have not received earned accrued leave during the last fiscal year. He asked a higher pay differential for night work.

Most of Provisions Fought.

Mr. Shaw, in presenting the case for the American Federation of Government Employes, said:

"We are opposed to practically every provision of the act which applies to Federal personnel, and particularly to those sections which provide for compulsory payless furloughs, pay cuts, suspension of promotions, compulsory retirement for age, reduction in travel allowances, dismissal of persons because of marital status, permanent reductions in annual leave, administrative furloughs and that provision which takes away the authority to fill vacancies."

Restoration Held Benefit.

He said the Government should begin to restore wage standards now for the beneficial effect it will have on the country.

Other witnesses who appeared included Thomas E. Colley, representing navy yard workers, and R. E. Marsh, who represented certain professional employes of the Agriculture Department.

Witnesses today will include Martin Reimer, of the Pressmen's Union; James Windsor, Frank J. Coleman, Clyde Mills, Edward F. McGrady, William A. Hickey, C. L. Rosemont and Charles F. Wahl, with organizations affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, Miss A. Cox, who will speak on the married workers' clause, and Edward Evans, who will testify on general provisions of the economy act.

PARADE OF MARCHERS WHICH CAUSED RIOT CALL

It was this massing of the "hungry" in march formation which brought every available policeman in the city to the corral on New York avenue. However, Communist leaders termed the demonstration a "dress rehearsal." A conference was held after the files had made several circuits of their "cage," with band playing and banner flying.

The Federal Diary

By GEORGE D. RILEY

THE Postoffice "cat." Will it live on after the new Postoffice Department Building has been completed? Will it begin the second of the nine lives all good cats lead in their metamorphosis? Or will it remain in its marble niche a part of the structure left to stand for more years to come?

These are the questions no one in the department seem able to answer. We asked our friend, Isaac Gregg, chief, Bureau of Information, for his hunch. He has heard many reports His latest information is that the old building may still be left standing because of sentiment in Congress not to demolish it. The same question apparently stumped Harold N. Graves, executive assistant to the Postmaster General.

Roscoe Markle, retired, said he had been "around here twenty years and I didn't know there was a 'cat.'"

So after playing "puss in the corner," the question of what will become of the huge national flag in the inclosed court was raised. It is conceded to be too fragile to remain and may be relegated to the fate other flags which have served their day have met, burning.

SWARMI FEDD "holds it for a still," adjusts his glasses, clears his throat and he's off again. There are those who say the Swarmi, now reaching the piping voice stage, is "off" automatically, but that's "off" the record.

Great American pastime—snapshooting the White House through the barred fence, we see. Hopping our bicycle built for two the other night and pedaling, not peddling, down to Tempo Building, C, at Seventh and B streets, where the Crop Production Division, Farmers Seed Loan is "making hay (or something) while the moon shines—Note to typesetter, make it two words, not moonshines . . . The big idea is that this division is making strenuous efforts to keep apace of seasonal demands and for that reason is working a shift from 4 to 11:30 p. m., in addition to the regular crew from 9 to 4:30.

We had heard that during the late evening hours the heat in the building was conspicuous by its absence and, although we were informed officially that this was due on the previous occasion to the heating plant, we discovered that the building still is too cold for the comfort of the several young women who work there until 11:30 p. m. . . . We are wondering if the heating engineer is on the day shift and banks his fires at 4:30. . . . And how the typewriters in that department can "take it!"

John P. Moore, Special Agency Unit, Prohibition Bureau, on good behavior more especially recently. . . . A good reason. . . . His mother, Mrs. Jennie Moore, of Nashville, Tenn., visited him for a holiday vacation and to renew acquaintanceship with Washington. Now Mr. Moore can return to normal pursuits—perhaps that of chaperoning a lady in the Labor Depaftment after business hours.

Who's the little cutie in Virginia with the florious red hair whom LeRoy Scheaff, broadcast division, Radio Commission, has quite a yen for? Saw them Satevening at the Washington Canoe Club dance. . . . Am we right? Echo answers, "Are we right?" . . . Almost forgot, LeRoy is a senior at National University. . . . Look out District attorneys!

Puffing from supplying all the legpower on that tandem bike, Swarmi pulls up—pulls up his tandem to the curb, unwinding his head swath to say "hello" to the folks, makes this informal announcement, "If I don't see you again soon, hello."

CLEVERNESS has its place in every line. Walton Hood Grant, editor of the Prohibition Bureau Bulletin, tells this story of how three investigators caught a still operator. The investigators recently seized a still and by following a path to a house arrested a man who denied knowledge of it. But they found fingerprints on funnels and jars, which an expert identified as those of the arrested operator. The evidence convicted him.

The Big Stick was the name of a weekly column devoted to interests of Government employes back in 1910. G. M. Hunt, then superintendent of the Registry Division, Postoffice Department, treasures his copies of The Big Stick, motto of which was "If You See It in The Big Stick, It Isn't Necessarily So."

"I was just looking to see if they were going to wash the windows on the inside or the outside," said Miss Alice Sanger, personnel officer, Postoffice Department, as she looked around at the window cleaner a recent cold morning.

Those rows of colored pins stretch far across the continent on a big map and the board is marked off in circles. Just a peek behind the scenes. W. T. Miller, superintendent of airways, says the circles represent airplane radio radii, while the pins tell what it's all about so far as beacons, airports and commercial lines are concerned.

Provided one has the wherewithal for sea travel, the hazard of such trips is on speaking terms with the zero mark, Supervising Inspector General D. N. Hoover, of the Steamboat Inspection Service, says. Of 262,640,219 passengers carried during the period covered by Gen. Hoover, there were only 55 lives lost, he says.

Smithsonian Relief Association has just chosen these officers: James G. Taylor, president; George Johnson, captain of the watch, vice president; Mrs. Mary B. C. Shuman, treasurer, and W. H. Goldsmith, financial secretary. Miss Helen Munroe, M. A. Tolson, Isidor Dyer, Mrs. Bertha Carwithen and J. H. Riley are new directors.

"I won a smoking stand recently in a bridge tournament," said Miss Mazie Bule, Industrial Alcohol, who knows her cards professionally. Incidentally, Miss Bule directs a contract popular Round Robin at the Westchester each Wednesday evening. Trophies? Yes. Miss Bule traded her smoking stand (she doesn't smoke) for something else. A cup? Yes.

"Pinis" has been written on the long, useful Government service of Stephen E. Todhunter, retired, who served in two departments, War and later Postoffice, from 1900 till late in 1932.

His friends hail selection of Thomas P. Healy, former attorney, Interstate Commerce Commission, to be associate general solicitor, New York Central Lines, as recognition of his services with the I. C. C.

NATIONAL FEDERATION OF POSTOFFICE CLERKS executive committee yesterday opened its sessions to outline a legislative program and to consider various organization matters affecting postal employment conditions. Conferences have been arranged with Congress members, postal and other administrators on postal personnel questions, Secretary-Treasurer Thomas F. Flaherty and his assistant, William Otte, said.

Early repeal of the "economy" law is sought, said Mr. Flaherty. "This law has failed of its purpose, not having effected substantial economies and at the same time materially injuring the service morale," said Mr. Flaherty. "It has impaired the mass-purchasing power of the postal workers to the extent of $50,000,000 throughout the country, which in turn has been harmful to the small business men. We are firmly convinced that a continuation of this law will retard rather than help economic recovery. If the economy law is continued it means notice to the country by the Congress that there is little hope for an upward trend prior to July 1, 1934. This would be a note of despair with unfortunate reactions everywhere."

They say when in Rome, do as the roomers do. Dr. Paul Galtsoff, in charge of shell fisheries investigations, Bureau of Fisheries, is catching up with his desk work, having just returned from an extended pleasure trip in Europe, including considerable time in Rome. He plans further campaigns against starfish, now ravaging the oyster beds on the New England Coast.

STUDYING law and steamboat inspection. At least they go together for Mrs. Anna E. Keyser, assistant to Dickerson N. Hoover, in charge of steamboat inspection. She finds law a valuable asset in her usual line of Government work, and intends to add the coveted LL.D. to her record, which already has put her in high place among executive department positions. Mrs. Keyser probably is the only woman in command of a necessarily hard-boiled seafaring service when called upon to assume the "acting" director's toga during the absence of the head of the service.

Commodore Jim Griffin, Coast and Geodetic Survey Fishing Club, finds no shirkers when he heads the gang on fishing expeditions. Noted for his ability as disbursing clerk, Commodore Jim also is reputed to display that same type of directing genius in arranging fishing parties on a strictly "job-sharing" basis.

Despite the fact that William M. Lytle, former deputy commissioner, Bureau of Navigation, was retired July 1 under the "economy" act, he has appeared at his desk at periodic intervals. His former chief, Arthur J. Tyrer, says he can not estimate the assistance Mr. Lytle, now 70, still gives through his experience, he having spent nearly a half century with the bureau, starting as a clerk more than 48 years ago. His energy forbids Mr. Lytle's breaking away from the job.

Almerico Zappone, disbursing clerk, Department of Agriculture the last 27 years, has disbursed $2,100,000,000, nearly a billion of which was spent for public roads. He has held one of the pivotal positions in the department.

Mr. Zappone has just retired and has been succeeded by William R. Fuchs, who has been a member of the department's division of accounts and disbursements 20 years.

Mr. Zappone entered the Government service in 1880 as an enlisted private in the Signal Corps of the Army. He joined the force of the Department of Agriculture in 1891, when the weather service of the Signal Corps, to which he was attached, became the Weather Bureau. He was appointed acting chief of the department's Division of Accounts and Disbursements in 1905 and was made chief of that division the following year. This position he held until he reached the retirement age compulsory under the present civil service laws.

Mr. Fuchs, now called on to administer the disbursement of the department's appropriations, has had more than 30 years' experience in bookkeeping, accountancy, and office management. Starting as a bookkeeper in Kansas City, Mo., Mr. Fuchs came into the Government service as a clerk in the Treasury Department in 1902 and transferred to the Department of Agriculture in 1905. Six years later he left his position as district fiscal agent in the Forest Service to become an assistant in the department's division of accounts and disbursements. Since 1929 he has been assistant chief of this division. Mr. Fuchs holds the degree of LL. B. from Georgetown University.

MRS. NORTON JOINS WET DISTRICT MOVE

election to determine the will of the people."

Mrs. Norton said yesterday that if there is any question about the repeal of the Volstead act leaving the District still saddled with the Sheppard dry law, she will sponsor a move to wipe that act from the statute books.

The House District committee chairman yesterday talked for but 30 seconds of the 40 precious minutes allowed for floor debate on the repeal resolution, but she packed a punch in that half minute. She spoke, she said, in the name of many millions of women, Republicans and Democrats alike, who expressed themselves in favor of repeal in the last election.

Mrs. Norton's stand on the local liquor issue first was manifest last year when she made clear in no uncertain terms that if the Howell "home raid" bill for the District prohibition enforcement were ever sent to her committee, an inconspicuous pigeon-hole awaited it.

The Howell bill, however, never was reported out of the Senate District committee. A count of wets on the committee indicates it never will be.

Recently John B. Colpoys, chairman of the Democratic central committee, announced he would seek for the District the same privileges allowed the States under the repeal resolution. He said he would go before the House ways and means committee. Earlier, Representative John J. O'Connor (Democrat), New York, said he would confer with Corporation Counsel Bride with an eye to the same objective.

Members of the House District committee voting for the Garner repeal resolution yesterday were Representatives Norton, Palmisano of Maryland, Smith of Virginia, Gasque of South Carolina, Black of New York, Clark of North Carolina, Gilbert of Kentucky, Harlan of Ohio—all Democrats, and McLeod of Michigan, Sullivan of Pennsylvania, Whitley of New York and Holmes of Massachusetts. Besides Representative Patman, voting against the resolution were Representatives Stalker of New York, Bowman of West Virginia, and McClintock of Ohio.

In voting against repeal, Representative Patman said he opposed the form of the resolution.

MOB INVADES CELLS TO CHASE AGITATORS

Six Painted and Hair Cut Before Being Warned to Leave Fruit Belt.

Vacaville, Calif., Dec. 5 (A.P.).—Sheriff's officers today sought vainly to learn the identity of about 30 persons who took 6 labor agitators from the county jail, clipped their hair, smeared them with red paint and warned them not to return here.

The six had been arrested after demonstrations growing out of disputes over wages paid to fruit tree pruners. The workers protested what they said was a 25 cent cut in wages to $1.25 a day.

Police Chief O. E. Alley said those who kidnaped the six apparently were irate townsmen who somehow had obtained a key to the jail. Warning newspapermen not to follow them, they drove 15 miles from here last night, administered the clippers and paint and dispersed. Five of the six agitators were reported seen walking toward Sacramento today.

Frank H. Buck, Democratic representative-elect and owner of large orchards in this district, issued a statement condemning the incident as "unlawful and liable to breed further trouble rather than settle existing disturbances." He urged valley residents to proceed only by lawful means.

Buck said most of the reputed agitators were coming from San Jose, with a few from Sacramento and San Francisco. He quoted Communists as having said Vacaville was to be used as a concentration point for a Communist march upon Sacramento, coincidental with the opening of the State Legislature there January 2.

Those taken from jail were Claude Thompson, T. Martinez, Marvin Blackburn and R. B. Matney, of Sacramento; Robert Nelson, of Mountain View, and Thomas Clark, address unknown. All were arrested when police and townsmen broke up a parade.

Hoover Mentioned As Harvard's Head

Treasurer Says Suggestion Will Be Submitted to College Corporation.

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover's name was advanced yesterday for a new post of distinction, the presidency of Harvard.

His name was suggested by Chester D. Pugsley, of Peekskill, N. Y., in a letter to Henry L. Shattuck, treasurer of Harvard, on the basis that Mr. Hoover is an honorary alumnus of the institution. Pugsley's letter was made public yesterday together with Shattuck's reply stating the suggestion would be submitted to the college corporation.

The Harvard presidency is to be vacant by reason of the recent resignation of Abbott Lawrence Lowell.

W. B. & A. Railroad Wins Tax Case Review

(Associated Press.)

George Weems Williams, receiver of the Washington, Baltimore & Annapolis Electric Railroad, was yesterday granted a review by the Supreme Court of the decision of lower Federal courts holding invalid an act of the Maryland Legislature exempting its property from all State, county and city taxes and all charges in the nature of a tax during the years the property was used for railroad purposes, but not exceeding two years from January 1, 1931.

The mayor and city council of Baltimore and the mayor, counselor and aldermen of Annapolis successfully challenged the validity of the act.

Rich Jeweler Is Found Brutally Slain in Shop

Crockett, Calif., Dec. 5 (A.P.).—H. L. Whitehead, wealthy jeweler, clubman and civic leader, was found beaten to death in his jewelry shop here today. Authorities expressed belief he had been killed by robbers he surprised as they looted the store. Whitehead's skull was fractured and his throat cut.

Charles Kenrad, 39, itinerant, was arrested at Vallejo. He denied any connection with the crime but admitted he had been in Crockett earlier in the day. The jeweler's body was found by Elwyn Jensen, a customer. Authorities said a stock of uncut diamonds, valued at $15,000 and other jewels were missing.

Political Party's Motto Mexican Baby's Name

Puebla, Mexico, Dec. 5 (U.P.).—Effective Suffrage No Reelection Gonzalez was christened today in a baptismal ceremony performed at the edge of San Francisco River.

The child, son of Senor Ignacio Gonzalez, was named for the motto of the National Revolutionary party, currently in power in Mexico.

A socialist politician had charge of the ceremony. He said:

"In the name of the Mexican revolution and the peasant class, I baptize thee Effective Suffrage No Reelection Gonzalez!"

PERMANENT ARMS BOARD IS U. S. AIM

Envoys of Five Powers Dine in Hopeful Atmosphere at Geneva.

Geneva, Dec. 5 (A.P.).—Representatives of five great powers, including the United States, met at a stag dinner tonight and inaugurated informal conversations designed to achieve concrete results in the field of disarmament.

Those present were Norman H. Davis, the America nrepresentative; Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald, of Great Britain; Premier Edouard Herriot, of France; Baron Konstantin von Neurath, the German foreign minister, and Baron Pompeo Aloisi, Italian undersecretary for foreign affairs. The negotiations will be continued tomorrow morning.

Hopeful Atmosphere.

From an American source it was learned the five conferees were attempting in a much more hopeful atmosphere to get something definite on paper, which would sum up the achievements already made by the world disarmament conference and would leave the questions of security and arms equality to be settled later.

The American attitude may be summed up thus: Let us take the first step to put some absolute limit on armaments, to reduce them drastically and to get the machinery going. Then let us turn over other questions to a permanent commission, for the disarmament process is continuous and there should be a continuous body to pursue it. Above all, let us avoid the futility of drawing up a "formula" and then having it mean one thing to the French and another to the Germans.

French Are Cryptic.

The French, who viewed the American proposals more favorably after a series of talks between M. Herriot and Mr. Davis, were inclined to read more into this scheme than the Americans were willing to admit it contained. By the French interpretation it amounted to a permanent commission which would operate until 1936, when the London Naval Treaty of 1930 is due to be reviewed and by which time Germany would have achieved in law the arms equality she desires.

The French summed up the reaction of the other nations to the American proposal in this fashion: "Nobody said yes, nobody said no." The Italians, who were called in on the preliminary conversations for the first time this afternoon, are understood to like the idea vaguely and to be better disposed toward direct naval proposals to Frence.

The British echoed the hopeful note of the Americans. Baron von Neurath reserved judgment until the beginning of formal discussions.

Japan's draft naval plan was presented to the American and British representatives today. It probably will not be published before the weekend.

Illness Keeps Thomas From Senate Duties

Gooding, Idaho, Dec. 5 (A.P.).—Senator John Thomas (Republican), Idaho, was not among the senators answering "present" to the opening roll call of Congress in Washington today.

Unable to make the trip because of his recent illness, Senator Thomas planned to remain at his home until about December 15 to regain strength. Although recovered from the attack of typhoid which kept him in bed throughout the campaign, he continues weak. He was defeated in the campaign by Mayor James P. Pope of Boise, Idaho Democrat.

Davis, Indicted in Lottery, Absent in Senate Roll Call

Associates Are Silent on Whereabouts; Right to Seat Questioned.

(Associated Press.)

Under indictment on charges of violating the Federal lottery law, Senator James J. Davis (Republican), Pennsylvania, did not respond yesterday when his name was read at the first Senate roll call.

The question of whether Davis would go into the Senate before his trial this month was raised unofficially here last week. The Pennsylvania senator refused to comment.

It was reported that several Senate Republican leaders advised Davis not to sit in the Senate while he was under indictment. Davis would not say whether he was so advised.

Davis has not let his whereabouts be known generally since he left the Army-Navy football game in Philadelphia Saturday afternoon. Mrs. Davis, who was with him at the game, said Sunday night she had not seen him since that time.

Last night servants at the Davis home here said neither the senator nor Mrs. Davis was in, and that they did not know where the senator was.

Davis' secretary at his office also said he did not know where the senator had gone.

Reports from Philadelphia that Davis had left for Battle Creek, Mich., to rest until his trial, slated for late this month, went unconfirmed both here and in Battle Creek.

The indictment was returned against Davis as director general of the Loyal Order of Moose, a post he has held for many years. A trial was started in September, but was ended abruptly when the judge found one of the jurors had talked with an attorney in the case.

Davis was reelected in the November elections.

Office of State Elections Rejects His Expense Account.

Harrisburg, Pa., Dec. 5 (A.P.).—The State Elections Bureau today rejected United States Senator James J. Davis' campaign expense account.

Davis failed to submit vouchers covering items of more than $10 as required by State law. He was given until Thursday to turn them in to Richard J. Beamish, secretary of the Commonwealth.

The action followed a conference between Gov. Pinchot and Secretary Beamish.

Davis, a Republican, reporting on his successful campaign for reelection, showed no contributions, expenditures of $1,589 and an apparent unpaid obligation of $2,500 on which further information was requested.

Under the heading "Unpaid Debts or Obligations," Davis made this notation:

"Twenty-five hundred-dollar contribution to Republican State committee requested, but not yet paid."

In a letter to Davis today, Secretary Beamish asked whether this notation is "an acknowledgment of a debt or merely a notation of a request?"

Davis' secretary, Frank K. Boal, in a letter accompanying the report, said that Davis is retaining vouchers in Washington for either or both the Federal and State authorities.

Referring of items of expenditures, Secretary Beamish said Davis "does not show to whom numerous payments were made, nor the places where the money was expended."

The penalty for failing to file proper expense accounts is refusal to allow the successful candidate to take office.

HOOVER-LAVAL HOPE OF YOUNG PLAN TOLD

Conference Here in 1931 Did Not Expect Scrapping of Idea, Report Shows.

Editor's Note: A wide section of French public opinion contends that President Hoover committed his Government to scale down war debts on the basis of the Lausanne reparations agreement. Evidence to disprove the contention is contained in Premier Laval's personal notes, which the United Press has been permitted to study.

By RALPH HEINZEN.

(Copyright, 1932, by United Press.)

Paris, Dec. 5.—President Hoover made no definite commitment to scale down debts, nor did either he or Pierre Laval expect the Lausanne reparations agreement to annul the Young plan which determined the annuities Germany was to pay the allies, an examination of Laval's handwritten report of his 1931 conference with Mr. Hoover repealed today.

To the contrary, the text of the Washington communique, on which President Hoover and Laval, then premier of France, spent hours of earnest effort, states specifically that the United States and France agreed on a return as soon as possible to the Young plan provisions for a moratorium, rather than an a Hoover moratorium.

Would Fix Capacity.

Thus, both Laval and President Hoover indicated they expected the Young plan to retain its vigor, permitting Germany to make overtures for a moratorium under the plan upon expiration of the Hoover one-year moratorium. Thereafter, it was agreed, allied experts would fix Germany's capacity to pay.

Laval is holding himself aloof from present negotiations, particularly since Premier Edouard Herriot has not consulted him on the nature of the pledges made by President Hoover. The former premier, however, intends to produce his verbatim report of the Washington conversations when the debt debate opens in the Senate, and to point out the differences between the two French notes recently sent to Washington and the communique that was issued as a result of the 1931 conference.

Points to Paragraph.

Laval meets all requests for interviews on the debt question with the same expression, "See the Washington text." He points particularly to that paragraph which reads:

"Insofar as intergovernmental obligations are concerned, we recognize that before the year of the Hoover suspension expires, an arrangement concerning the period of economic depression may be necessary, the two governments making all reservations on the terms and conditions of such an arrangement. The initiative for such an arrangement must be taken by the European powers principally interested, within the framework of existing treaties, before July 1, 1932."

Laval points out that neither he nor President Hoover expected anything else but a substitution of the Young plan for the Hoover moratorium. It was after his overthrow that the French government, under British pressure at Lausanne, scrapped the Young plan.

Poland Must Pay What She Can, Paper Asserts

Warsaw, Poland, Dec. 5 (A.P.).—The semiofficial newspaper Gazeta Polaka said today that if the United States demands payment of the December installment on Poland's debt, amounting to approximately $4,430,000, this country will have to pay as much as she can scrape together at that time.

The debt can not be revised by one side, the newspaper said, but neither can water be poured from an empty vessel.

DEBT PAYING VOTED BY FASCIST COUNCIL

President-elect Roosevelt and should take into account Italy's present situation and rights.

Italy had failed to join France, England and other European nations in sending notes to the United States for reconsideration of the payments due this month.

The government preferred to remain silent after the other meetings, leaving Italy's attitude unrevealed, while England, France and other countries moved for postponement.

The council's decision was expressed in a communique which said payment should be made "as long as nothing interferes." While this appeared as a form of reservation, the wording indicated it was meant only as a safeguard and did not alter the fact that the decision was for payment.

(Associated Press.)

Czechoslovakia made a second plea for a further moratorium on war debt payments yesterday, asserting she is "wedged in the block of central European states so heavily hit by the present world's crisis of credit" and can not make the December payment "without endangering her present economic and financial structure."

Should the United States not grant the extension of payments, the note stated, "the tendency to restrict importation will fatally, spontaneously and immediately be imposed on nations importing from the United States in order to correct and counteract the menacing adverse trade balance, and in this vicious circle the volume of international trade will again be diminished, creating further unemployment, which is the most distressing and ominous phenomenon of the present crisis, and the way to recovery, both economically and psychologically, will be automatically barred."

"This state of affairs would create exceptionally serious repercussions in central Europe in the economic structure of which Czechoslovakia assumes an integral part as an industrial and creditor nation," it added.

A payment of $1,500,000 on principal is due to the United States from Czechoslovakia December 15. The funded debts of the nation to the United States was $167,071,023, and $18,304,178 has been paid.

Former Klan Chief Loses Plea.

South Bend, Ind., Dec. 5 (A.P.).—Federal Judge Thomas W. Slick today denied the petition of D. C. Stephenson, former Indiana dragon of the Ku Klux Klan, for a writ of habeas corpus which would have freed him from the term of life imprisonment he is now serving in Michigan City State Prison. He was convicted of the murder of Madge Oberholtzer, of Indianapolis, in 1925.

SPANISH TELEPHONE MOVE AROUSES U. S.

America May Recall Envoy; System's Confiscation Is Threatened.

By HAROLD J. T. HORAN.

Threatened confiscation of the American-owned telephone system in Spain has stirred the Department of State here to formal protest. Future action may entail the recall of the American Ambassador to Spain, it was learned here yesterday.

The diplomatic incident between the two governments had its origin in the legislative program of the new Spanish regime, which aims at the socalization of all public utilities. The Spanish telephone system was installed by the International Telephone & Telegraph Co. under royal decree in 1924. This concession had been formally recognized by the new Republican government as soon as it assumed direction of the affairs of state.

Last December, however, a bill for the confiscation of the National Telephone Co. in Spain was introduced into the Cortes. The telephone contract heretofore recognized by the Republican government was declared "illegal and void" and the promoters of the contract were declared "responsible for the injuries sustained by the nation."

The decree of confiscation would affect the $65,000,000 interests of American stockholders as well as some 20,000 Spanish stockholders.

The issue at once assumed a character that transcended the usual governmental limitations on public utilities. An exchange of notes was begun by American Ambassador Irwin Boyle Laughlin and Spanish Ambassador Juan Francesco Cardenas.

The Spanish government in its note of November 23 proposed to examine the situation jointly, but omitted to specify that in addition to joint examination there should also be joint agreement. This points to unilateral denunciation of contract which in international, as well as in private, law would be a subject for serious action by the United States.

The bill of last December was at one time denounced by the premier, but subsequently in interpellations in the Cortes spokesmen for the government announced that the measure would have governmental support.

The United States is particularly aroused over this action of the Spanish Cortes, as such a proceeding would constitute a dangerous precedent for all American investments abroad. If the Spanish government could deliberately annul the telephone contract of the American-owned National Telephone Co., the fate of such American organizations as the Cosach Nitrate Combine in Chile might easily be revoked in the same manner.

German Radicals Plan Ouster Vote

Von Schleicher Confident He Can Muster Ballots to Save Cabinet.

Berlin, Dec. 5 (A.P.).—When the new Reichstag convenes tomorrow for its first session the Communists will attempt to unseat the government with a motion of nonconfidence, but Chancellor Kurt von Schleicher tonight gave every evidence he was confident of his ability to cope with that situation.

The chancellor had a private conversation with Hermann Wilhelm Goering, National Socialist speaker of the last Reichstag. A Nazi communique said Goering gave assurances the opening session would proceed without a hitch. Government sources said nothing about the result of the meeting between the chancellor and the Nazi lieutenant.

All the Nazi members of the Reichstag assembled at a meeting presided over by Adolf Hitler, the leader of the party, who received an individual pledge of allegiance from each of them. The new chancellor will go before the Reichstag armed with a decree of dissolution, which he will be able to promulgate in the event a vote of nonconfidence seems likely.

IMPEACHMENT ASKED OF LETTS AND ROVER

porting, storing and selling intoxicating liquor. They were sentenced to from fifteen months to two years' imprisonment. Appeal was taken to the District Court of Appeals.

In his petition to the Speaker yesterday, Duke offered to appear before the judiciary committee to support his charges that Letts and Rover "are guilty of high crimes and misdemeanors requiring the interposition of the constitutional powers of the House of Representatives."

"I also charge that these parties committed these offenses in an attempt to prevent the reversal of the unfair, illegal and unconstitutional trial to which they had subjected the appellants in the lower court, which amounted to 'judicial lynching' in my opinion," Duke's petition to the Speaker read, adding:

"I further charge that the said Letts abused his judicial powers; that he abused his judicial discretion; that he abused his oath of office, wherein he swore that he would support and uphold the Constitution of the United States; that he contemptuously violated the rules of his court; that he refused to listen to and pass upon repeated motions for bail pending the appeal from convictions for three months after the appeal had been taken in the case of four appellants and two weeks less in the case of a fifth; that he brought the administration of justice in his court into contempt; that his conduct in this trial and in the proceedings connected with the appeal and subsequent matters was tyrranous, arbitrary and autocratic; and that his course of conduct logically and inevitably led up to and culminated in the said falsification of records and obstructed justice."

Duke said Moder has been denied bail since April 29, while bail fixed in the case of three others July 15 was "excessive bail in violation of amendment 8, which they can not raise."

The motion for leave to file petition for mandamus presented to the Supreme Court yesterday related that Duke charged "falsification of records" to Letts and Rover, in his previous petition to the District Court of Appeals. It said the court intimated in a written memorandum opinion, "its intention of disciplining petitioners' counsel for making such scandalous, impertinent and defamatory charges."

IRENE RICH PRESENTS TOYS

Irene Rich, film star appearing at Loew's Fox, has become so enthused over The Washington Post's Toy Fund and collection of toys and dolls that yesterday she went shopping and came into office with arms loaded with gifts for the city's needy children. She is shown here with toys and dolls she is contributing to the collection. Similar toys will serve as admittance cards at a reception Thursday afternoon at the Willard Hotel at which Miss Rich will greet all children and adults accompanying them.

Irene Rich Brings Heaps Of Toys to The Post Fund

Movie Star Will Receive Children at Willard on Thursday.

Miss Irene Rich, moving picture star, earned the right to be called one of the chief Santa Claus aids of The Post Toy and Doll Fund when she arrived at the headquarters of the fund yesterday in The Post Building, her arms piled high with toys which had been sent to her for the fund.

Miss Rich has invited the children of Washington to meet her on Thursday, at 4:30 p. m., in the Willard room of the Willard Hotel, the only card of admission being a toy for The Post Toy and Doll Fund. So enthusiastic have the children of the city become over Miss Rich's invitation that they have been sending her toys in advance of the reception.

The cinema star was delighted with the display of toys assembled in the library of The Washington Post Building and said she is having a wonderful time collecting toys for The Post Toy and Doll Fund.

"I shall enjoy my own Christmas all the more," she exclaimed. "It will be a great happiness for me to meet the little ones of Washington who are doing their best to help less fortunate children. Tell them the more who come the merrier, and not to forget their toys."

More than 50 dolls sat in prim rows on top of a huge file case in The Post Library and watched Miss Rich and her entry with the toys. It was perhaps the most unique audience she had ever faced, those rows of china faces and eyes glazing solemly down or her and her offerings. There they were, play children, too, waiting for happy owners to call them theirs on Christmas morning when, what would have been empty stockings, are filled with so much loveliness.

There were dolls to the right of Miss Rich, dolls to the left of her and dolls behind her and before her. And, best of all, she had some dainty dolls with her to add to the collection.

Billy, the boy doll, who had his picture taken with Ding-How, mascot of The Junior Post and a chief Santa Claus aid, even as Miss Rich, was excited over the visit.

After the smiling motion picture actress had left, Billy was heard confiding to the boy twins, Tom and Jerry, on his right, that he hoped to visit Hollywood some day himself. "But I have to do my good deed on Christmas day first," he concluded, "then perhaps I shall travel west. Who knows?"

And who does know, Billy, the stuff of which dreams are made. Tonight, as The Junior Post Editor writes this story, no doubt some little girl in a cold, desolate home, hugging a cat to her for warmth—ill-fed, poverty-stricken, is dreaming a golden dream of a wonderful doll that looks like you, Billy, is to be left by Santa Claus for her on Christmas eve. She knows nothing of you, Billy boy, but Fate will bring you together through the magic of The Post Toy and Doll Fund, see if it does not.

Little hearts are counting on The Post Toy and Doll Fund already and the good people who make it possible for The Post to serve Santa Claus in this manner. Pathetic evidence is coming to The Post in every mail proving this. Some of them are written in the trembling handwriting of anxious mothers, putting aside the direr wants for the moment to insure their children some sort of a Christmas. Others are penned or printed in childish script in the eternal faith of children in the goodness of the world.

Can those mothers, and those children, be disappointed on Christmas Day? The Post believes they will not be disappointed.

The only thing to insure that they will not be disappointed is to put The Post Toy and Doll Fund over the top. While no definite quota has been set, it is hoped that at least $1,000 can be raised for the fund this year. The fund is now striding toward the $300 mark. Let's make it $500 before Saturday night. Then, with two weeks more to go until Christmas, there will be reasonable hope that the $1,000, or more, can be gathered together by Christmas Eve. Of course, the sooner the money comes the better, because the Council of Social Agencies will distribute it to affiliated organizations for welfare and relief, whose officials in turn must either turn it over to parents to buy the toys or purchase them for their wards in institutions in the District.

Here is a note from a mother who was helped by The Post Toy and Doll Fund last year. She has not forgotten it. Things have not improved for her and her little ones during the year which has passed. She writes:

"Dear Santa Claus Lady:

"You helped me last year with the children's Christmas, and surely gave them a nice Christmas, and I thank you. I hope you will help me this year, as my husband only makes $20 a week, and there are seven children—four boys and three girls—(they range from 14 years down to a 2-year-old youngster) and it is hard to feed them, pay house rent and insurance on his salary. Will you help me this year?

"P. S. I surely thank you for what you did for me last year and they had such a nice Christmas."

Hard for nine people to live on $20 a week! It is a miracle. Yet it would be safe to wager that the mother does not mind the struggle, the terrible daily fear that the husband might lose his position and that those seven neatly darned stockings will hang in vain from the mantel on Christmas Eve. Do not worry, little mother. Were your children seven times seven, The Post Toy and Doll Fund would still see that they have a Merry Christmas.

An even more pathetic letter came from a widow, out of work and with three children watching with eager eyes for Santa Claus. She wrote: "Will you please remember my children this Christmas? I am a poor mother and have not any work this year. I have three children and their father is dead. Please help me with a few toys and some food so they can be happy on Christmas morning. May God bless you in your good work."

Then here is another mother pleading for her boys, 3 and 5 years old—future citizens of America.

"My husband is out of work," she wrote: "I would appreciate anything you could give us for Christmas." O. K. Twentieth Century Cornelia, your jewels indeed are your sons, and do not lose hope while you have them with you.

Responding to the special appeal made by St. Nicholas from his North Pole headquarters to The Post by long distance telephone Sunday night, more Santa Claus aids were recruited yesterday. There was the widow of a United States senator who sent in a box of lovely dolls and toys; Mary Margaret Maxwell and Stanley Foltz, whose fathers work in the composing room of The Washington Post, and who are much interested in the fund; little Joan Colladay, of 1615 Holly street northwest who brought in toys, and 6-year-old Marian Proctor, of 2225 H street northwest, also the donor of toys.

Stanley Foltz, filled with the Christmas spirit, gave his own pet tricycle to the Toy Fund. Goodness, Stanley, here's hoping Santa Claus will not forget to reward that big sacrifice. It seems something when a little boy will give up his beloved steed for another little boy. Santa Claus pins a big Aid Medal on your chest.

And so they come, that seemingly endless procession of donors—men, women and little children—all bearing gifts, like those Wise Men out of the East, who came to the side of the Bethlehem Babe 2,000 years ago. The Santa Claus Lady is so happy that she smiles from sunup to sundown, and The Post Building hums with happiness and joy in the thought that many children will be cared for on Christmas morning because The Washington Post, the Capital's greatest newspaper, has been enlisted by Santa Claus to aid him in his big job this year.

Join the procession! Bring or send in your gift and feel the Christmas glow creep into your heart, melting away the sadness of a depression year, fears and disappointments that have filled so many lives this past year.

ROOSEVELT CONFERS WITH GOV. WOODRING

They Discuss Farm Relief; Coxey, of March Fame, Also Is Visitor.

Warm Springs, Ga., Dec. 5 (A.P.).—Rejection of the prohibition repeal resolution by the House brought a threat of an extra session of Congress early in the new administration today as Franklin D. Roosevelt began preparations for his return to Albany.

The President-elect, informed at his Pine Mountain cottage of the action, refrained from comment, but some of those familiar with the series of conferences he has been holding with members of Congress during the last ten days regarded the repeal vote as one which might forecast failure of beer legislation in the event of a presidential veto.

A measure to legalize beer has been one of the points of the program many of the Democratic pleaders have outlined as necessary of adoption, if there is to be no special session called shortly after Mr. Roosevelt is inducted into office.

Among those close to the President-elect in the Warm Springs entourage, the belief was expressed that while there was little doubt in their minds the necessary majority for passage of a beer-legalizing measure could be obtained, the failure of the repeal resolution to gain the two-thirds required for its adoption indicated the likelihood that any presidential veto that might be attached to beer legislation would be sustained.

Farm relief, another phase of the legislative program being worked out by the Democrats, received consideration again today by Mr. Roosevelt. Gov. Harry Woodring of Kansas spent more than two hours talking with Mr. Roosevelt in a luncheon conference at the hilltop cottage of the President-elect. Woodring was accompanied by Guy T. Kelvering, the Democratic State chairman.

The day also brought to the Roosevelt cottage Jacob S. Coxey, the general of the historic march of the unemployed upon Washington in the last century. The white-haired veteran of economic legislation, now Mayor of Massillon, Ohio, brought with him the measure that he has been urging Congress to adopt for a number of years. It proposes that currency be printed in which the war debts shall be paid and that, bearing the stamp of several nations, the money be put into general circulation.

Coxey said after his five-minute talk with Mr. Roosevelt that the governor had given him a pleasant hearing and had indicated he would be received again before March 4. The Ohioan said Mr. Roosevelt had promised to study his proposal.

GEN. SU AND TROOPS INTERNED IN RUUSSIA

portation of his troops in Soviet territory, it was said. Being refused, he reportedly threatened to use force. The message said Chinese soldiers, acting under orders of their officers, then dispatched the trains on their own initiative.

Immediately upon arrival on the Soviet side, all soldiers and officers were reported interned. Civil servants and families from the rebel seat at Manchuli were also reported fleeing across the line.

Taitsihar, Manchuria, Dec. 5 (U.P.). Japanese troops, pushing forward against Chinese forces under Gen. Su Ping-Wen, entered the walled city of Hailar near the Siberian border today.

London, Dec. 5 (U.P.).—The Exchange Telegraph Agency's correspondent at Harbin, Manchuria, reported today that many villages in the vicinity of Hailar are being razed by Japanese bombing planes, and that Hailar itself is under heavy bombardment.

Japanese airplanes, the dispatch said, made a fateful error in bombarding a number of their own trucks and killing five Russian chauffeurs.

Two Japanese planes were forced down in a snowstorm, the correspondent said, and are believed to have been destroyed.

Japanese infantry, according to the dispatch, is trying unsuccessfully to reach Hingan tunnel.

Motorist Gets 9 Months In Automobile Fatality

Gettysburg, Pa., Dec. 5 (A.P.).—Pleading no defense to a charge of manslaughter, Raymond L. Horn, of Pillonville, Ohio, today was sentenced to nine months in the Adams County Jail. He was sentenced also to a term of two months, to run concurrently, on a charge of driving while intoxicated.

Both charges resulted from an automobile accident August 28 in which George H. Bowers, of Martinsburg, W. Va., was killed.

Steamer in Sand, Cargo Jettisoned.

Astoria, Oreg., Dec. 5 (A.P.).—While a flock of squat, powerful tugboats and Coast Guard cutters strained at heavy hawsers, the freighter Sea Thrush, of the Shepard Line, remained in the grasp of the sands at the mouth of the Columbia River today. Mariners said there was some hope the large steamer could be moved. Its deck cargo of green lumber was jettisoned.

New York, Dec. 5 (A.P.).—From now on figure "3" is out of Fred Buckley's numerology—"all washed up," as he put it.

Buckley went on trial in Federal Court today on a charge of attempting to extort money from Phillips H. Lord, the "Seth Parker" of the radio. His trial lasted three hours. The prosecutor summed up in three minutes. Judge Patterson charged the jury for three minutes. The jury went out and came back in three minutes.

And Buckley was sentenced to three years in Atlanta Penitentiary.

SHERWOOD WON'T GO TO INQUIRY, HE SAYS

Plans European Voyage, He Tells North Carolinian, Baring Kidnaping.

Winston-Salem, N. C., Dec. 5 (A.P.). Russell T. Sherwood was quoted by Cardis J. Walker, tax consultant here, late today as having said he had no intention of returning to New York to face the Hofstadter investigating committee as witness in its inquiry into the New York City government.

Walker revealed today that the erstwhile business agent of James J. Walker, former New York Mayor, came to Winston-Salem on November 23, and after identifying himself as the long-missing witness in the legislative committee's investigation, engaged the tax consultant to handle some income tax matters with the United States Government.

The next day, Walker said, he accompanied Sherwood to Roanoke, Va., where they parted, the former saying he planned to go to Canada and take a ship for Europe.

Was Held Captive.

A story of having been held captive from June to October on a New Mexico ranch was told by Sherwood, Walker said. According to this account, Sherwood escaped with the aid of a Mexican woman.

"He seemed entirely absorbed in getting his private affairs straightened out," said Walker, who added he had neither heard from nor seen his client since their separation in the Virginia city ten days ago.

Cardis Walker explained he had been employed to make an investigation concerning assessments, liens and penalties filed against Sherwood by the collector of internal revenue in New York.

Accused by Seabury.

During attempts to locate Sherwood, Samuel Seabury, chief counsel of the legislative committee, charged that the then New York mayor was obstructing the investigation by keeping Sherwood out of jurisdiction of the committee and, after Sherwood was located in Mexico City and again in San Antonio, Tex. the case was taken to the Supreme Court, where the missing man was adjudged in contempt and fined $50,000. Property, cash, real estate and securities belonging to him were seized.

During this time, however, Sherwood told Cardis Walker when he passed through Winston-Salem several days ago that he was held captive on a ranch in northern New Mexico, a ranch he said was owned by powerful New York commercial and political interests.

Advised to Stay Away.

Walker said Sherwood told him he had been advised to remain away from New York during the first part of the year, but that he was taken prisoner as the Democratic national convention convened in Chicago.

The former associate of New York's former mayor told his newly acquired counsel here that he was held on the ranch until October, when, with the help of a Mexican woman, he escaped by grabbing a guard's gun and holding him off while the couple got an automobile.

Sherwood told Walker they fled and that he was on his way to Canada, where he would take a boat for Europe. Sherwood advanced the theory that he was held on the ranch by persons who did not want him to appear before the investigating committee and added, according to Walker:

"Jimmie Walker did not need me to answer for his financial transactions, he knew all about them."

Walker said Sherwood came to him without preliminaries, made himself known, gave him instructions regarding the fight for Sherwood's "rights" and then left for Canada.

The accountant said the Government has filed liens of between $60,000 and $80,000, including fines, for Sherwood's alleged failure to report income taxes from 1926 to 1930. When Sherwood's property was seized, it included $5,000 in cash and three bunches of securities, the latter of which brought $310 at auction.

Cardis Walker is official auditor for Winston-Salem and Forsythe County and head of a firm of tax consultants and accountants.

Fingerprints Convict Man At Rockville of Larceny

Constitute Sole Evidence Before Jury; Chicken Thief Is Sentenced to 30 Months on Four Charges; Pair Guilty of Stealing Watches.

With fingerprint evidence introduced by the recently created Identification Bureau of Montgomery County Police as the sole evidence against the accused, a jury in Montgomery County Circuit Court at Rockville last night convicted Samuel Levi Hill, colored, of Sandy Spring, Md., on a charge of housebreaking and larceny.

Hill was charged with having broken into the store of Charles Edward Hill at Brinklow, Md., and to have taken $40 in cash and merchandise. Fingerprints found on the broken glass of the window through which entry was gained were found to coincide with those of Hill which were in the records of the county bureau.

Detective Theodore Vollten, in charge of the bureau, testified that the prints were those of Hill and produced enlarged photographs in support of his allegation. His statements were supported by Lieut. Fred Sandberg, of the Washington Police Department. The conviction was the first important case in which the work of the Fingerprint Bureau had resulted in a conviction without other evidence in support, and was the source of much satisfaction to police officials, who have promised great things from the bureau.

Dora Hopkins, colored, pleaded guilty, and Charles Thomas, colored, was found guilty of the theft of two gold watches from Miss Helen Farquhar and Miss Helen Hallowell, of Sandy Spring, and each was sentenced to serve one year in jail. Daniel C. Gaither, colored, who pleaded guilty to four charges of stealing chickens, was sentenced to serve 30 months in the House of Correction.

MRS. E. B. LEWIS, 51, BURIED IN ARLINGTON

Missionary to Gold Coast of Africa Was Victim of Black Water Fever.

Victim of a fever contracted on the Gold Coast of Africa, Mrs. Estella Babcock Lewis, 51 years old, was buried yesterday afternoon in Arlington Cemetery, a martyr to missionary work among natives of the Dark Continent.

For seven long years Mrs. Lewis battled at the side of her husband, William H. Lewis, to regenerate the idol worshippers of "The White Man's Grave." During this long period she fought on despite repeated attacks of a deadly form of malaria and black water fever.

After suffering numerous attacks of the latter disease, Mrs. Lewis was ordered back to this country by physicians. For five years she sought recovery in Huntsville, Ala., where she acted as matron and teacher in the Oakwood Junior College. Then she came to Washington to live with her two daughters in Takoma Park. Several weeks ago she became seriously ill, and died last Saturday at Washington Sanitarium.

Born in Van Wert, Ohio, Mrs. Lewis took a course in nursing at the Battle Creek Sanitarium in Michigan, after which she joined her parents who were missionaries in British Guiana. After her marriage she accepted a call from the foreign mission board of the Seventh Day Adventist Church to go to Sierra Leone, West Africa. While in Africa she spent seven years on the gold coast.

Prior to the burial yesterday afternoon services were held at the Takoma Park Seventh Day Adventist Church, where the Rev. B. G. Wilkinson delivered a tribute to the memory of the missionary. In Arlington Mrs. Lewis was laid to rest by the side of her father, who died a year ago. Prof. C. A. Russell was in charge of the burial service.

Mrs. Lewis is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Kathryn Kahl and Miss Doris Lewis, of Takoma Park, and Mrs. Alma Kilmer, of New York City.

Rev. Gaston Payne Dies at Baltimore

Priest Well-Known in Virginia Has Sister Living in Alexandria.

Baltimore, Dec. 5 (A.P.).—For the last six years an invalid, the Rev. Gaston Payne, a Catholic priest, died at the Jenkins Memorial of St. Agnes Hospital here today.

The 74-year-old priest had been in the priesthood for 43 years, with his last pastorate at Clifton Forge, Va., where he was stationed for 20 years. Prior to that he had done missionary work in Virginia, his native State, under the Paulist fathers.

Andrew J. Brennan, Bishop of Richmond, will officiate at a requiem mass for Father Payne in the Cathedral at 10 o'clock a. m., tomorrow. Burial will be at Bonnie Brae Cemetery. He is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Cora Schreiber, of Baltimore, and Mrs. Thomas Marshall Jones, of Alexandria, Va., and a brother, John Carroll Payne, of Atlanta Ga.

MRS. K. S. THEISS RITES.

Widow of Naval Officer is Buried in Arlington Cemetery.

Funeral services for Mrs. Katherine Seymour Theiss, widow of Capt. Emil Theiss, U. S. N., were held yesterday afternoon in the Arlington National Cemetery. Mrs. Theiss died at the home of her brother-in-law, Capt. A. F. Huntington, U. S. N., at Norfolk, Va., December 1.

Lieut. Stanton W. Salisbury, chaplain corps, U. S. N., officiated at the services. Capt. Theiss, who died at the local Naval Hospital in 1917, had served on the Navy board of appraisal of enemy vessels in New York and was a member of the oard conducting the trials of the submarine L5 in Provincetown, Mass.

Mrs. Theiss is survived by her son, Lieut. Comdr. Paul S. Theiss, U. S. N., of Washington, and her daughter, Mrs. C. C. Gill, of Quantico, Va.

D. I. HORAN OBSEQUIES.

Will Be Held at His Home at 9:30 Tomorrow Morning.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow at his home at 717 Second street northeast for Daniel I. Horan, who died Sunday at his home at the age of 36. The service will be at 9:30 o'clock at the home, followed by requiem mass at 10 o'clock at St. Aloysius Church. He will be buried in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Mr. Horan, an employe of the District Refuse Department, is survived by his three brothers, Michael, Cornelius, and Aloysius Horan, all of Washington.

St. Gabriel's Circus Opens at Grant Circle

Amid gay decorations and with a holiday crowd on hand, the Prosperity Circus of St. Gabriel's Church opened last night at Grant Circle.

An occasional chair was the award of the evening.

The circus, which is being conducted for the benefit of St. Gabriel's Church, will be open every night this week from 7 to 10 o'clock. A one-ring circus, a house of fun and a Santa Claus are among the many attractions.

Dr. Richmond to Sing Scotch Songs Tonight

The lilting melody of the border ballads of old Scottish bards will be heard by the John Quincy Adams School Parent-Teacher Association at 8 o'clock tonight when Dr. Charles A. Richmond, president emeritus of Union College at Schenectady, N. Y., will deliver a lecture on Scotch ballads, singing some of the songs and playing his own accompaniment.

Dr. Richmond is a former student of George Washington University and lives here when not traveling. He is the author of "The Four Winds" and other poems. He is leaving for South America tomorrow.

Prince Toumaneff to Drop Title.

Boston, Dec. 5 (A.P.).—A former general in the Russian imperial army will renounce his royal title next Monday and become plain citizen Leo Constantine Toumaneff. For four years Prince Toumaneff has been a librarian at the Harvard College Business School in Cambridge. He filed his intention of becoming a citizen in 1926 and will become naturalized in Federal District Court Monday.

GUY LOMBARDO TAKES ADVANCE PEEP AT NEW DODGE SIX

New York, N. Y.—Guy Lombardo, personable leader of one of America's most famous dance orchestras, and musical idol of the younger set, deserted his baton today for an advance showing of the new Dodge Six.

"It's a hit!" was the enthusiastic comment of the rhythm king afterwards. And since Mr. Lombardo has been responsible for some of the biggest hits in the song world, his statement may be considered prophetic.

"The new Dodge Six will click with everybody who wants a smart, youthful car that is sporty and smooth. And it's so peppy! It has the zip and go of a snappy fox-trot, combined with the gliding ease of a dreamy waltz. It has everything the public wants—good looks, impressive power, flashing speed and brilliant performance. And when you add to that the amazing value represented by this great car you've got a combination that will take the country by storm."

GUY LOMBARDO

Although details of the new car have not yet been officially released by the Dodge organization, it is known that Dodge is ready to spring a real surprise when the new car is formally presented to the public. According to reports, the new Dodge Six is going to be offered with an astounding array of features, at a radical low price which will completely upset all established standards of automobile value.

REPEAL BLOCKED.

Failure of Speaker Garner's resolution seems to close the door against repeal of the eighteenth amendment by action of the present Congress. Six votes were sufficient to put the measure on the shelf until the new Congress assembles some time after March 4. Further agitation of the issue at the present session would be a waste of scarce and valuable time.

Speaker Garner's resolution failed because a considerable number of so-called wets in both parties do not favor outright repeal, even though they would support a new amendment forbidding return of the saloon and guaranteeing protection to the dry States. This does not mean, of course, that an amendment carrying out the Republican policy would have been adopted. A large number of wets would vote against any resolution which did not propose outright repeal. The issue is not so much repeal but the type of amendment that shall be substituted for the eighteenth.

If a repeal resolution is taken up in the Senate at this session, this controversy will be magnified. The chances for pushing an outright repeal measure through the present Senate are negligible. More than one-third of the Senate membership is classified as dry by anti-prohibition organizations. The only possibility of securing a favorable vote on repeal in the Senate would be the presentation of a compromise measure. This in turn would be objectionable to the House. Speaker Garner announces that he will not submit to the House any measure that does not provide for direct repeal.

Eighty of the 144 representatives who voted against repeal will be absent when Congress convenes some time in 1933. Presumably the House will then have no trouble in passing a repeal resolution in harmony with the Democratic platform. In an effort to prevent the enactment of any measure that would preserve Federal control over the liquor traffic, the outright repealists may now be expected to discourage any further action until the new Congress has assembled.

Attention will now center upon efforts to modify the Volstead act. Yesterday's vote revealed extensive gains on the wet side. A beer bill doubtless will pass the House with little difficulty, unless it is an obvious infringement upon the eighteenth amendment. The fate of the beer measure in the Senate is less certain. Questions of revenue may delay consideration until late in the session. And any beer bill faces the danger of a veto. Thus it is possible that all liquor legislation will fail at this session.

Yesterday's vote, by virtually preventing passage of a repeal resolution at this session, makes an extra session next spring more than probable. The heavy wet majority in the Seventy-third Congress will demand that repeal shall not be postponed until next December.

SOVIET RELATIONS.

Among the problems which Gov. Roosevelt has been studying is recognition of Soviet Russia. Apparently he has not decided what attitude his administration will take toward the Soviet. He is examining the cases for and against recognition with a good deal of study and analysis.

One group is trying to induce Gov. Roosevelt to consider this issue as a cold business proposition. These interests wish to sell machinery and industrial equipment to the Soviet on more favorable terms, and they assume that large orders would be forthcoming if the American government would receive an ambassador from Moscow. That hope is largely a delusion, since the biggest problem of the Soviet at present is credit. Regardless of what the Roosevelt administration might do with respect to diplomatic relations, it is inconceivable that this Government would take any action toward the extension of credit to the Moscow dictatorship.

Most of the Soviet's industrial purchases are now made in Germany on long-term credit. The German government guarantees its manufacturers against loss in these dealings up to a certain percentage. Since the Soviet requires credit wherever it buys, it can not be supposed that mere recognition would greatly extend the Russian market for American goods.

Commercial profits are not the foremost issue, however, in dealing with the Soviet. The question which must confront any administration studying this question is whether or not the Soviet can assume those international obligations which entitle it to recognition as a friendly power. Foremost among the reasons why the United States has held aloof from the Moscow government is the dissemination of Communist propaganda designed to overturn the American Government. No regime which fosters a subversive movement to destroy a neighboring government is entitled to diplomatic intercourse with the intended victim.

Reports from Moscow say that the Soviet is placing less emphasis upon propaganda. Dictator Stalin has come to believe that it is practical to develop Communism in Russia without simultaneously producing revolution throughout the world. But the idea of revolutionary propaganda has by no means been abandoned. The special work of communizing foreign nations is entrusted to the Third International, which is under the domination of the Russian Communist party just as is the Bolshevist government. In spite of the realization in Moscow that world revolution is too big a job for a dictatorship that can't keep the wolf from its own door, red propaganda is still disseminated throughout the world.

THE VAGRANT HORDE.

Exposure, growing scarcity of food, and rigorous police surveillance are increasing the ugly temper of the horde of vagrants brought to this District by Communist organizers. Today was scheduled for a demonstration by the so-called "hunger marchers," but denial of a parade permit has led to a petition for an injunction to restrain the District authorities from interfering with the parade. A hearing on this petition will be given on Thursday, and the agitators leading the vagrant army seem to be determined to hold their dupes here, notwithstanding discomfort and danger of disease.

A cold snap would subject the campers to danger of an epidemic, as well as suffering from exposure. The city's health is jeopardized by the threat of an influenza epidemic originating in the Communist camp.

The police patrol holds the campers within bounds, but an attempt to break through the cordon may occur at any time.

The marchers can leave without molestation whenever they wish to do so. Their leaders apparently have money with which to buy gasoline and food. The present conditions are of their making. If food and shelter are provided for the invaders they will become a charge upon the community for an indefinite time. If denied aid they must perforce clear out of the District.

Public opinion will support the Police Department in holding the campers strictly within bounds until they take the back trail. Householders are apprehensive of an outbreak which would scatter these greasy marauders throughout the city. Public safety requires that the demand for a parade permit should be denied. No doubt the court will decide that the District Commissioners have full discretion to deny permits for parades which might cause disorder and violence.

A day or two of rigid control of this army should bring about a retreat. A weakening of public authority at this time would probably precipitate the riots which the Communists are trying to provoke.

FOREIGN WHEAT BOUNTIES.

Ordinarily prizes and bonuses paid to farmers in Italy would attract no interest in this country. But when wheat is selling on many western farms for 10 cents per bushel and Italian farmers are obtaining rewards for having produced wheat at $1.50 per bushel, the relationship between these circumstances can not be overlooked.

Seven years ago Premier Mussolini took over the leadership of a movement to increase the production of wheat in Italy. Wheat can be imported to Italy much cheaper than it can be grown. Even though prices amounting to more than three times the world price have been maintained, Italian wheat growers are not very prosperous. Premier Mussolini attaches military rather than economic importance to Italy's wheat crop. Foreign wheat is largely excluded by a high tariff wall and drastic restrictions that require each miller to use a large percentage of domestic wheat in his flour.

To stimulate wheat-growing the government has just awarded $100,000 in prizes. Vast sums have also been used to finance wheat farmers, to build grain elevators, to organize cooperative associations, and to instruct farmers in scientific agriculture. As a result Italy this year produced 92 per cent of the wheat she will need for domestic consumption.

Similar policies have almost closed the markets of France and Germany to American wheat. These countries are making a desperate effort to supply their own needs for staple crops for strategic reasons. Prospects of extending the American foreign market are, therefore, extremely limited. Relief for the farmer must come from the domestic market.

It is this situation which has turned public opinion in this country in favor of reducing production to domestic needs. With Europe stimulating uneconomical production through bounties, special rewards, tariffs and quotas, some action to assist the American farmer is imperative. When the laws of supply and demand have been set aside by European governments, Congress can not afford to stand by and see the American farmer sink deeper into ruin. The situation seems to justify drastic measures.

If Congress can work out a plan of raising prices for crops grown for domestic use without putting a siphon into the Treasury, without defeating its own purpose by increasing production, and without entailing bureaucratic control over agriculture, it will doubtless be supported by public opinion. American farmers are confronted with a dire emergency, and emergency measures will have to be taken to cope with it.

CONTROL OF THE G. O. P.

Now that Gov. Gifford Pinchot has unburdened his soul on the subject of reorganizing the Republican party, the movement to have the tail wag the Elephant is in full swing. The Pennsylvania executive seconds Senator Hiram Johnson's call for a new deal within the Republican party by demanding a "complete reconstruction and change of purpose." The so-called Progressives are making a strong bid to capture leadership of the G. O. P.

This wave of enthusiasm on the part of the insurgents springs from the defeat of the Republican party last November. By some curious twist of reasoning they think that the election gave them a mandate to take control of the Republican party and make it the sponsor of their own program. Forgetting the fate of Senators Brookhart and Blaine, they vision a future Republican party triumphant in that sort of radicalism which the people repudiated even in the depression year 1932.

The only full-fledged insurgents who came up for reelection in November were denied even the opportunity of matching their strength against Democratic candidates. They were overwhelmingly repudiated in the Republican primaries. In Wisconsin the La Follette regime was crushed. Iowa was unmercifully harsh with Senator Brookhart, both in the primaries and in the election, which he entered as an independent. South Dakota reelected Senator Norbeck and North Dakota returned Senator Nye, but they did not openly knife their party. They represent only the fringe of senatorial insurgency.

Most of the aggressive insurgents do not have to face the electorate until 1934. It is too early to forecast what their fate may be, but indications are that some will be driven across the party line into the Democratic fold, some will be retired, and others will submit to the new Republican leadership to save themselves. The task of the insurgents in trying to take control of the Republican party and convert it to their theories would be more difficult than creating a new party. The very fact that Gov. Pinchot is making a bid for Republican leadership will spur the regular Republicans to reorganize the party in such manner as to eliminate the insurgents.

If Great Britain should agree to pay her war debt this year in cruisers, she would kill two birds with one stone. Bird No. 1 would be the British admiralty; bird No. 2, the American taxpayers, and the stone, surprise.

If Colorado has any more lame ducks who would like to sign the Senate register, she ought not to detain them merely because the Waterman-Walker-Schuyler term will end in March.

March 4 will go down in history as the beginning of the lame duck depression.

Lame ducks couldn't bear to see even repeal go naked in this weather.

From the Houston Post.

Whatever else fate may hold for the incoming Roosevelt administration, it is already settled that it will be the most adequately and magnificently housed administration in the history of the Nation. The great public building program under way in Washington will be about complete by the time Mr. Roosevelt enters his second year as President. There will be much moving to new quarters, and the Federal Government "plant" will probably be the most extensive and the finest in the world.

The idea of erecting in Washington new buildings to house various governmental departments was conceived a number of years ago, or long before the matter of governmental building in order to relieve unemployment was claiming attention. The original purpose merely was to erect the buildings that were needed to house the expanding departments of the Federal Government. It was contemplated, of course, that the new structures would add to the architectural beauty of the Capital, and the buildings were planned with the view of contributing to civic attractiveness. The purpose has been faithfully carried out.

The Federal building program in the Capital has been stepped up some as a result of the Government's desire to have a direct part in expanding employment. Unnecessary structures are not being erected, but construction of those needed is being advanced in order that more work may be provided for labor at this time.

About $43,000,000 is being expended on the structures now in process of erection. The Department of Justice Building will cost $12,000,000, the Postoffice Department Building $10,300,000 and the Interstate Commerce Commission Building $11,250,000. The Supreme Court Building, the corner stone of which was laid the other day, will cost about $10,000,000. The Department of Commerce Building, one of the largest in the world, and one of the finest, cost $17,000,000.

It will be the good fortune of the Democratic national administration to be the first to occupy these new departmental buildings. An added incentive to become a member of Mr. Roosevelt's Cabinet is the prospect several Cabinet officers will have of being ensconced in the new and magnificent quarters now in process of preparation.

POST HASTE

This Congress just didn't have the heart to take repeal glory away from the seventy-third.

This is the President's opportunity to tell Congress what's what, take it or leave it.

Senator Cutting says independent Republicans neither fear punishment nor seek favors. Nobility is its own reward.

Hunger marchers are no more practical than their legislative proposals. For the price of trucks, gasoline and canned goods they could have hired sleeping cars with buffet service.

If Herr Hitler's name were Von Schleicher he might have an opportunity of becoming Germany's Mussolini.

An elected president was actually inaugurated in Ecuador yesterday, but it took John of God Martinez to turn the trick.

What hope is there that the lame ducks are going to accomplish more in three months than they did in seven with underpinning intact?

Al Smith proposed such a good plan for governing New York that the metropolis proposes to sentence him to carry it out.

Care must be taken to prevent the Grangers, who are fighting for the allotment plan, and the Farm Leaguers, who demand the equalization fee, from marching on Washington at the same time.

That other grand old Republican, Giff Pinchot, is also about to read the Republican party out of the party. It is Senator Cutting's turn.

Senator Thomas is still complaining that there is not enough real money in circulation, so he proposes the addition of a lot of unreal money as a remedy.

Jimmy Walker announces from the Riviera that he has quit politics Doubtless you have experienced the illusion of a train beside yours moving and thinking you were moving.

Three months lame ducks are all outdistanced by Senator Walker, who, without a leg to stand on, flies from Colorado for a three-day term.

Is beer glad it only has to reach its majority? PAUL HUDSON.

THE WAY OF ROBINS.

I wonder if the mother robin dreads
the coming day
When she must tell her babies from the nest to fly away,
I wonder if the father robin worries
when they go
To battle in the world themselves—but that we'll never know.

I've watched them in the springtime teach their little ones to fly,
I've known the day was coming when they'd say to them, good-by,
And I've wondered if the mother didn't wish they'd stay about
So she could still assist them when the father turned them out.

The robins guard their children while they're young and very small,
The mother hovers near them just to answer every call,
But feathered and full-grown at last,
their time of training through,
They must work for food and shelter as their parents had to do.

I've watched the parent robins teach their little ones to fly,
I've watched them drive them from the nest and often wondered why,
But robins have no money and no
stocks and bonds to leave,
And so they have to teach their young to struggle and achieve.

Your Fields Suffer if Another Man Plows With Your Heifer

By ROBERT QUILLEN

DESPITE the antiquated laws that prevent combination, business and industry now operate on a scale so vast that no individual or partnership can hope to possess enough money to finance it.

The American Telephone & Telegraph Co., for example, is the chief investment of many rich people, yet no individual or firm owns more than 1 per cent of it.

Business has become so big, and its need of capital so great, that it has been forced to accept a form of public ownership. Its life depends on the cooperation of small investors.

Legitimate industry doesn't form stock companies because it wishes to share a good thing with the public. It does what it is forced to do. It needs millions of dollars for expansion and development, and the only way to get the money is to sell the public a share of the business.

Contrary to popular belief, the wealth of America is still the property of the "common people." The savings of the teacher, the farmer, the dentist or the grocer may not exceed $5,000, but when this sum is multiplied by several million it becomes a vast reservoir of wealth. And this is the source from which business and industry must obtain capital for development.

Since this is true, and since it is equally true that every citizen's welfare depends on the condition of business and industry, the very life of the Nation depends on the small investor's confidence in the integrity of "big business."

That confidence has been shaken. It must be rebuilt. And the quickest way to rebuild it is to make the issue and sale of worthless stock as hazardous as the counterfeiting of money.

The public must be protected from every form of swindle.

As this is written, itinerant agents are peddling a certain popular industrial stock at $22.50. A prominent physician and a judge, both better informed than the average small investor, bought hundreds of shares at that price. Yet the stock was then available in the New York exchange at $1.75.

It isn't enough to say that the buyer should beware. If you must have eggs, why permit anybody to make the hens so wild they will hide their nests?

POLITICAL COMMENT

Looking Ahead.

New York Times.

The great training school for the Presidency is the governor's office. Every governor is a presidential possibility. But today the Democrats have about 40 out of 48 governors. Of the twenty biggest States, no less than seventeen have Democratic governors; in two others the governor is Farmer-Labor and Pinchot, and just one, California, has a regular Republican governor. Except in Massachusetts, which has an election next year, no dazzling Republican figure has a chance to blaze across the State horizon until 1935. Republican preparations for the war of revenge in 1936 will have to be concentrated for the next two years in Congress.

But more than two years ahead there is no use in looking. If business picks up, the enormous amount of Democratic talent at Washington and in the States will be like an army with banners. If wheat and wages remain what they are, Fate will provide the Republicans with an availability.

The Fight Hasn't Begun.

Hutchinson News.

It is our own idea that if you think you've seen a wet and dry argument in the country in the past few years you ain't seen nothin' yet. We predict a battle royal in the coming year or two.

Helping the Cubans.

Sioux Falls (S. Dak.) Argus-Leader.

A New Yorker suggests that the tariff on sugar be lowered. This, he contends, would provide some money for Cubans so that they could buy American automobiles and other manufactured products. But what's wrong with protecting our home market so that the beet sugar farmers of South Dakota, Nebraska, Minnesota and other States can buy American automobiles? Their money should be just as good as that of the Cubans. If the sugar tariff is eliminated, it means that the sugar beet industry in the United States will fade away, removing one source of rural income.

It Can't Be Done Forever.

Detroit News.

Since deficits took on proportions to terrify even the optimistic, people have begun to ask why Government expenditures grow faster than a snowball rolling down hill. Karl W. Miller, who has been watching the wheels go around in Washington, says the phenomenon is explainable by the fact that Congress pays no attention to the budget when creating new activities that cost big money, and the administration when preparing the budget makes no proposals as to how the money is to be raised.

Something nearly parallel would obtain in a large family using a charge account in a store if every member bought whatever took his or her fancy and the head of the family paid with checks without any reference to the bank balance.

Senator Glass for Treasury.

Boston Transcript.

Reports that President-elect Roosevelt will offer the post of Secretary of the Treasury to Senator Carter Glass, of Virginia, are welcome, in their implication that the next President will confirm the prophecies of his friends and appoint one of the strongest cabinets that have served an administration for many years. William G. McAdoo, also a former Secretary of the Treasury, following his election to the Senate from California, spiked the report that he might enter the Cabinet in his old position, saying that he preferred to serve in the Senate.

Get Out and Stay Out.

Glenwood (Minn.) Herald.

This Government of ours was created to serve. Instead of serving, it is now competing in various lines of endeavor with business and professional men who support it with their taxes. It is outrageous to compel taxpayers to face the competititn of the Government which they themselves support. The Government should get but of private business and stay out.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Complains of Unkempt Condition of City's Streets—Danger of Infection From Germ-Laden Dust.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The National Capital is certainly a disgrace to the Nation, in one instance at least. Strolling along the streets of the downtown section on a pleasant Sunday like today, one is greeted every few steps by odd pieces of papers and newspapers laden with germ-infected dust blown in one's face by each gust of wind. Where the wind rises a little, cigarette and cigar stubs join in this unwelcome greeting and add to the danger of nose, throat and lung infection.

We boast of knowing something of hygiene and we even teach it in our schools. Students are taught how to be clean and how to be careful of germicidal infection. We pay taxes and have a Board of Health, but when all is said and done, we find the very streets just the reverse of what we have taught about sanitation and health. It is truly no wonder that the death rate runs so high in the District of Columbia. Those who have seen Paris and other foreign capitals know that such a dangerous condition never would be allowed there.

Is there no way that we could be really civilized in the sense of health protection, which is so vital to our weakened race?

HENRY BURR, Ph. D.

Edgewater Man Does Not See Any Profit in Raising Pine Trees.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I have read your report of the meeting of President-elect Roosevelt with the Southern Forestry Commisaion. It does not seem possible that he could have made such statements. He says it would take $6,000,000 to convert the poor lands of New York State into forest areas. He must mean for the purchase of land alone. Even that would mean about $1.50 an acre. It will take twenty years to produce a marketable pine tree, at which time you could probably get 40 cords of wood at a value of $2.50 per cord, or $100 for the use of the land for twenty years.

But it will cost nearly $100 to prepare the land and get the trees in growing condition. Besides, it will take good land to produce trees. Of course you have the stumps left after the twenty years. It will only cost you about $100 to pull up the stumps and get your land back to where it was twenty years before. The last paragraph of the article which was quoted, purporting to be the language of the President-elect, ought to satisfy any one who advocates reforestation. It is as follows: "We are finding new uses for pines. I hope that some day some one will find a new use for black jack oak, because I've got a lot of it." J. K. B.

All of the District Is Federal Territory—Antimob Legislation Should Be Enacted.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The invasion of the Communist marchers may do some good if it makes John Citizen fully realize that the relationship of the District of Columbia to the National Government was wisely provided for.

The Communist organizers of the so-called hunger march may have an idea that the Capitol Grounds and the White House Grounds comprise the only Federal territory of the District. If so, they should be made aware of their mistake.

The Congress has constitutional power "to exercise exclusive legislation to all cases whatsoever" over the District of Columbia. I think the Congress should at once pass such antimob regulations as will make it plain that all of the District is Federal territory.

Discontented groups proposing to enter the District under anti-American leadership should be regulated by the Federal arm.

The law should be strong enough to prevent any unwieldy delegation of petitioners from using any portion of the District as a vantage ground from which to disturb the peace and quiet of the National Legislature and the Executive Mansion.

If Prohibition Is Repealed What About Mixing Alcohol and Gasoline?—Sees Highway Wrecks and Killings.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I hope you have space in your good paper for a few views on prohibition from an old-time wet.

Before we had national prohibition the number of automobiles was not one-fifth as many as today. Also they had a speed average of about one-half the speed of today. We have no business mixing booze, even light wine and beer, with gasoline. If we do so we will soon junk the automobile business and hundreds of thousands of lives will be snuffed out by highway wrecks and other hundreds of thousands will be maimed for life. HARRY B. TABER.

Derides Radio Programs—Few Worth While Programs, but an Increase in Jazz, Trash and Advertising.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: This is the day of "exes"—ex-wives, ex-husbands, ex-convicts—and I am rapidly becoming an ex-radio fan. In this, our third winter of depression, when so many people are dependent for their amusement on the family radio, I think it is a severe indictment of the radio industry that they have allowed their programs to become so trashy. Fewer and fewer worth while programs and more and more jazz and advertising are offered us.

Mrs. Hoover Guest At Little Cabinet Luncheon.

MRS. HOOVER WAS THE honor guest at a luncheon yesterday given at the Washington Club of wives of members of the "Little Cabinet," which is composed of under and assistant secretaries of the various governmental departments. The party is the first this winter of this group and the company included Mrs. William R. Castle, Mrs. Wilbur J. Carr, Mrs. Francis White, Mrs. James Grafton Rogers, Mrs. Harvey H. Bundy, Mrs. Arthur A. Ballantine, Mrs. Seymour Lowman, Mrs. James H. Douglas, Mrs. Frederick H. Payne, Mrs. Ernest Lee Jahncke, Mrs. Thomas D. Thacher, Mrs. John Lord O'Brian, Mrs. Aaron Youngquist, Mrs. Charles B. Rugg, Mrs. Charles P. Sisson, Mrs. Seth W. Richardson, Mrs. Roy St. Lewis, Mrs. Charles D. Lawrence, Mrs. Arch Coleman, Mrs. Frederic A. Tilton, Mrs. Joseph M. Dixon, Mrs. R. W. Dunlap, Mrs. Julius Klein and Mrs. W. W. Husband.

Mrs. Ogden L. Mills, wife of the Secretary of the Treasury, will entertain at luncheon today in honor of Mrs. Hoover when the guests will be the ladies of the Cabinet.

Mrs. Mills will be assisted at her at home tomorrow afternoon by Representative Ruth Baker Pratt, Mrs. James F. Parker, Mrs. Hamilton Fish, jr., Mrs. Arthur Ballantine, Mrs. James H. Douglas, jr., and Mrs. Robert L. Bacon.

The Vice President, Mr. Charles Curtis, entertained a small party at luncheon yesterday, following the opening of Congress. Mrs. Gann acted as hostess for her brother.

The galleries of both the Senate and the House were well filled by interested Washingtonians. Many luncheon parties followed in the Senate dining room, where the members of the Congress joined their families and guests.

The Speaker of the House and Mrs. John N. Garner returned almost immediately to their offices, where they enjoyed an informal luncheon.

Of particular interest was the presence of Viscountess Astor, member of the British Parliament, who is visiting in this country. Lady Astor, who was formerly Miss Nancy Langhorne, of Virginia, accompanied Mrs. Reed, wife of Senator David A. Reed, with whom she is staying.

Lady Lindsay, wife of the Ambassador of Great Britain, heads the list of patronesses for the bridge party to be given Saturday by the Queen Elizabeth Chapter of the Daughters of the British Empire at the Washington Club.

Cuban Ambassador Honored With Dinner.

The Ambassador of Cuba and Senora de Cintas were the guests in whose honor the Counselor of the Embassy and Senora de Baron entertained at dinner last evening at the Mayflower. The other guests were the Minister of Ecuador and Senora de Zaldumbide, Representative and Mrs. Fred A. Britten, the Charge d'Affaires of Mexico and Senora de Campos-Ortiz, the chief of the Latin American Division of the State Department, Mr. Edwin C. Wilson; the Counselor of the Polish Embassy and Mme. Sokolowski, the Counselor of the Czechoslovak Legation and Mme. Skalicky, Mr. Harrison Matthews, the First Secretary of the Peruvian Embassy, Dr. Juan Mendoza Almenara; the First Secretary of the Argentine Embassy and Senora de Urquiza, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Norment, Lieut. Col. and Mrs. M. Robert Guggenheim, the First Secretary of the Cuban Embassy and Senora de Guell, the Military Attache of the Cuban Embassy and Senora de Prieto, Miss Vera Bloom, Miss Laura Tuckerman, and Senorita Rebeoca Alfaro.

Senora de Prieto is the guest in whose honor Miss Julia Teresa Sheridan will entertain at luncheon tomorrow following the first of Mrs. Townsend's morning musicales at the Mayflower.

Mrs. Charles Francis Adams, wife of the Secretary of the Navy, will not receive tomorrow afternoon, but will be at home on Wednesday afternoon, December 14.

Mrs. Roy D. Chapin, wife of the Secretary of Commerce, will be at home tomorrow afternoon at their home, 1627 New Hampshire avenue, when she will be assisted by Mrs. Arthur A. Vandenberg, wife of Senator Vandenberg; Mrs. Robert Patterson Lamont, wife of the former Secretary of Commerce; Mrs. Stark McMullin and Mrs. Herbert Feis.

The Minister of Finland, Mr. L. Astrom, will entertain at a reception this afternoon in celebration of the fifteenth anniversary of Finland's independence.

The Minister of the Irish Free State and Mrs. Michael MacWhite had with them in their box at the opening night of the Abbey Players of Dublin last night Justice and Mrs. Harlan Fiske Stone and the Minister of Norway and Mme. Bachke.

Mme. Simopoulos, wife of the Minister of Greece, returned to Washington yesterday after spending the weekend in New York with Mrs. Ogden L. Mills, wife of the Secretary of the Treasury.

Representative Martin J. Kennedy and Representative Joseph Gavagan, of New York City, have arrived in Washington and are at the Carlton.

Representative and Mrs. William L. Tierney arrived here from their home in Greenwich, Conn., yesterday, and have opened their apartment at Wardman Park Hotel, where they will be in residence until Christmas.

Representative and Mrs. O. B. Burtness have arrived in Washington from their home in Grand Forks, N. Dak., and are at the Carlton for the short session of Congress.

Representative Robert H. Clancy, of Detroit, is at Wardman Park Hotel for the session. Representative Patrick J. Carley has also returned to Wardman Park from his home in New York, and Mrs. Carley will join him later.

Representative William H. Stafford, of Wisconsin, has taken accommodations at the Carlton for the session of Congress, as have also Representative Harry A. Estep, of Pennsylvania, and Representative Andrew L. Somers, of New York.

The Charge d'Affaires of Persia and Mme. Azodi entertained at a buffet supper last evening in the legation on Sixteenth street.

Maj. Gen. John L. Hines and Mrs. Hines, who recently returned from a several months' trip in Europe, are visiting the former's brother, Mr. William B. Hines, at his home at White Sulphur Springs.

The Foreign Military Attaches met yesterday at a luncheon at the Carlton to bid farewell to Capt. von Rosen, who is recalled to Sweden.

Others at the luncheon included Col. Charles Burnett, foreign liaison officer at the War Department, and the following military attaches and their assistants: Capt. A. Prieto, Gen. Francois Pilion, Lieut. Col. Emmanuel Lombard, Col. Maurice Fitzmaurice Day, Capt. F. St. D. B. Lejeune, Lieut. Col. Marco Pennaroli, Col. Shizuichi Tanaka, Brig. Gen. Francisco J. Aguilar, Lieut. E. Calderon, Capt. Joaquin Planell and the Air Attache Maj. Georges Thenault and Group Commander L. J. Fiennes.

Gen. John J. Pershing has been joined at the Carlton by his sister, Miss A. M. Pershing.

Capital Debutantes At Baltimore Dance.

More than 50 debutantes, selected by Baltimore's social arbiters attained the heights of their youthful careers last night at the Lyric in Baltimore when they made their formal debuts at the first Monday German of the Bachelors' Cotillion.

A number of Washington debutante were invited to the cotillion, among them Miss Gladys Szechenyi, daughter of the Minister of Hungary and Countess Szechenyi; Miss Ruth Hollingsworth Tuckerman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Tuckerman; Miss Gertrude Faust, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Faust, and Miss Edith Bull, daughter of Mrs. Archibold Sterling.

The Bachelors' Cotillion is one of the oldest, most representative and most exclusive organizations of the kind in America. More pronounced than ever was the trend this year of the traditional white frocks worn by the debutantes, and with the many flowers sent to the debutantes at the German as in Washington they are sent to the individual at each one's own party, the scene was most colorful.

Mrs. Price Whittaker has canceled all engagements because of the death of her brother, Mr. Frank Dorrance Rusling, of Rochester, N. Y.

Miss Dorothy Dodge was among those who attended the Bachelors' Cotillion in Baltimore last night.

The Rev. George Fiske Dudley and Mrs. Dudley will be at home informally this afternoon from 4 to 6 o'clock at the rectory at 1515 Newton street. This at home is the third of a series of informal teas Dr. and Mrs. Dudley are giving.

Mrs. Albert Pike will entertain at tea at her home on Thursday in honor of her sister, Mrs. James Daniel Gillian, of London.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Anson, of New York and Paris, are the guests of Mrs. M. R. Pendleton, of Stoneleigh Court.

Miss O'Neil Becomes Bride At Cathedral Today.

The wedding of Miss Dorothy Lee O'Neil, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John King O'Neil, of Alexandria, and the Rev. Walter Preston Plumley, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter P. Plumley, of Takoma Park, will take place today in the great choir of the Washington Cathedral with the Right Rev. James E. Freeman officiating. A reception will follow the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Coffey announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Christine Coffey, to Mr. Lionel Elwood Beeton, at a tea on Sunday afternoon. Mr. Beeton is the son of Mrs. Martha H. Beeton, of Lexington, Va., and now makes his home in Alexandria, Va., where he is with the Citizens' National Bank.

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE

"SAGITTARIUS."

IF December 6 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this day are from 10 a. m. to 11 a. m., from 4 p. m. to 5:15 p. m. and from 7:30 p. m. to 8 p. m. The danger periods are from 11:30 a. m. to 1 p. m. and from 9:30 p. m. to 10:15 p. m.

Astrological influences on this date would seem to make for great harmony. People generally will get along nicely together, even under circumstances that ordinarily would allow of rather serious disagreements. Difficulties between individuals can be readily "patched-up" and differences of long standing "ironed-out." A good turn done on this December 6 without thought of reward will bring immeasureable happiness. Affairs of the heart will move rapidly.

Born on this December 6, the child will probably be attractive both in physique and in character. The child will be most impressionable and will look to parents and loved ones for guidance in most matters. Its artistic and religious nature must be carefully molded. Inclined to be too idealistic, its path in a very material world will not be the easiest. Inclined to be moody.

If December 6 is the date of your birth, you in all probability are not a very colorful person. You are amiable, kind and considerate, a hard worker and thoroughly reliable. You are the type of person who generally does not make his presence felt. Often times, you keep yourself too much in the background. You work hard and whatever your work, you do it reasonably well. You do not seek great material success; to attain a happiness akin to contentment is your goal. If you have a widowed parent, you are the one who lives at home with mother or father and sees to his wants.

Born on December 6, you will probably marry late in life. Your mate will no doubt be your first love for you are not the type to run about a great deal with those of the opposite sex. Yours is essentially a home life; you shy away from social gatherings of any magnitude. Your quiet and unassuming way would make for you many friends, but you will not reach out for them. Your best friends are your books and these you enjoy to the greatest possible extent.

Successful people born on December 6:

Amos R. E. Pinchot, lawyer, publicist.

Edward H. Sothern, actor.

Charles M. Hall, manufacturer.

John Sargent Pillsbury, manufacturer.

Rudolph Block, author, known as Bruno Lessing.

Victor Blue, U. S. admiral.

Market Meanderings

By MILDRED REED BUNDY

Jumbo Squabs Are Suggested for Midweek Meals; Frying Chickens Found Reasonably Priced at Farmers' Market in Southwest Washington.

Jumbo squabs, choice and plump, for broiling or roasting, are suggestions for mid-week meals, as given by the manager of a high quality market near Dupont Circle. Guinea keats, which are best broiled, are a second suggestion from the same food shop.

Romaine, watercress or Belgian endive for a salad, and cauliflower, celery, Brussels sprouts, or broccoli for vegetable accompaniments for the squabs or guinea are other menu-planning ideas offered by the shop near Dupont Circle. Among the choice fruits that also might find a place on the table with the suggested dinner are Comice pears or D'Anjou pears, both arriving this week in perfect condition from California.

Almost every day in the official farmers' market in southwest Washington, the thrifty shopper can find freshly dressed young frying chickens for 22 cents a pound. Live chickens sell for 16 cents a pound. While many of these chickens come from farms within a few miles of Washington, one poultry dealer brings his piled-high crates of chickens from the Blue Ridge Mountains. Such chickens represent the only source of revenue for many Blue Ridge Mountain families. When the family marketing is done in such families it is chickens that pay the bill, not mutual money, this farmer in the market row told the Meanderer. It was along farmers' row, too, that fresh egs of the large, very fresh kind sell for 45 cents a dozen.

Chili powder of high grade for seasoning Mexican chili, and the proper beans for using in that satisfying dish so appealing on winter days, are found in an importer's shop on Ninth street the Meandered frequently visits. The chili powder is only 10 cents a can and the beans are 6 cents a pound.

This marketer of foods from far countries in the Ninth street shop has filled glass jars with candies for Christmas that are as attractive as they are unusual. They are the purest of candies in gay colors, used often in little bags as favors at christenings in Italy or Greece. Among the assortment of candies are pistachio nuts, coated with a hard, sweet coating of pistachio green; almonds coated with varicolored sugar surfaces; ceci beans coated with white or colors and perfumed candy drops in tiny elongated shapes. The candies cost from 50 to 70 cents a pound.

Fillet of haddock is an economy idea for pre-Christmas meals when savings are being hoarded for the holiday expenses. The haddock costs but 19 cents a pound, has no bone or waste. Each fillet weighs about ¾ of a pound. In the chain store on busy lower Fourteenth street where the Meanderer was looking for economical ideas in food and where the haddock was suggested, there are available very carefully planned family meals for a whole week at a time, budgeted carefully according to the spender's means. These menu sheets are absolutely free to those who ask for them. Each menu sheet is about the size of a high school loose leaf notebook, perforated for use in such a notebook and any housewife who is anxious for variety and economy in her meals will do well to file these helpful sheets each week. After the manager had suggested that haddock would fill a place in an economy meal, he turned to the menu sheet to see what could be used with the fish, and here is the simple luncheon or supper menu: Fillet of haddock, creamed potatoes, cucumber salad (cucumbers are only 5 cents each in this market), brown bread and butter, cake and tea.

Button mushrooms of good quality in baskets holding a pound and a half sell for 25 cents in a place the Meanderer can tell her readers about if they will call National 4205, extension 52.

Dried prunes that do not have to be soaked before cooking, and do not even need to be washed before using as they are pasteurized, are on the market in nearly all stores for 10 cents a pound package. These prunes are well used in the family fruit bowl with the oranges, apples, grapes, tangerines, and all those reasonably priced fresh fruits so plentiful at present. And on this topic, the Meanderer thinks the apples in the official farmers' market in the Southwest section should be mentioned. Stayman Winesap apples, small fruit, to be sure, but sweet, solid and worth having, sell for as little as 50 cents a bushel.

Excellent bread for 4 and 5 cents a loaf, bread that sells for more in other places, is featured in a corner food shop in the Southwest Market. It was here the Meanderer found some useful little paper-backed cook books issued by a local flour milling company. Some recipes for using whole wheat flour in this book are particularly interesting. Those who would like to have one of the books should write to the Market Meanderer, The Washington Post. Additional caviar recipe booklets and leaflets on sea food preparation and uses for California persimmons are available from the Meanderer's rapidly growing cookery library, supplied by local food dealers. Just inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope in writing the Market Meanderer and you may have any of the above recipes for the asking.

Telephone questions about items in this column to National 4205, extension 52; or address The Market Meanderer, The Washington Post, inclosing stamped, self-addresssed envelope for reply.

Interpreting the Mode

By DARE

We got some secrets from one of our French maids some time ago, and have been just waiting for the minnit we would remember them, to pass them on to you. Here's the first, and you musn't laugh. It is:

How to Clean Black Lace.

Fold the lace into a small bundle, place in a basin, and pour over it enough beer to cover. Leave three-quarters of an hour. Take it out carefully, without unfolding, squeeze, rinse in fresh water, unfold and dry between thick towels. Never wring. Homebrew will do, but not nearbeer—and I told you it wasn't a laughing matter.

How to Iron Any Lace.

Stretch the lace and place it, still damp and wrong side up, on a piece of soft, thick cotton material. Then cover with a clean dry rag, and use a moderately hot iron to iron with.

Make a Sponge New.

Put the sponge into a 3 per cent solution of carbonate of soda, and leave a few minutes. Rinse thoroughly. Place the sponge in a basin and squeeze the juice of a lemon on it. Cut the lemon into pieces and leave them in the basin, then pour hot water on the, whole thing and leave for 24 hours. Rinse in clean, cold water.

Resetting an Imitation Pearl.

Is there anything more maddening than the way these fake pearls come unfastened from their settings? Well, just hold the pearl with a pair of tweezers over a candle, the flame just touching the opening, then warm the mount or setting in the same way and immediately fix the pearl to the mount, press gently, and leave to cool for about an hour—when it will be tightly fixed to its setting again.

* * * *

'Tis a leaflet on men's gifts we offer you this week, suggestions for what to give various types and kinds of men, novel suggestions, too. And you can make some of these gifts if you wish, or just use the leaflet as a guide to your gift selections. Don't think for a minute that you are going to be able to ignore Christmas on the grounds of hard times, my deah—not when you can use your own ten clever fingers to make hadmade gifts. If you try ignoring Christmas, you will just get yourself into a stew and be put down as a meanie—so don't.

* * * *

The Beauty Sorceress.

Just do rub a bit of cream or vaseline into your finger cuticles at night, and then wipe it off on a towel—'twill keep your cuiticle soft and hangnail-less.

And get the habit of brushing your eyebrows with a small toothbrush dipped in cold water. This will shape them, make them stronger and coarser, and, best of all, if you do it as you should just when you are all finished with your makeup—or when everything is finished but the mascara, if you use it—'twill free them from powder and dust and make them add their bit to your soignee appearance.

Au revoir.

How to Be Beautiful

By ELSIE PIERCE

THESE days are crowded with social engagements. And it won't be long before strenous shopping does its share to strain the feet and sap their strength. Yesterday we offered some foot facts for children. Here are some for adults. The National Association of Chiropodists and Podiatrists issues a card warning that "the feet are the only mechanism of locomotion for which there are no spare parts. Learn to use them rightfully."

Short Shoes or Stockings.

Not very long ago, in one of the finer department stores, a salesman was discharged because he had sold a customer a short pair of shoes. The customer had asked for a size to fit, without specifying any size.

Short stockings cause as much inconvenience, corns, hammered and crooked toes and nail trouble as short shoes. Stockings should extend one-half inch beyond the toes.

Educational work of dentists has made us realize the wisdom of having our teeth examined two or three times a year; also to care for our teeth, brushing them two or three times a day, not necessarily only to clean the teeth, but to massage the gums as well. I hope that before long the educational work of chiropodists will teach us to have our feet examined periodically. We abuse our feet and use them constantly. We walk on hard floors, sidewalks, pavements, with our shoes and stockings shutting out all ventilation, light and air. If we walk properly and briskly, this stimulates the circulation through the lower extremities. But if the circulation is sluggish nightly massage is very helpful.

A well known chiropodist recently explained to me that when walking in a pump the foot elongates into the front of the shoe, with nothing to hold it back or support the foot. The proper walking shoe is an oxford or strap in a Goodyear welt. They are so constructed that both inner and outer soles are sewed by special process, so that you will not walk on any stitching, but will get greatest amount of flexibility from the shoe.

Don't walk about barefoot. Open sandals are ideal. Remember the Indians and Greeks, noted for perfect feet. They wore moccasins and sandals. Slaves who walked barefooted usually had caloused feet, often spread out of shape. We need support when walking on floors, but on the beach, in summer, go barefooted. When walking on sand, the gentle massage resulting from the natural unevenness of the sand is helpful.

Change stockings daily. Alternate your shoes, too.

Dental Association's Dinner Is Tomorrow

Local dentists will honor Dr. Walter Dittmar, of Chicago, newly elected president of the American Dental Association, at a dinner at 7 o'clock tomorrow night at the Columbia Country Club.

Among the guests at the reception will be Surgeon Gen. H. S. Cumming, of the United States Public Health Service; Rear Admiral Charles E. Riggs, surgeon general of the United States Navy, and Dr. Lyman J. Briggs, director of the Bureau of Standards. Dr. Charles D. Cole, president of the local dental society, will preside.

TOURNAMENT PLEASANTRIES.

THERE is usually an air of tenseness about the play of Contract Bridge in tournaments where titles are at stake. Naturally, the players are more interested in the play of each card when the play of it may mean a championship than they are in a social game of Bridge where the hand will be forgotten before the next deal is completed. Some players become deadly serious. They concentrate to the exclusion of every outside interest. Sometimes a player is so engrossed in his mental play of the hand that his physical actions and even his words bear little relation to the problem he is seeking to solve.

In the recent Vanderbilt Cup tournament Mr. Raymond Balfe, one of the most expert players in the country, was engaged in playing a difficult contract. It was before the adoption of the new international code of laws, and at that time any player might look back at a trick until either he or his opponent had played in turn or otherwise to the next following trick. The Declarer might look at the previous trick until he had played from his own hand or the Dummy. Mr. Balfe was studying the hand closely. Success or failure of the contract seemed to rest upon whether or not he could read the distribution of the suits in the hands.

"Pardon me, gentlemen," he remarked, suavely, "may I see the last trick?"

His partner, Mr. Ralph J. Leibenderfer, the Dummy for the moment, turned over the 4 of hearts. His opponents likewise turned the cards they had last played. Mr. Balfe studied the hand, apparently with the greatest attention, then thanked the players, who again turned the cards face down on the table. The study continued. Again Mr. Balfe said:

"Gentlemen, I hate to bother you, but may I see the last trick?"

Again Mr. Leibenderfer turned the 4 of hearts. Again the adversaries disclosed the cards they had played. Mr. Balfe studied deeply.

"Thank you, gentlemen," he said at last, and again the cards were turned.

About to play to the next trick, Mr. Balfe suddenly remarked that he had not examined with full care the card played by one of his opponents.

"I am terribly sorry, gentlemen, but I want to see the last trick. I am sure I have transgressed your patience."

The cards were turned once more. Mr. Leibenderfer, slightly testily, disclosing that the heart 4 had been played from the Dummy. Another long study. Finally, with meticulous politeness, Mr. Balfe thanked his opponents. The cards were turned once more, and Mr. Balfe led.

"Wait a moment," remarked an opponent. "I am sure I hate to bother you all, but I would like to see the last trick."

Mr. Balfe now joined in the sport of turning the cards, and Mr. Leibenderfer very reluctantly disclosed the 4 of hearts.

"Thank you," remarked the player, with sauvity equal to that of Mr. Balfe, and the cards were turned back.

The player still delayed following suit, and said:

"I dislike to bother you gentlemen, but I must see the last trick again."

Mr. Balfe and his partner complied, but Mr. Leibenderfer, whose arms was tired and patience exhausted, remarked:

"I'll be hanged if I will turn that 4 of hearts again."

There are many instances like this which lighten up for a moment or two the drab intentness of tournament play. Mr. Balfe's repeated requests for the turn of the trick that he might study it were probably only the subconscious workings of his mind, and his opponent's lighter requests to see the trick were for the purpose of making Mr. Balfe concentrate on the immediate problem before him rather than making a purely mechanical request.

TOMORROW'S HAND

The bidding and play of the hand printed below will be discussed tomorrow.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

A PAIN RELIEVER.

THE use of morphine for the relief of pain in cancer is notoriously unsatisfactory. Aside from the danger of habit, which in these circumstances is a matter of secondary importance, the drug is not efficient. The first few doses seem to work wonderfully, but the amount needed must be increased rapidly and even at that the later doses do not give ease.

So unreliable is morphine that some even prefer to use acetyl salicylic acid for the relief of pain and that drug is well known to have only limited powers.

What is said of morphine applies to opium, heroin, codein, and all other drugs derived from the parent vegetable extract.

The pain of late cancer and the need of some relief are so great that many procedures have been proposed. In some cases operation is done. This consists in cutting the posterior nerve roots near where they join the spine. These roots carry sensation and if they are severed the pain of a growing and late cancer can not be felt. The cancer may progress, may destroy tissue, cause fever, and do harm in other ways, but it can not cause pain to be registered. In some cases certain sensory paths in the spinal cord are cut in the operation. This, too, serves to prevent pain from being registered.

Dr. R. J. Behan proposes another and a simpler method. It is to give the sufferer an abundance of lime. The preparation he prefers is calcium gluconate. This is given by mouth in large doses three times a day, or, if there is an emergency, it can be injected into the veins. The level of lime in the blood tends to remain rather even. If too much is absorbed or injected the excess is rather rapidly eliminated. Therefore considerable must be given and it must be given for some time. It is thought that the use of cod liver oil or other fish oil and viosterol helps to hold some calcium or lime in the body. The theory is that the excess of lime helps to prevent pain from registering.

Even if the method does no good there is no evidence that it does harm. And the person with a growing cancer must have relief from pain and some ease. The lime method is simpler than operation and safer than morphine.

VERONAL IN EVENING.

J. S. writes: I have a friend who is 77 years old and a diabetic for several years. He suffers from insomnia and has been taking one veronal tablet every evening. I told him it was not safe for him to take it, but he claims he has taken as many as four at one time. He also claims no one would know he had taken veronal. I claim the opposite.

REPLY.

It is inadvisable to take veronal tablets or any other remedy of that class every evening. This man probably has altered his personality even if he has survived. Is he hard to live with?

WHISKY AND PEP.

S. W. Q. writes: I feel tired most of the time, and have no pep. I have been told I should drink whisky to build myself up. Is this true? I am 37 years old.

REPLY.

Your adviser meant down and not up. To drink whisky for a tired feeling all the time, or for any other craving or feeling of insufficiency, is dangerous.

NOT UNHEALTHFUL.

Mrs. B. B. writes: Is it unhealthful to sleep in the same room with a canary which has asthma?

REPLY.

No. Occasionally some one gets a disease from a bird, but asthma is not on the list.

Schmidt and Prof. Albert B. Bibb, of the faculty, and Mr. Charles W. Holmes, comptroller of the university.

Two other faculty members who have been with the university more than 25 years but who this year are on sabbatical leave are Dr. Charles Sidney Smith and Dr. Edward Elliott Richardson.

Dr. James Howard Gore, professor emeritus of mathematics, whose 54 years of association with the university represents the longest term of service, will preside. Dr. Gore joined the faculty in 1878.

Following the supper President Marvin will tell of his recent Western trip.

The next meeting of the Archaeological Society of Washington will be held tomorrow evening at the residence of Mrs. James G. Wentz, 2841 McGill terrace, at 9 o'clock. The guest of honor and speaker of the evening will be the excavator of the Agora in Athens, Prof. Theodore Leslie Shear, of Princeton, who will speak of his discoveries of last season.

Miss Matthews Speaker At Democratic Club.

Miss Annabelle Matthews, member of the Board of Tax Appeals, was the speaker at the Woman's National Democratic Club's luncheon yesterday. Mrs. Charles Hamlin introduced Miss Matthews, who spoke on "The Board of Tax Appeals and its Jurisdiction." Mrs. Frank S. Bright, Miss Portia Oberly, Mrs. George M. Eckels and Mrs. Edward K. Campbell were also at the speaker's table. Among those at the luncheon were: Mrs. Thomas W. Page, Mrs. Claude R. Porter, Mrs. Winifred Artaud, Mrs. Charles Warren, Bishop Atwood of Arizona, Mrs. C. I. Hendrickson, Mrs. Charles Matthews, Mrs. J. Craig Peacock, Miss Mary Riley, Mrs. Cook, Mrs. J. Harry Covington, Mrs. E. Rust Smith, Mrs. Benjamin Smith, Mrs. E. B. Prettyman, Miss Lillian Otto, Mrs. James M. Helm and Mrs. M. A. J. Markley.

Col. Joseph M. Heller is in New York to attend the directors' dinner of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, which will be held tonight at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel. Mr. Pierre S. duPont, chairman of the executive board, will be host.

Duke University Alumni in Washington will meet at the Hamilton Hotel at 6:30 o'clock Monday, December 12, for the observance of Duke University Day. The meeting will adjourn in time to permit all who wish to attend the party being given by the North Carolina Society at the Shoreham Hotel on the same evening. Mr. Richard E. Thigpen is president of the Duke University Alumni Association of Washington.

Here's a quick sketch of two gentlemen—

—who rashly decided to do their Christmas shopping alone. The whispering one is suggesting they go to JELLEFF'S and get ELIZABETH BREWSTER to help them . . . a thing they should have done in the first place. She not only possesses an admirable fund of brilliant suggestions, but she will actually buy your gifts for you if you find shopping yourself out of the question.

YESTERDAY'S ANSWER.

Radio Dial Flashes

By ROBERT D. HEINL

THE police radio system has been worth its weight in gold the past few days in connection with the "hunger marchers." It is really thrilling to hear these broadcasts, not only in connection with the hunger marchers, but at any time. You would realize this if we were permitted to give you a verbatim report of some of the alarms which are constantly being flashed over the Washington police short wave transmitter.

However, if we printed these messages we might find a policeman with Maj. Brown's calling card—or maybe two or three firemen with nightsticks—waiting on our doorstep. Also, W. D. Terrell, Uncle Sam's radio chief of police.

There is no law against having a short wave radio set to pick up police alarms and there is nothing to prevent any one listening to them, but it was the advice of Chief Radio Inspector Terrell, when we asked about it yesterday, if you do listen and hear anything "to keep quiet about it."

The radio act provides that any one divulging or publishing a radio communication (not addressed to him) shall be punished by a fine of not more than $5,000 or by imprisonment for a term of not more than five years, or both, for each and every offense. Inspector Terrell interprets this provision to include police broadcasts. So if you should pick up these police alarms in connection with the hunger marchers, or at any other time, consider them as secret communications and watch your step about telling anybody about them.

ALTHOUGH there is no law against it, as we pointed out above, though Mr. Terrell said there might be a local restriction here or there, we believe if the police, for instance, should find that the hunger marchers had a short wave receiver for the purpose of listening to police broadcasts, they would smash or confiscate it and be upheld by Federal authorities for their action.

The same, we believe, would hold true with regard to criminals or suspects possessing short-wave receiving sets. We do not know of any instance in which there has been a test of this, but feel confident when there is, as there is bound to be, the courts will uphold the police.

Resumes of President Hoover's message to the Congress will be given over both networks (WRC and WJSV) this afternoon.

What Manhattan's "man on the street" thinks about the legalization of beer will be aired over WJSV today during a series of sidewalk interviews. Coincident with congressional discussion of the question, New Yorkers will be invited to air their views—pro and con—as an announcer roves the streets with a lapel microphone. Park Avenue, City Hall Park, Times Square and Harlem will be visited during the day.

CEREMONIES aboard the U. S. S. Constitution, in connection with the presentation of a plaque commemorating the fact that the famous frigate was reconditioned with funds provided by the school children of America, will be carried over WRC at 10:30 o'clock this morning.

Gov. John Garland Pollard, Senator Claude A. Swanson and Representative Howard W. Smith, all of Virginia, will speak during the program. The plaque is being presented by the children of the George Mason School, of Alexandria, Va., and will be accepted by Capt. Louis Gulliver, commanding officer of "Old Ironsides." The United States Marine Band will play during the program.

Maria Jeritza, former Metropolitan Opera star, will sing a group of arias from Tschalkowsky's opera, "Jeanne d'Arc," when she makes one of her few radio appearances as the second guest soloist of the Five Star Theater (WJSV, 10 p. m.).

As her second group of songs for the broadcast, Mme. Jeritza has chosen "The Bird," by Kienzl, and "Love's Magic," by Grey. She will be accompanied by Joseph Bonime's symphony orchestra.

THERE ought to be a law against radio performers plugging themselves, their acts or their friends over the air. This practice is becoming more and more prevalent and cheapens programs very considerably.

Usually the sponsor loads down the program with about all the advertising "the traffic will bear." If, on top of that, the performers burden the presentation with praise for themselves or other self-advertising, the listener, more than likely, tunes out in disgust.

"Laughing Anne," one of the last plays Joseph Conrad wrote just before his death in 1924, will be presented over the WJZ network at 10:30 o'clock tonight—the seventy-fifth birthday of the great writer of sea stories.

A special radio version of Gounod's "Romeo and Juliet" has been scheduled for presentation by the National Grand Opera Company tonight. Carol Deis and Sidney Smith will perform the title roles.

"SINFONIETTA," prize-winning composition by Nicolai Berezowsky, of the Columbia Symphony Orchestra, will be played four times this week by leading symphony orchestras. The Cincinnati Orchestra, under Eugene Goossens, and the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, directed by Frederick Stock, each include it twice in their current programs.

The WMAL Matinee Artists' program will present Ruth Miller, soprano and Henry C. Nestor, baritone, accompanied by Elizabeth Gardner Coombs, at 1:30 o'clock to-day.

THE new musical director of the N. B. C. is Frank Black, who is well known to radio listeners for his arrangements of orchestral compositions and his work with the Revelers.

"Frank Black's appointment," said John Royal, N. B. C. vice president in charge of programs, "makes a welcome addition to our executive staff in this department. His long association with radio, as well as his musical ability, fits him ably for this important post.

The position of musical director was made vacant when Erno Rapee went over to Radio City to occupy that position.

CHARLIE: Look at that painting—isn't it marvelous? It was done by Remington.

Garden Club Meets Tonight.

The Garden Club of Foxhall Village will meet at the home of Mrs. F. C. Duncan, 4406 Greenwich parkway, at 8 o'clock tonight. Mrs. Margaret Lancaster will be principal speaker.

Boy Slayer Sentenced To Pontiac Reformatory

Chicago, Dec. 5 (A.P.).—Sixteen-year-old Charles Bertrand Arnold, jr., was sentenced to from one to fourteen years in Pontiac Reformatory today for killing his stepgrandmother, Mrs. Ellen O. Saxe. Chief Justice John Prystalski, of the Criminal Court, before whom the lad had pleaded guilty, imposed sentence on the manslaughter count of the indictment.

"Bert," who beat the elderly woman to death with a hammer and dragged her body to the cistern at the Arnold home in Riverside because she slapped him when he asked for the family car, stood stolidly before the judge. Just before he was arraigned to hear his fate, his father and stepmother, whose mother he had slain, embraced him and gripped his hand.

120-FOOT ROADWAY LIKELY IN ARLINGTON

County Welfare Board Asks Cooperation in Drive for Relief Funds.

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST,
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

The possibility of having a roadway 120 feet in width from Clarendon along Washington avenue to Hatfield loomed yesterday when it was learned that officials of the Arlington-Fairfax Railway were considering plans for the removal of the tracks along the company's right of way.

Several months ago, when the Alexandria Railway was discontinued, which trackage was used from Arlington Junction into Washington by the Fairfax line, the latter company installed a bus line taking care of their patrons from Clarendon on into Washington.

When advised of the contemplated move on the part of officials of the Arlington-Fairfax Railway, County Board Member Lyman M. Kelley stated that the board had had its eye on the right of way and only was waiting for the company to remove its tracks, when the board would proceed to acquire the right of way for a boulevard, which will connect with the Lee boulevard in the vicinity of Lyon Park.

Having to care for the needy without the aid of contributions made to the Washington Community Chest by residents of the county, as they did last year, the Arlington County welfare board, in a letter sent out yesterday to the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce, business clubs, service clubs and all civic organizations of the county appealed for support in a drive to raise funds.

A housewarming was given Mrs. W. W. Willis, president of the Arlington County Business and Professional Women's Club, at her new home in Falls Church last night.

Making it a complete surprise, the executive committee held an early meeting, saying they were compelled to leave at 8 o'clock. Promptly at 8 more than 45 club members met at the door and filed into the house. Many handsome gifts were presented.

Funeral services for Arland J. Craft, 38 years old, who died at his home, 1001 York avenue, Golf Club Manor, Arlington County, yesterday, will be conducted from the home this afternoon at 4 o'clock by the Rev. Isaac Steenson, pastor of the Clarendon Presbyterian Church. Burial will be at his old home in Jackson, Pa. He is survived by his wife.

The meeting of the board of directors of the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce, announced for December 20, has been postponed until December 27, according to an announcement yesterday.

The Woman's Club of Lyon Village will meet tomorrow night at the home of Mrs. D. J. Waters, 201 Key boulevard. The program of entertainment following a short business session will include a number of readings by pupils from Marjorie Webster's School.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

THOSE who get around this week will have an opportunity to observe Mr. Roscoe Karns contributing his bit to two pictures. He is the third U. S. Marine in the brig episode with Gary Cooper and Jack Oakie in "If I Had a Million," at Loew's Fox, and the stage manager, not even programmed, with Loretta Young, George Brent and Louis Calhern in "They Call It Sin," at the Earle.

Roscoe Karns.

It might be argued that any two-bit contribution in any week in these times is pretty good, but Roscoe Karns has been doing it for years and never has seemed to get a break—until now.

It has taken him 12 years and approximately 100 roles to attract Hollywood's attention.

Perhaps then, it is not surprising that he believes the role makes the actor and not the actor the role. "In Hollywood," he says "unless you have a good part you're not an actor. What you can do with a poor part doesn't count."

Mr. Karns, so I am told, is of the firm conviction that he has had better parts than that of the secretary-guard to George Raft in "Night After Night"—a film yet to be seen in Washington, but one which has brought down new encomiums upon Mr. Raft, Alison Skipworth and Mae West wherever it has been shown—but that, nevertheless, is the one that has brought him the first long-term contract he has ever enjoyed in more than a decade of hard and conscientious work before the cameras.

To the men who have it in their power to give out contracts, here, seemingly, was an actor, this Karns fellow! And where had he been all of their lives? And more of the same.

"Right here in Hollywood," says Roscoe.

After playing in stock companies all over the country, he landed in Hollywood a dozen years ago. As a result of his performance in a stage play, the movies crooked a finger to him. He made a picture. In between other stage shows, he made other pictures, playing comedy in most of them. Latterly, the process has been reversed. If he has played in stage shows at all, it has been between pictures.

Karns calls San Diego, Calif.—an overnight Pullman jump from Los Angeles—his home. His wife is a non-professional and they have two children, a boy 11 and a daughter 10. Their pop has never earned a dime from anything but acting, but it has taken Hollywood a powerful long time to find it out!

Katharine Cornell (and please, Mr. Compositor, not Catherine, nor yet Katherine) announces that the first performance in New York City of "Lucrece," Thornton Wilder's translation of Andre Obey's "Le Viol de Lucrece," with music by Deems Taylor and settings by Robert Edmond Jones, will be given on Tuesday night, December 20, in the Belasco Theater. Edgar Wallace's "Criminals at Large," originally known as "The Case of the Frightened Lady," and also directed by Guthrie McClintic, in private life Miss Cornell's husband, will be transferred to another theater to continue its successful run.

"Lucrece," it will be recalled, opened in the Hanna Theater, Cleveland, Ohio, on Tuesday, November 29, and left the customers slightly befuddled, according to the city's foremost critics.

It will be interesting to observe the reaction of the Broadway death watch, to whom, along with Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne and one or two others, Miss Cornell is, in a manner of speaking, sacrosanct—as her achievements, of course, more or less warrant.

From this point on, today's column will probably be a little fluttery and out of breath from the surprise of it all.

How was I to know that the smartly gloved hand that reached around and rapped on the inside of the mahogany and bronze door that leads into our palatial suite, with its tesselated floors and Tiffany chandeliers, belonged to Irene Rich, come to The Post heavily laden with gifts for the toy pool, to be distributed among those upon whom good fortune has not lavished too many smiles these past few months—or is it years?

And me wearing more than the usual accumulation of office soil, but no coat, and the toupee a little out of plumb!

But such trifles don't matter to such a regular and gracious person as Miss Rich. The very nature of her errand proves it. Here she is, doing four shows a day at Loew's Fox in her sparkling little sketch, "Ask Your Wife," and yet she finds time to go shopping for the kiddies and come up to Miss "Jerry" Frost's toy department on the fifth floor of The Post, loaded down with more Christmas joy for the little tots than she and the able-bodied and robust Master Eddy Gilmore, of Loew's, are able to lift, let alone lug around through a lot of long halls.

But, as I have endeavored to convey to you before, Irene Rich is like that—as you will learn Thursday afternoon at the Willard.

It is Mrs. Sidney Thomas, in charge of the American Theater Society's activities, who reminds me that while "There's Always Juliet" is the second of the season's subscription plays, the Society's books are still open for the remaining offerings to be presented under its auspices this season. It might be a shrewd and forehanded scheme to take this matter of subscribing to the remaining group of Society plays up with Mrs. Thomas before the busy Christmas season drives it entirely out of mind.

And Manager Hardie Meakin, of RKO-Keith's, whose clairvoyant instinct makes it possible for him always to be out when his phone rings, finally commits himself to the belief that all these rumors about Loew's, Inc., taking over the operation of the RKO theaters throughout the land are just so much second grade malarkey, pointing out in defense of his thesis the splendid forward strides the RKO theaters have been making of late months under the experienced guidance of Mr. Harold B. Franklin, admittedly one of the shrewdest showmen in the country.

Presumably the reason the so-called hunger marchers chose this particular time to swoop down on the Capital was because they figured that, everything else failing, they could at least be tossed a few lame ducks!

And a mess of applesauce!

FAIRFAX FARMERS FORM ASSOCIATION

County Agent Derr Leader in Organization of New Husbandry Groups.

Agricultural Agent H. B. Derr, of Fairfax County, Va., has formed a county association to assist him in promoting the agricultural interests and special needs of each locality. The progressive farmers of the area have been divided into eleven community groups. Each group will select one of its members as group chairman.

The group chairman in turn will form an executive committee of the county agents' advisory council. Under the agricultural development program sponsored by the county council, each group will select one of the projects sponsored by the State which meets the agricultural needs of its locality. County Agent Derr will be assisted by specialists from the Virginia Polytechnic Institute at Blacksburg, Va., in presenting and assisting the farmers in the projects selected.

The members of the eleven community groups have been named as follows: Falls Church and Baileys Cross Roads, Milton E. Roberts, W. J. Cleveland. Andrew Cornelius, John Kerns and O. I. Nigh; McLean and Langley, G. Wallace Carper, French Trammell, Marvin Kirby, Milton Lightbower, Bruno H. Wittig and J. Clemens Storm; Potters Hill, Franconia and Woodlawn, Arthur Kerdy, Frank Wilkinson, Joseph W. Cox, George Gillingham, George Smith and T. Bentley Mason; Fairfax, Burke and Oakton, Roland Blake, Clinton P. Jones, Robert Rice, Henry Stabler, F. E. Stowe and Thomas I. Piggott.

Vienna and Merrifield, H. H. Ankers, Edward D. Vosbury, W. B. Davidson, A. J. Lowe and Charles Kaiser; Centreville and Clifton, Robert Wilson, John T. DeBell, Clarence Fleming, D. P. Hutchison, H. F. Myers and R. Colton Lewis; Annandale, Lincolnia and Springfield, L. Wesley Carter, John W. Brookfield, J. W. Biggers, D. F. Hanna, Mason Hirst and Joseph L. Bristow.

Floris and Herndon. William H. Ellmore, Wilson McNair, George R. Bready, B. W. Middleton, T. W. Wamsley, R. B. Nickell and J. B. Armfield; Forestville and Dranesville, Clyde Wenzel, Mark Turner, Charles Gardner, Arthur Speight, O. K. Miller, Lacey McCutcheon; Colvin Run and Andrew Chapel, James Wilson, Charles E. Roller, R. E. Berry, J. L. Money, J. Leo Crowell and Roy Money; Ox Road and Lorton, B. J. Nevitt, W. F. Halley, L. L. Demory, J. W. Chrisman, S. B. Welch and Claude Riggles.

Arlington Zoning Board Settles Stewart Case

By a vote of three to two, the Arlington County Board of Commissioners, in a special session last night at the County Courthouse in Clarendon, approved the application of Harry Stewart for the rezoning of his property in Ballston from residential to commercial. The action of the board brought to an end an extended controversy of more than two months, during which the zone appeal board failed to give its approval.

By NELSON B. BELL.

Celebrating their return to the Capital after an absence of some twenty years, the Abbey Theater Irish Players last night inaugurated their local week by revealing that perfection of dramatic art which subordinates personality to purpose and in a most rigid and delightful sense contrives "to hold, as 't were, the mirror up to nature."

More than any other acting group that comes to these shores the Abbey Theater Players apprehend the true function of the theater—to reflect some phase of life with such admirable fidelity to the details of character, action and environment as to create a complete and flawless illusion of actuality. Scenery, settings, the intricacies of mechanical effect and all the other usual "commodities of the theater" become immediately and, if the paradox is permissible, conspicuously of secondary importance. The play and the author's living symbols of its motivating elements are the matters of prime consideration. A work not possessed of sufficient substance to submit itself to this ruthless stripping away of nonessentials and still afford a medium of some eloquence for the play and counter-play of brilliant talents is deemed unworthy of a place in the company's repertoire of searching and significant human documents.

Last evening's inaugural double bill was composed of a major comedy familiar to Washington drama lovers and one of Lady Gregory's most pithy playlets as an appetizing hors d'oeuvre.

"The Playboy of the Western World" is a satire at once brilliantly witty and saturated with a homely and ingenuous quality of human nature. It impales upon its scintillant shafts the bald fallacy of hero worship, and by a deft revelation of character lends a gentle touch of romance to the spectacle of a simple countryside in County Mayo, glorifying a garrulous youth for the considerable accomplishment of having murdered his father!

When the father appears upon the scene, with a wound in his scalp, but apparently innocent of the imminence of death, the young man's standing in the community is seriously impaired. The young ladies of the neighborhood, who have showered him with their coy attentions, begin to doubt his stature among the giants of physical daring. Not until it is too late, and the father has conceded the surprisingly superior qualities of this pungent comedy of Synge's, Margaret Flaherty, "Peegeen Mike," for example, is played with vigor, freshness and charm by Eileen Crowe and Christopher Mahon, the man magnified by murder, with a juvenile enthusiasm that manages to be both ingenious and ingenuous, by Arthur Shields. That fabulous publican and capacious bibbler, Michael James Flaherty, is played with superb mastery by Barry Fitzgerald, a character comedian of the very first water, and a timid lover is no less authentically drawn by Michael J. Dolan. Maureen Delany's Widow Quinn is a robust and rousing study of feminine acquisitiveness that is efficiently augmented by a minor gallery of expert and expressive portraitures.

Lady Gregory's "The Rising of the Moon" enlists the services of a wholly male cast of four—F. J. McCormick, Denis O'Dea, Arthur Shields and Michael J. Dolan. It is a penetrating and illuminating exposition of social and political point of view, drawing a hairline between the criminal and the law and ending upon a note of amusingly counterfeit and complacent perplexity when the law permits the criminal to escape.

GAYETY

"THE COLLEGE WIDOWS' REVUE," Ed Ryan's Empire Burlesque attraction, featuring Sam Raynor, Lee Hickman, Bimbo Davis, "Bee" Keller, Joy St. Clair and Irene Mayo. Reviewed Monday night by George H. Barrows.

An eye and ear more or less satiated with the usual attractions of the burlesque stage receive new sensations of pleasure from Ed Ryon's "College Widows Revue," now filling the seats at the Gayety.

The show is conspicuous for the high character of its scenic effects and the more than usually active participation of a large and well-drilled chorus, and the equally noticeable lack of comedy. Sam Raynor enacts the part of master of ceremonies and cleverly wins the good humor of his audience.

Sam Raynor, Lee Hickman and Bimbo Davis made a creditable showing with little to work on except their natural ability to create laughs not in the lines. Carrigan and De Muth execute several clever dance numbers; Ray Parsons pleases with his popular songs. Joy St. Clair, Irene Mayo and Bee Keller are—we presume—the inspiration for the show's title.

PLAQUE RITE TODAY ON 'OLD IRONSIDES'

George Mason High School Gift to Be Presented by Principal Strader.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU,
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

Representatives of civic and patriotic organizations of Alexandria, school children, and many others will attend the exercises at the Washington Navy Yard at 10 a. m. today when a bronze plaque, the gift of the George Mason High School of Alexandria on behalf of the school children of America, will be placed on the historic frigate Constitution.

The presentation will be made by C. H. Strader, principal of George Mason High School, who conceived the idea, and will be accepted by Commander Louis J. Gulliver, commanding Old Ironsides.

Those present will include representatives of the public schools of Baltimore; two companies, 400 cadets, boys and girls from the Washington-Lee High School, Clarendon; and 200 pupils from the graded public schools and St. Charles Catholic School, Clarendon.

Nicholas Orem, superintendent, will head a delegation of teachers and children from the schools of Prince Georges County, Maryland, and Edwin W. Broom, superintendent of the Montgomery County, Maryland, schools, has given permission to the schools of that county to attend.

James B. Rouse was indicted for manslaughter yesterday in United States Court for the Eastern District of Virginia, Judge Luther B. Way presiding, sitting in Alexandria. The true bill was returned in connection with the death of Miss Katherine Straub, victim of an automobile accident on the Mount Vernon Memorial highway last May 22, who died May 28 in Providence Hospital, Washington.

The jury also indicted Bill Hillas, alias Varillos Lillas, and Tom Mehilas, on a charge of possessing and passing counterfeit notes on a merchant in Accotink. Other indictments returned included Enoch Walleker, violating national prohibition act; Arthur Pinkett, alias Sam Pinkett, attempted burglary of store on the Fort Myer reservation, and Aubrey Atkins, violation of national motor-theft act.

Funeral services for Claiborn H. Clayton, 61, who died Saturday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Harry Nalls, 702 South Fairfax street, Alexandria, will be conducted at Mrs Nall's home at 2 p. m. today by the Rev. Percy Foster Hall, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal Church. Burial will be in Bethel Cemetery.

TUESDAY DECEMBER 6, 1932 SPORTS

POP WARNER LEAVES STANFORD TO COACH TEMPLE

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

THIS fellow Joe Knight, who comes back to Portner's Arena tonight to do battle with Cowboy Phelps, is bringing with him one of the heftiest wallops to grace the prize ring these days.

This department saw him knock out Bob Tow at Laurel with a left hook to the ear that catapulted Tow half-way across the ring despite the 15 pounds difference in weight and left the tow-headed Tow in an inert heap for 5 minutes after the referee's count.

That's how Knight hits and if added testimony is needed there is a knockout over Bob Godwin to his credit. It behooves Phelps to keep on the move tonight and steer clear of the southpaw mitt that dangles at Knight's side most inoffensively—until he is ready to apply it.

Right Hand Dangerous, Too.

Not that Kight's right is excess baggage. He can punch with both hands, but the dynamite is in his left, which is one reason the ranking men of the light-heavy division will have no further traffic with him. A southpaw is something to be avoided, according to the best accepted theory of the right-handers.

The reasons for this reluctancy of orthodox fighters to meet southpaws are obvious. Fighting with his left hand extended, the southpaw is difficult to hit with a right cross or right hook and, naturally, is always moving in the same direction as the right-hander.

But the southpaw's greatest advantage lies in the fact that the bulk of his fights are against right-handers whose style is an old story to him, while the right-handers, rarely meeting southpaws, usually find it difficult to solve the problem of punches being shot from strange angles.

Long on Height, Short on Breath.

George Washington University fans have lost no time in nicknaming Oscar Wickham, the slip of a boy 6 feet 5 inches and 243 pounds, who may set at rest the center worries of Coach Jim Pixlee and his basket ball squad. "Ox" they have dubbed him and it fits like a nudist's coat of tan.

Oscar at this writing is long on height and short on breath, and the latter item is now occupying Coach Pixlee. Oscar, it seems, has an avid appetite for pastries and other foods rich in shortenings and he must choose between them and his basket ball, Pixlee has commanded.

Another of Pixlee's prescriptions has been written for Oscar with a view to shedding approximately 20 pounds of excess weight that the big boy is now carrying into practice. A few extra shirts and a lot of leg work has been prescribed and, if this theory of Pixlee's isn't effective, Oscar will be put on Ghandi's diet.

May Crowd Hertzler Off Floor.

If Pixlee can bring Wickham down to weight there is a fine possibility that Oscar will oust the regular center, Ty Hertzler, from the regular center's job, or at least relieve two or three other centers from second-string employment.

Oscar's chief value lies in his ability to do things with the basket ball from points inside the foul line, and it was a sad day for Wickham when the rules moguls ruled out the pivot play which enabled men of Oscar's bulk to maneuver their broad backs about in such a manner as to retain possession of the ball for several minutes at a stretch until an opportune time came to pass or shoot.

Oscar shines where the melee is thickest, his height enabling him to take the ball off the backboard for follow-up shots, but in practice thus far he has been a forlorn hope after the first five minutes, when the necessity for sustained breath caught up with him.

G. W. Shifts Man Power To Court

Colonials Have Everything Needed for Great Team.

Overconfidence May Be Weakness; Prices Cut 60 Per Cent.

(Herewith is the first of a series dealing with the prospects of District college basket ball teams.)

By BOB CONSIDINE.

THE athletic dynasty which George Washington University built up this year with its football team should find further expression in its basket ball squad. For some reason or other the court game has failed to strike a tremendously responsive nerve in the District's sports-minded populace, but a change in the rules, the promise of bigger and better attractions, more ballyhoo and generally cheaper prices should do a lot to alter this apathy.

In all these things the Colonials threaten to lead the way. They have about three times the man power of any of the other schools in Washington. They have taken readily to the change in rules which prevents a pivot man holding the ball more than three seconds, and the advancing team to use up more than ten seconds bringing the ball past the new line which cuts through the middle of the court. The colonials will go in more for collegiate hoop-de-doo, and yesterday announced a 60 per cent reduction in prices.

Giants Return to Uniform.

Whether they will have a team worthy of the above array of laudations remains to be seen. Every last giant who labored for the team last year is back in uniform, plus another crop of human redwoods, the like of which has rarely been seen outside of a circus side-show.

For the time being the first team is composed of Wick Parrack, a 6-foot-5 forward, who was leading D. C. scorer last year; Forrest Burgess, former Central High ace, who was runner-up, and the champion the year before; Cy Hertzler, 6-foot-5 tap-off man, who looms as a real menace under the basket and on the pivot. Capt. Otts Zahn, a local product, who has blossomed beautifully since entering college, a guard with a bent for long shooting and a passing demon, and Wayne Chambers, responsible guard.

The reserves seem to be just about as good. Ox Wickham is a 6-foot-5 sophomore center, who has a sixth sense for judging where the ball will ricochet off the backboard. Bill Noonan, 6-foot-4 center or guard, and an A No. 1 shot; Johnny Fenlon, G. W.'s football hero, who knows his way about the basket ball floor; Jimmy Howell, a sophomore stripling, who runs and cuts like Freddy Mesmer used to; Lee Carlin, perhaps the greatest ball hawk on the club; Ozie Wray, 6-foot-3 center; Dallas Shirley, a former all-high, and a host of others too numerous to add to the confusion of an already complex sentence.

The great height of the squad augurs well for its success. It is a team full of lumbering giants and little fellows who zigzag with the ability of waterbugs. Parrack is able to jump high enough so that he can drop the ball in. He is G. W.'s best bet in close. Burgess is deadly from about 10 feet out in the court, particularly on the run, and Zahn's ability to "pot 'em" will make him a marked man. The team, in other words, is a constant scoring threat.

Coach Jimmy Pixlee, aided by Ted O'Leary, has some novel ideas on how the game should be played. He has a sneaking liking for high scoring games, and he is prone to develop an offense in preference to a defense.

No Standard Plays For Team.

Briefly, G. W. plays this kind of basket ball. The players form their own plays, rather than work standard plays (a "borrow" from the professional game). Possession of the ball is utmost. Hertzler is almost assured of getting the tap-off, and Chambers and Zahn (or their football-playing substitutes) can dive into any scramble for the tap-off and come out with a good chance of having the ball. There's no wasting time. Short passing moves the ball immediately down the floor. Legitimate blocking, mostly by Hertzler, is part and parcel of the manipulation of the ball under the basket. Few pivot plays will be used this year.

The only weakness the team seems to have is a slight dose of overconfidence.

Youthful Giants to Carry George Washington U. Basket Ball Colors

LEWIS GIVEN DECISION ON FOUL

Near-Riots Follow as Steele Is Disqualified for Hitting.

NEW YORK, Dec. 5 (U.P.).—Ed (Strangler) Lewis, recognized in this State as the world's heavyweight wrestling champion, won his nobody-knows-how-manyeth victory tonight when his opponent, Ray Steele, of California, was disqualified for hitting in the clinches.

The bout was halted by the referee, and Lewis declared the winner, whereupon one of the Strangler's coworkers jumped into the ring apparently to aid the champion in warding off Steele's blows.

The action of the referee was very unsatisfactory to a large part of the 10,000 spectators and was greeted with a symphony of boos and shouts of disgust.

One of the customers grew so angry he made a dive for Jack Curley, promoter of the bout, and was prevented from striking the peaceful Jacques only by the timely intervention of five policemen. Meanwhile, private fist fights were occurring all over the Garden. The policemen allowed these to continue until the combatants grew tired and ceased.

The disqualification came after some 32 minutes of comparatively tame leveling. That is, neither of the men had been tossed over 10 feet in the air or bled from more than three places at one time.

Baer-Schmeling Bout Sought by Dempsey

Sacramento, Calif., Dec. 5 (A.P.).—Ancil Hoffman, business manager of Max Baer, heavyweight boxer, announced tonight he had received a telegram from Jack Dempsey in which the former world champion proposed to promote a bout between Baer and Max Schmeling, of Germany, to be staged at the Chicago world fair, next June.

Dempsey said Joe Jacobs, manager of Schmeling, had agreed to the fight and he only needed the approval of Hoffman to go through with plans, the letter said.

Hoffman said he wired Dempsey "to count on Baer's services." Dempsey plans a conference with Jacobs December 9 in New York.

Cronin, Due in East, Hints At Deals at Majors' Parley

Satisfied With Team, Nats' Manager Writes, But Will Be Interested in Offers; to Confer With Griffith.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

WHILE, generally speaking, Joe Cronin, newly appointed manager of the Nationals, is willing to stand pat with the material he has at hand, from a letter received from him yesterday one might assume that he is not taking the long trip from his San Francisco home to attend next week's annual baseball meetings in New York just for the train ride. As a matter of fact, Joe intimates that he will have his nose to the ground looking for material he could use and that he is not averse to doing a little swapping, if necessary.

"I am quite satisfied with the club as it now stands," the Nat leader writes, "but, of course, if some club is interested in any one player and we might at the same time be interested in what it offers, I would perhaps consider a proposition. We have a very capable group of men and believe that any player on our club would benefit some other team."

Several Must Click at Once, Says Cronin.

Joe is not making any advance claims for the 1933 pennant, but he figures that the Nationals have a chance if—but let's let him tell it. "We must remember," he writes, "that we had a third-place club the past two years and only if four or five of our regulars have real good years at one and the same time will our club rise to a higher position. That, of course, remains to be seen."

The "boy manager" then calls attention to the uncertainties of the game by harking back to 1929 and 1930. "You remember in 1930, after finishing fifth in '29, we were a 100-to-1 shot to finish first and we stepped out and pressed the A's for top honors the greater part of the season. That just shows how foolish it is to try to figure out a race in advance before you even know whether or not the other clubs have improved, and how much."

To Practice Cut-Off Plays And Rundowns.

But while Cronin feels that it is better to withhold predictions and let the next flag race take care of itself, he has done considerable doping out of his plans for the spring training camp at Biloxi, which opens in February, and mentions two particular shortcomings of the past which he will take steps toward correcting.

"Our club will have rehearsals from time to time during spring training in cut-off plays; in other words, the

PHELPS AND KNIGHT ARE PRIMED

Portner's Is Scene of Battle for South's Title Tonight.

"THE Battle of the South" will be fought tonight at Portner's Arena in Alexandria, with Joe Knight, the southpaw shooter from Cairo, Ga., defending his Dixie light-heavyweight championship in a feature ten-round scrap with Cowboy Owen Phelps, from Arizona.

Called the "uncrowned world's champion," Knight will step into the ring the favorite, although ring experts believe Phelps may unravel surprising strength and punching power that may force the Dixie title holder to step at a lively pace.

The match brings together a fast, shifty fighter with a powerful left punch and a weaving, bobbing scrapper with an unorthodox style, the possessor of good ring generalship. Knight, unbeaten in seven fights since he invaded these parts back in September, will tip the scales at 170 pounds, while Phelps, who is a legitimate middleweight, but likes to go after the big fellows, will weigh in at 162. It is not unusual for the cowboy to give away weight, since he has boxed only three middleweights in two years — Vince Dunee, leading challenger; Freddie Heinz and Spike Webb.

Knight Success at Twin City.

Knight fought twice at Twin City a few months ago, knocking out Bob Tow in the third round, and stopping George Courtney in the sixth. He won every round of a ten-rounder from George Nichols, who was chosen N. B. A. champion at the annual meeting this year; knocked out Natie Brown and Cracker Smith, and scored decisions over Petro Corri, Chick Rains and Charlie Arthurs. The Dixie titleholder also has beaten Maxie Rosenbloom, recognized as champion in several States; Charlie Bellanger, Canadian ace, and a host of other leading light-heavyweight scrappers.

Phelps' manager, Jimmy Erwin, recently put in a claim for the Southern middleweight championship, and thus far, according to Erwin, none has protested. The cowboy is report-

Mildred Didrikson Loses Status as Amateur Athlete

Track Star, However, Denies Authorizing Car Indorsement.

NEW YORK, Dec. 5 (U.P.).—Terming her endorsement of a popular priced car a "clean and clear-cut violation of the amateur code," the Amateur Athletic Union of America tonight disbarred Mildred (Babe) Didrikson, of Dallas, Tex., generally recognized as the greatest woman athlete of the age.

Keeping "Babe" disbarred and out of amateur competition, however, may not be as simple as all that, for, from her home in Texas, the girl, who stole the show at the last Olympics with two world's records, denied any knowledge of the advertisement that carried her picture and praise, and insisted she knew nothing about it.

Through her manager, Col. M. J. McCombs, Miss Didrikson issued the following statement:

"If Miss Didrikson loses her amateur standing because of the advertisement, which she did not authorize, we will immediately instigate suit against the automobile company responsibile for the unauthorized publication."

Says Full Consent Was Given.

The advertisement was prepared by the advertising firm of Ruthrauff & Ryan, Inc., of New York, and, according to an officer of the firm, was published with the full consent of Miss Didrikson and her manager.

"We have a written letter of release from Miss Didrikson and her manager," the agency told the United Press. "The release gave us full permission to use Miss Didrikson's picture, as well as the complimentary things she said of the car. It is unreasonable to assume that we would prepare such copy without first gaining permission.

"Naturally, I am sorry to hear of the A. A. U.'s action. Inasmuch as Miss Didrikson did not receive so much as a penny for her testimonial, I believe she was ignorant of the A. A. U. ruling against such things. I know my firm was. Had we known the advertisement would endanger Miss Didrikson's amateur standing, we would have explained that point to her."

The A. A. U. lost little time in attacking Miss Didrikson's amateur status. The advertisement, which, in addition to quoting the Texas Athlete showed her skimming over a hurdle,

Baseball Salaries Due to Be Slashed

Boston, Dec. 5 (A.P.).—Big league baseball salaries are in for a cutting, according to President Emil Fuchs, of the Boston Braves, who is chairman of a committee which is preparing recommendations for the curtailing of baseball overhead to present to the magnates at next week's annual meeting in New York.

"I can not announce any of our recommendations," Fuchs said, "as it is a matter of unsettled business just now. Salaries, certainly, are to be cut, and it is possible that there will be some sort of a general reduction adopted all along the line.

"Business men are none too happy about the outlook for big league baseball this coming season. Nineteen thirty-three may well be a tough year for the game. We expect that 1934 will see normal conditions restored. What we want to do is to trim ship so that we can sail through the 1933 campaign without disaster."

Warner Won Honors at Carlisle

Feats With Indians Laid Groundwork of Famous System.

NEW YORK, Dec. 5 (A.P.).—Glenn Scobey (Pop) Warner's resignation at Stanford, to take over the head coaching reins at Temple brings the 61-year-old master of ingenious football back to the Eastern fields that brought him his greatest fame.

It was at Carlisle Indian School in Pennsylvania, not far from Temple, that Warner first became known as one of the greatest strategists the game ever has produced.

He took over the athletic direction of the 350 Indian boys being educated there by the Federal Government five years after he graduated in 1894 from Cornell with a degree in law.

At Cornell he had played guard and captained the football team in his senior year of an era that went in for mass play and for simple triumphs of brawn over brain.

Warner Starts Tinkering With Sports.

The old "knock 'em down and drag 'em out" style of play failed to appeal to Warner's inventive mind despite his huge bulk, that fitted perfectly into the former scheme of football things.

When he took over the quintuple role of Carlisle athletic director and coach of football, baseball, basket ball and track, his eagerness to tinker with things was further encouraged by the fact that his material among the Indians was not only scarce but green, light and speedy. "Pop" developed then the basis of the Warner system, now the twin foundation, along with Knute Rockne's Notre Dame system, of most of the intercollegiate football as it is played today.

For five years, during his first stay at Carlisle, Warner taught the Indians a variety of football stunts, most of which "Pop" originated himself, but some of which, such as hiding the ball under a back's jersey, he adopted from observing the ingenuity of other coaches. Warner had many a battle of wits with John W. Heisman, especially when they were in the South, Warner coaching at Georgia and Heisman at Auburn, in the nineties.

Brings Indians to Top on Second Call.

Cornell called him back to serve three years as head coach from 1904 to 1906 before he had fully developed the capabilities of his tricky offensive system, but he returned to Carlisle in 1907 to bring the little Government school to the height of its football fame, remaining there until he went to Pittsburgh as head coach in 1915.

His greatest athlete during this period was the celebrated Jim Thorpe, regarded by many as the greatest back in football history, although Warner in later years stamped Ernie Nevers, of Stanford, as a great football player.

The greatest figure of all his baseball teams at Carlisle was Charles "Chief" Bender, later a famous pitcher with the Philadelphia Athletics.

Over the course of his 37 years of coaching, Warner has built up a distinctive style of play, featured by his single and double wing back formations behind an unbalanced line.

Warner's creative skill extended into other fields. He is an amateur painter of note and paid part of his way through Cornell by selling his own pictures. When he took up golf he devised his own clubs, fitting the shafts into the middle of the head, to get the effect of a blow from a mallet. He also was heavyweight boxing champion of Cornell.

Noted Mentor Quits After 9 Years

Asserts Criticism of Disgruntled Alumni Is Not Cause.

Salary in New Post May Be $18,000, Is Report.

By RUSSELL J. NEWLAND.

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Calif., Dec. 5 (A.P.).—Glenn Scobey Warner, Stanford's football coach, resigned today and, in the winter of a notable career that began nearly 38 years ago, will move to Temple University, Philadelphia, to teach the gridiron strategy which made him one of the great figures of the American college sport.

In a briefly worded note to the director of athletics, Dr. Thomas A. Storey, Coach Warner submitted his resignation. It came after recent official denials from authorities at Stanford.

Warner's decision to move to Temple climaxed a year's consideration of offers received from the institution. A year ago, when he was East with the Stanford team, "Old Pop" was offered the berth. He thought the matter over and decided to stay here.

Offer Repeated Despite Poor Season.

This year the offer was repeated, despite one of the most disastrous seasons written into the records of Warner's long career. Disgruntled Stanford alumni were reported to be after his scalp. The "Old Fox" admitted this today when interviewed in his home, where he is confined to bed with a cold.

"The longer a coach stays at one place," drawled Pop, "the more familiar the alumni get with him. They begin to feel free to tell him what to do. They want to name his assistant coaches and even want to pick the team."

For some time, Warner said, he had known a Stanford alumni group in Los Angeles had been clamoring for a change. But he said he is not leaving because of criticism.

"I had been assured of cooperation with those in charge here," he said. "I have no fault to find with the administartion, student body and the rest.

"I believe this to be a wonderful opportunity and I am satisfied I am bettering my position. After all, nine years is enough for a coach to stay in one place. I was at Pittsburgh that long. Every move I've made has been an advancement."

Salary Between $15,000 And $18,000.

Although no information on the subject was forthcoming, it is believed Warner's salary at Temple will range between $15,000 and $18,000 annually. He was supposed to be receiving around $12,000 per year at Stanford.

Warner's school year here is not up until next September, but it was learned no obstacles would be put in his path. It is his desire to sever connections shortly in order to be ready for spring training at Temple next year. Only last August, Warner agreed to remain at Stanford for five years, but he will not be held.

Only Warner and Temple authorities know the terms of his new contract, but campus sources here said he would be in complete charge of all affairs pertaining to the team. The contract is said also to stipulate Warner may continue to live in Palo Alto in the off-season. He has already confided to friends he will continue to make his home here, a stone's throw from the campus.

Warner has business interests in Palo Alto and, besides owning several pieces of property, is a director in a bank.

It is understood he already has recommended names of those he would like to have as his assistants at Temple. It was also reported he would not take any of his present Stanford assistants, with the possible exception of Wallace Denny, Indian trainer, who has followed him since his coaching days at Carlisle.

Warner does not intend to make any recommendations as to his successor, but said he would be glad to cooperate in the selection of one if asked to.

Murray to Captain Navy's 1933 Eleven

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Dec. 5.—A midshipman from the Southland will lead the Naval Academy Football Team next season. The players who participated in the bitter, but losing, battle against Army in Philadelphia on Saturday, today elected Hugh Q. ("Fid") Murray, of Newman, Ga., who played right end throughout the season just closed.

It was known that the choice lay between Murray and Robert P. ("Bob") Harbold, of Washington, D. C., mainstay at center, and one of the big cogs in the defense, and many Navyans felt that the honor would go to the latter, but the election of Murray was made unanimous. Both Murray and Harbold are members of the class of 1934.

Community Center's Court League Meets

Plans for the reorganization of the Community Center Unlimited Basket Ball League will be discussed tonight at a meeting to be held at 8 o'clock in room 125, Central High School. All teams using Community Center gyms and desiring to enter the loop should have representatives present.

Officials in charge expect to have the largest entry list since the league was organized five years ago. Twenty teams competed last season.

Coach Sings Usual Blues As Irish Leave for Coast

By PAUL MICHELSON.

CHICAGO, Dec. 5 (A.P.).—The Ramblers of Notre Dame rambled westward tonight with blue songs on their lips and a fighting confidence in their hearts.

Headed by Coach "Hunk" Anderson, who wore his longest frown as newspapermen swarmed about for a pre-game statement, 35 players, trainers and assistant master minds of strategy entrained at noon today for Los Angeles, where they will tackle their keenest rivals of football, Southern California's Trojans, Saturday.

As he pointed out player after player who have been victims of influenza before and after the Army game, "Hunk" said:

Out to Get Revenge From Trojans.

"Naturally, we are out to revenge ourselves on the Trojans because they snapped our winning streak last fall and will do our best, but the outlook is gloomy. I don't know how we'll come out, except to say that we have a chance. That's a team, remember, that hasn't lost a game in eighteen starts and one which beat us last year. Added to this is the fact that Kurth, Banas, Melinkovich and others aren't exactly feeling well after flu attacks."

Recalling "Hunk's" pessimism before the Army game, however, no one at the station felt sorry for Notre Dame. It was the consensus that one of the very best Rambler football teams was on its way and that it would jar the Trojans in much the same fashion that it did Army. It didn't take a mind reader to see that the players were downright confident of taking the horse of Troy apart Saturday in a big way.

The only player on the team to be left behind today was Frank Canale, a sophomore end from Memphis, Tenn., whose work has been hindered by a broken ankle. His place was taken by Dick Davis, a hopeful of promise from Ponchatoula, La.

Roosevelt High Boasting Last Word in Gymnasiums

By LEWIS F. ATCHISON.

AFTER struggling along at old Business High School with poor material to select from for the various teams and poor equipment to work with, Coach Lynn Woodworth finds himself in the comparatively soft position of having only the poor material to contend with. A new school, Roosevelt High, and new gym disposed of the poor equipment problem.

Yesterday the former Indiana flash conducted this reporter through the athletic department at Washington's newest public high school. The floor plan is ideal and the lighting, ventilation and other details of more minor importance a revelation.

Sports Plans Made by Woodworth.

Woodworth's eyes sparkle, his chest expands a trifle and he smiles pleasantly, rocking back and forth on his heels like a prosperous merchant, as his gaze sweeps the length and breadth of the gym, for it is the realization of one of his fondest ambitions. When plans for the school were drawn by the District engineers, that section of the building housing athletics was marked off and Woodworth told to draw his own plans.

He worked for two years with painstaking effort to insure having a modern gym with all scientific advantages, and the result is a model plant. Woody is not an architect, but he knew how he wanted things.

The basket ball court is of regulation size. A folding door partitions off the gym into two courts for physical training classes.

Woody has an idea for installing folding bleacher seats on the sidelines. The stands rise to a height of 8 feet when in service, seating approximately 800 fans. When not in use, they can be pushed back against the wall, occupying a minimum amount of space, which will be about 2 feet.

GILBERT TIES MILLS AT JEFFERSON PARK FOR JOCKEY LEAD

182 Deadlock Results in Opener

Gilbert Rides Panchio to Only Win of Day for Either Rival.

Anniversary Feature Race Captured by Hillsborough.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 5 (A.P.).—Johnny Gilbert, 17-year-old riding star from Pittsburg, Kans., today pulled up on even terms with Hank Mills, of Colorado, in their battle for jockey honors on the American turf.

Meeting Mills for the first time since the latter was suspended after the Pimlico Futurity, Gilbert scored with Panchio in the first race at Jefferson Park for his 182d victory of the season.

Mills made his debut on the winter tracks in the same race, but could do no better than fourth aboard Abe Furst, a rank outsider.

They clashed again in the mile and 70 yards feature event, styled the A. S. Thompson Handicap, and again Gilbert had the better of the argument, although finishing third. Gilbert was aboard Pigeon Hole while the Colorado rider wound up sixth and last with El Puma, after running third in the early part of the journey.

Hillsborough, $21-$2, Wins Feature.

The event went to Mrs. M. Ealick's Hillsborough, a $21 to $2 shot, which came from behind in the stretch to snatch a nose victory from W. L. Johnson's Rip Van Winkle, the favorite. Pigeon Hole was three lengths back in third position.

Celebrating the sixteenth birthday of the track, the racing officials admitted all free. With summerlike weather as an added drawing card, an unusually large crowd was on hand to witness the renewal of the battle between Gilbert and Mills.

Pimlico Will Cut Futurity; Bowie Shies at April Date

1935 2-Year-Old Classic Cut to $25,000 Added; Bowie's Spring Meeting May Follow Pimlico in 1933.

Special to The Washington Post.

BALTIMORE, Md., Dec. 5.—The Maryland Jockey Club, at its annual meeting this afternoon, took the first of a possible series of drastic steps to curtail expenses for the operation of Pimlico during the spring and fall race meets of the 1933 season.

Matt L. Daiger, secretary and general manager, said the 1932 season was run at a loss and, therefore, no money was on hand to pay the State of Maryland 15 per cent on net earnings. The net earnings last year were $28,146.65. This was in addition to the $138,000 the State received through the daily tax of $6,000. The club also paid an additional $69,000, or $3,000 per day, to Baltimore County.

The Maryland Jockey Club will not even have a $1-a-year officer in 1933. These officials will not receive any compensation whatever, Secretary Daiger announced. This will be a saving of possibly $25,000.

And, to save nearly $2,500 more, the club will give up its downtown offices January 1 and move to the Riggs Building at Pimlico. The club has had offices in the Equitable Building for a quarter of a century.

1935 Futurity at $25,000 Added.

The new board of directors and officers decided to reduce the Pimlico Futurity scheduled for 1935 from $40,000 added to $25,000 added. The futurities for 1933 and 1934 already are closed and each has $40,000 added.

Reports current that Pimlico will run for the full month of May and Bowie all of November seem a bit premature, according to the arrangements being made by the Maryland Jockey Club. Too many unfavorable conditions might arise about Pimlico's running for twenty days in May, it is declared, while hardly any objections would be made against Bowie's racing for 23 days in November.

Pimlico has its $40,000 futurity for the next two years and its $25,000 futurity will close January 11. So it looks as if old Hilltop will not think of changing dates—running in May and November, as in the past. Since the futurity, which is for 2-year-olds at a mile and a sixteenth, must be run in the fall, it is not believed that either Laurel or Bowie would be willing to handle such a stake.

Bowie May Not Open Season.

There is a chance Bowie might not open the Eastern turf season on or about April 1, as it has done since 1915. The management is considering throwing aside the present spring dates and asking for dates immediately following Pimlico. If this switch should be made it would give Bowie the usual two Saturdays and also Memorial Day, regarded by many as the best holiday in the year. The usual fall dates would be required because of Thanksgiving Day.

If the Bowie switch should be made in the spring Havre de Grace will open the spring season about the middle of April, followed by Pimlico and Bowie. The same fall dates as usual would be requested of the Maryland Racing Commission. Havre de Grace opening the season, followed by Laurel, Pimlico and Bowie.

Representatives of the four racing associations will meet Wednesday to agree upon 1933 dates, which will be submitted to the commission for approval or turned back for modification. Eddie Burke will represent Havre de Grace; Andrew J. Cummings, Laurel; Joseph B. Boyle and Thomas K. Lynch, Bowie, and Mr. Daiger, Frank Riggs and Charles E. McLane, Pimlico.

PRO ELEVENS BIDDING FOR WHELAN

C. U. Star May Accept if West Point Ambition Fails.

TOMMY WHELAN, Catholic University's football sensation, who wound up his collegiate season this year (but who will be seen once more in action when he plays in the North-South game next Saturday in Baltimore) is considering offers from both the Boston Braves and the Brooklyn Dodgers, to play professional football next year.

Whelan probably will accept, if he is unable to achieve a life's ambition by entering West Point. The New York speedster has had his eyes glued on a military career for years. Two team mates, Buster Sheary and Vinny Frantz, full back and end, respectively, also will compete in the North-South game. The three Cardinals will pay two visits to Baltimore this week, where Dick Harlow, Western Maryland coach, and coach of the South's team, has established headquarters.

Has Been Voted Many "Alls."

Whelan leaves C. U.'s football team with the greatest "All" reputation since Babe Connaughton. Within the last week he has been given honorable entions on the Associated Press All-American, the New York World Telegram's All American; the Boston Record's All-American and the Heart All-American. He was named a member of The Post's All-District, and the All-Griffith Stadium teams. Last year he was honorably mentioned on the A. P.'s All-American, while for three years he has been All-District.

All in all, Whelan carved for himself the deepest niche ever recorded in Catholic University's athletic history.

The phantom half-back should make a success of the professional game, where his shiftines and great speed should overcome his lack of very great weight. The professional game will present much more sure tacklers than he has been accustomed to meeting in collegiate ball, but Whelan has not had a great deal of difficulty in eluding would-be-tacklers, if the field is spread out sufficiently, and he should get better and better. But it is West Point that Whelan wants—not to wind up his athletic career playing ball for dear old Gate Receipts U.

Thomson Recalls Two Brilliant Shots

Niblick By Barnett and Drive By McCarthy Praised By Washington Golf and Country Club Pro.

Ted Johnson, Post Staff Photographer.

Dave Thomson, master of the No. 3 and 4 irons, illustrates above his follow through, showing the straight left arm in line with the pin and his head fixed on the spot of the ball even after the ball is in flight.

By DAVE THOMSON
(Professional at Washington Country Club).
As told to Dave Herman, Post Staff Golf Writer.

THOSE who have made holes in one or have witnessed the execution of other brilliant shots by friends, know that they are a real treat to see. It is a pleasure, too, to watch a man fight back and get his par after being in trouble, and I get the same kick out of seeing a fellow step up to a tee and show the determination to make a perfect shot.

About a year ago I was playing in a foursome at Chevy Chase with Ralph Fowler, Bob Barnett and Ed Hansem. At the sixteenth hole I saw Barnett make a recovery shot that to my mind is one of the finest I have ever witnessed. Here is a hole that is a sharp, abrupt dogleg. It measures 392 yards from the back tee, and a lot of golf matches come to grief on this hole.

Barnett Attempts To Carry Ditch.

If a golfer wants to find himself in a good position to play his second shot on this hole he must carry over a long ditch. Some, however, try to make a short cut from the tee by carrying the trees and ditch to the right of the fairway. Barnett, as I recall, attempted to drive over the trees and ditch, but his ball stuck in the ditch. Rather than take a penalty stroke, he took out his mashie niblick and slashed the ball to the right side of the green, which left him stymied by a huge tree. It was impossible to get through the trees.

Studying his shot carefully, he niblicked out over the top of the trees. The ball landed a few feet from the hole and missed rolling into the cup by inches. And he got his par 4 and almost a birdie after it looked like a sure 6.

Perhaps the greatest tee shot I have ever seen was made by Maurice McCarthy, former Georgetown athlete and now a nationally known star. It was on September 23, 1925, that Mac set a new course record at Washington Golf and Country Club. We were playing together that afternoon. He was hitting the ball like a champion, and needed only a few breaks to beat the course mark. Par then was 71. He was out in 35, one under par.

Going to the fourteenth Mac was 3 under par. This hole measures 234 yards, has a par 3 and is not so easy to get down in standard figures unless you steer your ball straight. The tee is elevated and there is a ditch on each side of the green.

He looked over the hole and took a spoon. He put plenty of power into his drive; the ball sailed as straight as an arrow, dead to the pin, never once moving off its line, and for a moment it looked like a one-shotter. The ball dropped on the green and stopped a foot from the cup. To come that close to reaching the hole from such a distance is a real feat, but the straightness which the ball went is something I shall never forget. He bagged another birdie here, followed with a birdie 4 on the next hole and finished 4, 4, 4 for a 31 for the incoming nine and a marvelous 66—a new record for the course.

Greenleaf Scores In Cue Tourney

Pocket Billiard Champion Beats Mills, 125-32, in Opening Match.

New York, Dec. 5 (A.P.).—Ralph Greenleaf, opening the defense of the title he has won ten times since 1919, tonight defeated James Mills, of San Jose, Calif., 125 to 32, in the first game of the national pocket billiard championship tournament at the Capitol Billiard Academy.

Playing with the same brilliance that has marked his performances on the green cloth table since his "boy wonder" days in Monmouth, Ill., Greenleaf turned back the 28-year-old Californian in 12 innings.

Mills, playing in his first national championship, was no match for the veteran cue artist once Greenleaf hit his stride in the fourth inning with a high run of 30. Mills' high cluster was 16.

Shorey Is Golf Victor In Burning Tree Event

Mel Shorey, diminutive East Potomac professional, carried off first-prize money in an informal sweepstakes tournament yesterday at Burning Tree, negotiating the course in 71, 1 below par. With the exception of the fifth hole, where he pulled his tee shot into the rough, Shorey played perfect golf, snaring birdies on the tenth and sixteenth. He was out in 37 and came home in 34, 2 below par.

Al Houghton, Kenwood professional, placed second with 38, 34—72. George Diffenbaugh, of Indian Spring, shot a 77; Al Treder, of Manor, and A. B. Thorn, of Woodmont, 79, each; Reds Cunningham, professional, and his brother, Gillie, of Burning Tree, scored 80, each.

Savoldi to Show Mat Wares Here

Former Notre Dame Star Faces Australian in Thursday Match.

Jumping Joe Savoldi, who narrowly escaped being made All-American full back in 1930, by the grace of a marital rift, which forced the good brothers of Notre Dame to let him go, makes his second appearance in Washington as a rassler Thursday night when he meets up with Jim Heslyn, reformed Australian, in a 30-minute bout.

Savoldi has fallen upon prosperous days in the rassling profession, so prosperous in fact that he had to turn down numerous requests to play professional football this season. The big Italian has progressed well in the art of wrestling, and has reached that political eminence whence he loses only to Jim Londos.

Another bout added to Thursday's card yesterday matches up Frank Brunowicz and George McLeod, a couple of hard-swinging journeymen rasslers, who will labor also 30 minutes.

The feature, as previously announced, matches up Frank Judson, handsome rival for the place Doc Wilson once filled here, and Jim McMillan, a former mat hero who has changed his tactics to a more villainous strain of late.

In other bouts, Joe Stecher, plodding former champion, meets the expostulating Renato Gardini, and Ernie Dusek tackles Joe Cox.

MINORS FAIL TO COME TO AGREEMENT

International, Coast Loops Oppose Salary Limit.

By RALPH TEATSORTH.

COLUMBUS, Dec. 5 (U.P.).—The first major controversy of the thirty-first annual meeting of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues arose tonight as the Class AA leagues conferred on proposals to fix baseball salaries and create a player limit.

The American Association and the International League began their joint meeting late today, hopeful of reaching an agreement on cutting salaries. The International League was known to be opposed to a salary budget of $6,500 a month and the limit of eighteen players, but it was believed the two leagues could iron out their differences. The present budget provides for $8,500 per month.

The Pacific Coast League, however, has been adamant in its refusal to adopt the proposed limitations. William H. Klepper, of Seattle, who represented the Pacific Coast League at the meeting, stated he would give no official recognition to the proposals of the other Class AA leagues.

The International League, in a meeting today, reelected Charles H. Knapp, Baltimore, Md., president for the fifth consecutive year. W. J. Manley, New York, was reelected secretary-treasurer for a three-year term, and Warren Giles, Rochester, was chosen vice president.

ROOSEVELT BOASTS MODEL GYMNASIUM

the gym, resembling giant studio windows, assure the gym of an abundance of natural light. Forty powerful electric lights supply artificial light. Giant ventilating machines, located in the basement, supply a continuous flow of fresh air.

A supply room, locker room for visiting teams, laundry room, locker room for Roosevelt teams and gym students and shower baths complete the layout on the first floor.

When selecting equipment for the locker room, the District Commissioners wanted to purchase ordinary steel compartments. Woodworth decided they took up too much room, so he devised an ingenious plan of his own. Rows of wire baskets, about six feet deep, are fitted in between steel shelves. Staples on the baskets and shelves permit the former to be locked.

Individual gym equipment is kept in the basket. Students use the old-type steel lockers in which to hang their clothes when in the gym. Thus it is possible for more than 600 students to store their track suits in sanitary containers without having a multitude of clumsy lockers cluttering up the place.

Down in the basement, there is a modern laundry, with the giant washtubs, a centrifugal dryer and steam boiler. This will be used for laundering towels, gym suits, &c., when Congress appropriates money for its operation.

Upstairs is a lecture room for athletic teams, which is being used as a study hall at present. Across the hall is a room which will be fitted up as a small gym, with special equipment, for underprivileged students. The room opens out on a spacious roof and will make it possible for boys to take helpful sun baths.

man and neither did All-American Tackle Joe Kurth and Half Back Steve Banas. Joe Robinson, star sophomore center, also appeared well on the road to recovery following a flu siege.

The team will stop off for drills Wednesday and Thursday at Tucson, Ariz., which doesn't augur well for the Trojans. The late Knute Rockne did that in 1931, changed his entire battle plans in a few brisk workouts, and astounded the football world by dropping the Trojans, 27 to 0.

KEEFER IS MERCURY STAR.

Dick Keefer ran hog wild last night, scoring 29 points as the Mercury tossers hung a 49-to-40 defeat on Army War College in a free scoring game played on the soldiers' court. Lew was best for the losers. The victors meet United Brethren tonight at 9 o'clock at Langley Junior High School, and tomorrow night they have the use of the Eastern High School Gym, but need a game. Call Manager Sanders at National 9850.

BROOKS FIVE DRILLS.

The Brooks Club unlimited quintet will scrimmage against the Roamer five tonight at 8 o'clock in the Gonzaga Gymnasium.

SIMPSON FIVE BOOKING.

Simpson's 130-pound quintet is on the lookout for games with strong teams in its class. Call Manager Sullivan at Georgia 1289.

COLONIALS WANT GAME.

Richard's Colonials want a game for Friday night. The Clovers are particularly challenged. Call Greenwood 2214.

MARIONS MEET TONIGHT.

Marion unlimited football players will meet tonight at 7:30 o'clock at the home of Ray Steel, 511 A street southeast. All players are requested to report promptly.

Hitting the Headpin

BUCK MILLER went on the warpath in Section 1, North of Washington League, last night and batted out a new league record of 174 for game. He finished with the sizable total of 393.

Langdon Mills garnered team honors with a 570 game and 1,642 set.

Northeast Temple whitewashed Hyattsville in a District League match rolled at Temple last night. Ed Blakeney was high with a 145 game and 407 set. Temple whacked the maples for a 1,826 set.

Charley Bernhardt, who makes it a practice to be high man almost every week in the District Government League, was right on the job last night, belaboring the maples for a 158 game, just one pin shy of the record. However, he was obliged to share the honors with Hub Steele, of Public Utilities, who knocked 417 bottles loose from their moorings to establish an all-time set record for the loop. Highway took the team honors with a 608 game and 1,670 set.

Sam Simons, of G. P. O., scored his sixth "400" set of the season at Arcadia last night, clipping the wood for a 401 total in the Federal League. Wally Burton, also of G. P. O., won the game prize with his 145. G. P. O. won the team honors in a walk, rolling 622 and 1,781.

A 154 game, the property of MacAllister, and Gooding's 398 set featured individual work in the Typothetae League at Lucky Strike. Big Print Shop continued its weekly practice of capturing team honors with a 623 game and 1,725 set.

Edna Johnson stole the show in the Ladies Eastern Star loop at Lucky Strike, mauling the maples for high game, 137, and continuing the good work to finish out the string with a 351 score. Washington Centennial No. 1 copped the team honors with its 521 game and 1,540 set.

Charley Dingler's 357 set and Henry Phipps' 139 game accounted for the individual awards in the Petroleum League at Columbia. Griffith's bagged the team money with a high game of 585 and set that amounted to 1,652.

Cecil rolled the highest game in the Commerce Ladies League last night at Lucky Strike, 131, and Helena Meyer took the set prize with her 294. Mines led the other quintets with its 495 game and 1,354 total for the evening.

Lillian Crawford's 287 and 107 scores were high in the North of Washington Ladies loop at Silver Spring. The Five Aces garnered team honors with 457 and 1,292.

Bowlers will be shocked and grieved to learn of the accident suffered by Jackie Simmons yesterday. One of the most popular of the younger pinspillers, Jack suffered serious injuries when he plunged through a skylight in the roof of Powell Junior High School where he had gone to retrieve a football.

COLORED LEAGUE MEETS.

Organization plans of the Government Colored Basket Ball League will be completed tonight at a meeting to be held at 7:30 o'clock at the Twelfth Street Y. M. C. A. Alvin Webb will preside until permanent officers are elected for the ensuing year.

D. C. Grid Officials Name Gass President

S. J. Gass, veteran Lehigh football official, was elected president of the Washington District Football Officials Association last night at the regular monthly meeting at the Lee House. Gass, long a fixture in the local football picture, succeeded Paul Magoffin, Michigan, who refused to accept a third term.

Dick Daniels, former Georgetown athlete, was named vice president, and Paul Cohill, George Washington, was elected to serve a term as secretary-treasurer. Cohill succeeded Dutch Eberts, Catholic University, some time back.

Plans for the annual banquet of the officials, to be held at the Racquet Club on December 14, were formulated.

Tech Celebrates Grid Successes at Dinner

Senator Millard E. Tydings, of Maryland, will be the principal speaker at the annual football dinner of Tech High School, to be held Thursday night at Sholl's. Tech won the public high school championship for fifth consecutive year in the recent series.

Col. Courtland Nixon, president of the Princeton Alumni Association, will present the Princeton Cup to the team. The cup becomes the permanent possession of Tech, which gained its third leg on the trophy this past season.

Terrys and Mercurys To Meet December 18

Grid honors of Southwest Washington for 1932 will be decided Sunday, December 18, when the Terrible Terrys, 150-pound city champions, tangle with the Murderous Mercury eleven. Rival managers agreed on terms for the game last night, winner take all. A site will be selected later, but in all probability Gonzaga Field will be the scene of riot.

LITTLE CASEYS IN ACTION.

All members of the K. of C. Boys Club 115-pound quintet are requested to report at the clubhouse today at 3:30 o'clock. The team will play the strong Garfield Playground representatives at 4 o'clock. The "Little Caseys" are undefeated in four games.

UNIONISTS POSTPONE MEET.

The meeting of the Federal Unionists, scheduled for tonight, has been indefinitely postponed by Earle Moser, secretray, due to conflict of dates with the Federal Bridge League. The confab was for the purpose of selecting a 1933 manager for the nine.

MT. RAINIER TEAMS BUSY.

Mount Rainier Boys Club teams will play three games tonight in the Mount Rainier High School gym. The Washington Preps inaugurate the program with a game at 7:30 o'clock. Games with the Petworth Flashes and Warwicks will follow in order.

BABE DIDRIKSON OUT AS AMATEUR

appeared in metropolitan dailies yesterday. Tonight, Daniel J. Ferris, secretary of the A. A. U., dispatched the following wire to Louis di Benedetto, chairman of the Southern Association of the A. A. U., which has jurisdiction over the Dallas territory:

"By sanctioning the use of her name to advertise, recommend and promote the sale of an automobile, Babe Didrikson has automatically disqualified herself for further participation as an amateur."

Up to Mildred To Prove.

Informed by the United Press that Miss Didrikson denied knowledge of the advertisement, Ferris said she would have to prove to the complete satisfaction of the A. A. U. that such was the case before it would consider reinstatement. When told that Miss Didrikson's manager might instigate a suit against the automobile firm, Ferris said such a suit, if won by Miss Didrikson, would, in the eyes of the A. A. U., be considered proof of her innocence.

Ferris pointed out that Pat MacDonald, former champion weight thrower, once won such a suit and was reinstated. The A. A. U. secretary also said that the matter of remuneration did not enter into the case; that subdivision D, section 1, rule 5, of the A. A. U. rules, forbade an athlete to lend his name or picture to a commercial advertisement.

Candidates should report tonight.

AT THE POST

with Bill Bennings

DEAR AL: JEFFERSON PARK, DEC. 5.

The second issue of conditions books were distributed here yesterday and cover the races from tomorrow to December 16. Owners were shocked to find that a cut of $100 in purses has been made. The track announced that unless business picks up, the purses will remain at the reduced figure throughout the meeting. Gilbert came from behind on Panchio to win the first race and tie Hank Mills' mark for the season at 182. Mills was also in action during the day but failed to ride a horse that figured to win.

My selections were scratched out of the third race, but I pulled up with three winners, including One Long Hop at $14.60. Starboard Light and Dandy Dan were the others to gladden the heart of Mrs. Bennings' pride and joy. In the event that you are in a risking mood tomorrow, you could do worse than take a slant at these.

BILL.

FIRST RACE—CATINO staged a promising closing rush here last Saturday and took second money. Expect to see some improvement tomorrow and a set of brackets. PALATINE is speedy and may be second. OLDFIELD comes here from Maryland where he beat maidens. May be better than generally believed.

SECOND RACE—IMELDA was a fair sort at Tanforan this fall. Overcame a lot of early interference to win a sprint. Showed a good effort the last time out although third. DONATE to place and JALPUR to show. If the mud comes up, I'd put DANCING BOY and ARROW ahead of these.

THIRD RACE—MADGE DE came through with a sparkling performance here and may upset NUHAT, which will carry a lot of support to the post. RED VAMP to take care of the show money.

FOURTH RACE—SMEAR is one that I've been waiting for. This one worked six furlongs the other day in 1:14 4-5 over at the Fair Grounds and I expect to see a victory in this. NELL KUHLMAN and ANNE L. for the remainder.

FIFTH RACE—GRAND PRINCE seems to be at his best and when right is a sprinter of sorts. Left nothing to be desired in that last effort. ROUGISH EYE, coming back after two years, will draw a number of wagers, but personally I'd prefer to let the old boy get a race under his belt. PROTRACTOR is dangerous on an off track.

SIXTH RACE—COLLOSAL may be fooling some of the people, but not me. This consistent plater can win whenever the word is said. HARUM SCARUM awoke the last time and may carry on in this. PACHECO, another last time winner, for the show.

SEVENTH RACE—LILLYBET has been trying to outmaneuver me, but I'm right on the job. Here she is and all ready for that killing her handlers would have liked to have put over in Maryland. EARL OF WARWICK and MOZART for the rest. If the substitute race is used I'm taking STARCH, SUPER TOY and THE BARD.

Stocks Firmer and Higher In Spite of Repeal Defeat

Bottling Issues Drop After Vote; Turnover Rises to 725,219 Shares.

New York, Dec. 5 (A.P.).—Stocks had a leaning toward firmness today, although the stamina of an early rally was tested and found somewhat wanting when defeat of the prohibition repeal resolution became known.

Until the result of the congressional balloting reached Wall street, the market was roughly 1 to 3 points higher, having built up its cautious gains in the course of a slow, steady improvement during the morning and early afternoon. But speculators who had been supporting the bottling equipment issues reduced their commitments quickly, and other divisions weakened in sympathy, until all the gain had been lost. However, the market stiffened toward the close, so that final prices averaged fractionally higher. Transactions totaled 725,219 shares. The most active period was during the decline, when offerings were rather brisk for perhaps half an hour.

Owens Glass, which had been more than 3 points higher, showed an extreme loss of similar size, although the net decline amounted to 1¼. Crown Cork and Seal dropped a couple of points. Alcohol stocks, on the other hand, were steady, while Coca-Cols hopped up 3½ net.

Rails did well while the list was rising. President Storey of Santa Fe indicated his belief that the directors would vote a regular semiannual dividend on the preferred, although there had been no intimation that any unfavorable action was contemplated. Probably the fact that loadings in the week ended November 26 had made the year's best comparison with 1931 had some effect on speculative sentiment, but rails turned downward with other groups when the reverse swing got under way. Santa Fe, Union Pacific, New York Central and Southern Pacific closed virtually unchanged.

Week-end surveys of the steel industry mentioned the familiar sagging tendencies which, although they are seasonal, nevertheless emphasize the long distance to be traversed on the road back to profitable operations. Steel stocks followed the general market, United States Steel common finishing unchanged after a moderate rally. The preferred was sluggish.

American Telephone yielded a 2-point rise. American Can, General Electric, Allied Chemical, Du Pont, Consolidated Gas, North American, National Biscuit and American Tobacco "B" helped the averages by closing with fractional gains. Several preferred shares lost a point or two.

U. S. TREASURY RECEIPTS.

(Associated Press.)

Treasury receipts for December 2 were $10,256,565.31; expenditures, $14,185,343.99; balance, deficit, $580,847,689.71. Customs duties for two days in December, $1,758,601.23.

What the Stock Market Did

	Monday.	Saturday.
Advances	199	90
Declines	195	228
Unchanged	143	149
Total issues traded	537	467

Stocks.

Early firmness tendencies yielded somewhat after the prohibition repeal defeat, the losses being largely in bottling issues. However, the market rallied near the close and retained an average advance of six-tenths of a point. The day's turnover was 725,219 shares.

Bonds.

Little interest was bestowed upon the market, and prices sagged three-tenths of a point. Traders seemed to disregard debt problems. Sales declined for a full day to $6,776,000. Most rail issues held steady. Government bonds were dull.

Curb.

Early gains were slashed after the House's vote on prohibition repeal became known. Apathy characterized dealing. Advances were attributed to short covering. The sales volume dropped to 140,000 shares.

Wheat.

Defeat of prohibition repeal failed to affect grain prices—even barley remained unchanged. Wheat advanced ½ to 1¼ cents; corn and oats were higher. December wheat sold at 44½ to 44⅝ cents.

Cotton.

Prices sank again and plunged the market into new low ground for the season. March closed at 5.65, with quotations off 4 to 7 points. Liverpool reported a quiet market there.

BOND MARKET SAGS IN LISTLESS TRADING

Three-Tenths Loss Added as Sales Volume Dips to $6,776,000.

New York, Dec. 5 (A.P.).—Little interest was shown in the bond market today, and prices finally eased moderately in the thinnest sort of trading.

While sales totaled only $6,776,000, par value, the Associated Press-Standard Statistics average for 60 domestic corporate issues lost three-tenths of a point.

The market apparently paid little attention to the foreign debt situation and other intangibles supposed to have more or less influence on senior securities. Not so pleasant for the statistical menu was the decline in steel production. Railroad business was not improving in the volume some of the more optimistic had hoped for and retail trade was rather indifferent.

Most railway liens held comparatively steady, although there were a few weak spots in this group. The heaviest trading of the domestic list was in Baltimore & Ohio 4½s, due next March, which advanced ½ point. The stamped bonds of this issue were also active at a gain of 1 point. Soo Line 5½s dropped 4, and Southern 4s were off 4⅞. New Orleans & Northeastern 4½s lost 18 points on the sale of a single bond, while Mobile & Ohio general 4s gained 13 points with a turnover of 22 bonds.

Most of the high-grade utilities and industrials were steady. White Sewing Machine 6s were up around 4, while gains of a point or more were recorded by issues of Western Union and Tobacco Products. Loans of Detroit Edison, Loew's, Lehigh Valley Coal, Otis Steel and North American Edison were heavy.

Foreign and United States Government bonds were somewhat dull and mixed. The Australians rallied while loans of Great Britain, Norway, Canada, France, Germany, Queensland and New South Wales firmed. Activity in the Federals centered in Treasury 3s and 3½s, both of which declined 4-32ds and 10-32ds of a point, respectively. Other Treasuries and Liberties eased.

FOREIGN MARKETS.

(Associated Press.)

London—Dealings on the Stock Exchange were limited pending a response to the debt note. Gilt-edged securities recovered part of an early loss and oil shares improved in anticipation of a rise in petrol prices. Movements otherwise were uninteresting and the closing was dull.

Paris—Prices fluctuated narrowly on the bourse and trading was inactive owing to the uncertainty of forthcoming debt payments. Some slight gains were registered at the close.

Berlin—Weaker sterling exchange and the uncertain internal political outlook depressed prices on the boerse. The market closed weaker.

Europe Is Best Customer Of United States in October

Europe took the largest amount of exports from the United States in October when the total foreign trade amounted to $153,459,743. It also sent the largest amount of goods to this country, the total having a value of $37,655,840.

The distribution of the exports and imports as announced yesterday by the Department of Commerce, compared with October, 1931, shows:

Exports—	1932	1931
Europe	$85,006,698	$112,168,498
Northern N. America	20,764,517	27,268,652

Oceania	335,204	1,776,942
Africa	1,411,491	1,697,164

The exports to the United Kingdom in October amounted to $33,057,600, as compared with $50,499,269 last year. Belgium took $3,330,145, as compared to $4,248,784; France, $10,183,899, against $8,801,724; Germany, $15,726,027, against $17,326,503; Netherlands, $4,441,482, against $5,653,395; Canada, $20,491,390, against $26,610,449; Japan, $10,717,458, against $13,137,888; Central America, $2,586,241, against $3,230,308; Mexico, $2,904,535, against $2,877,550; Cuba, $2,005,736, against $3,500,531; Dominican Republic, $344,185, against $495,439; Argentina, $3,222,397, against $3,434,906; Brazil, $2,265,180, against $2,489,393; Chile, $244,869, against $983,237; Colombia, $957,351, against $762,193; Ecuador, $229,902, against $238,917; Peru, $252,405, against $629,771; Uruguay, $260,538, against $415,874; Venezuela, $833,217, against $1,095,393.

China took $5,069,084, as compared with $10,418,506, while the Philippine Islands took $3,485,705, against $3,881,772.

On the import side of the ledger the United Kingdom sent us $6,790,468 worth of goods, as compared with $11,277,908 a year ago. Imports from other countries in October, as compared with October a year ago, were:

	1932.	1931.

Receiver Is Denied In Associated Gas

Capital Lawyer Loses Plea Against Billion-Dollar Holding Concern.

New York, Dec. 5 (A.P.).—Supreme Court Justice Isidor Wasservogel today denied the application of Philip Newbold, former Washington (D. C.) lawyer, for the appointment of a temporary receiver for the Associated Gas & Electric Co.

The court said Mr. Newbold had failed to establish his charge of mismanagement and had not proved tat the company. $1,000,000,000 holding concern, with subsidiaries throughout the United States and the Philipines, was insolvent.

"It is not claimed that the company is insolvent, said Justice Wasservogel, "nor has it been shown that the property of the company is in danger of being lost, materially injured, destroyed or removed from the jurisdiction. Under no circumstances, in the papers now before the court, is there warrant for granting to plaintiff the drastic relief which he seeks."

Union Pacific Buys Pennsylvania Stock

100,000 Shares Added to Holdings, Reliable Report Says.

New York, Dec. 5 (A.P.).—The Evening Post today stated it had been informed in usually reliable quarters that the Union Pacific Railroad Co. had acquired a block of 100,000 shares of Pennsylvania Railroad stock.

Union Pacific, which at times has been likened to an investment as well as railroad company, because of its large holdings of railroad securities, was reported to have made some important recent changes in its investment account. While ownership of 100,000 shares of Pennsylvania stock would not give Union Pacific any great voice in the management of the latter, the Western road would nevertheless rank as one of Pennsy's larger stockholders.

The stock interest would undoubtedly lead to closer relations in the operation of the two trunk systems, the Post said.

CURB GAINS SLASHED ON VOTE OF HOUSE

Sympathy With Big Board Is Influence; Turnover Is 140,000 Shares.

New York, Dec. 5 (A.P.).—Although the Curb Market had no "repeal stocks" on its board, shares lost most of their early gains in the final hour of trading today simultaneous with the decline on the stock exchange, which apparently centered around the so-called "wet" stocks. Trading was light, transfers approximating 140,000 shares, against 150,000 on Friday.

Apathy again characterized dealings. The early advance was attributed largely to scattered short covering. In the closing hour, although prices turned downward, there was little more than desultory selling. Price changes were not important, gains about offsetting losses.

The utilities again appeared to be buoyed up by the ability of the electric-power industry to hold recent gains after making allowances for seasonal variation. Electric Bond & Share, selling ex dividend, was up more than a point. American Superpower gained nearly a point. Commonwealth Edison reacted more than 2, but fractional gains were scored by American Gas & Electric, Cities Service, Consolidated Gas of Baltimore and United Light & Power "A." Niagara-Hudson Power dipped slightly.

Reports that the Cosden reorganization plan was receiving favor which might soon result in taking the company out of receivership caused fresh buying of the company's certificates of deposit, which advanced a fraction. Gulf and Standard of Indiana were a shade higher.

United Shoe Machinery lost more than a point. Aluminum and Sherwin Williams were a shade lower. Swift International was under moderate pressure. Newmont, Glen Alden Coal and Singer were steady. Deere gained a fraction.

Bank Acceptance Rate Is Reduced by Council

New York, Dec. 5 (A.P.).—The American Acceptance Council today announced a reduction of ⅛ of 1 per cent in the rates on bankers' acceptances.

The new rates are: Thirty to 90 days, ½ per cent bid, ⅜ per cent asked; 4 months, ⅝ per cent bid, ½ per cent asked; 5-6 months, ⅞ per cent bid, ¾ per cent asked.

The reduction in yield rates is equivalent to an advance in the prices of the bills. Banking quarters attributed the change to the continued relatively small supply of bills in the market.

WHEAT VALUES GAIN AS REPEAL IS LOST

Barley Remains Unchanged After Vote; Corn and Oats Advance.

Chicago, Dec. 5 (A.P.).—Defeat of prohibition repeal stirred much interest among grain traders today, but hardly the slightest unusual change in price. Announcement of the prohibition vote reached the Board of Trade five minutes before the day's dealings ended, and in that interval the quotations on barley held exactly unaltered. Corn, meanwhile, weakened ¼-cent a bushel and wheat ½ cent, commonplace fluctuations under any circumstances.

A sharp decrease in the United States wheat visible supply total, together with reports of big overseas buying of Canadian wheat, unfavorable crop advices from domestic winter wheat territory and from Argentina, as well as purchasing of wheat for flour manufacturers who looked to possible adoption of agricultural domestic allotment plans by Congress were largely responsible for general price upturns that preceded the Washington vote adverse to prohibition repeal.

Wheat Closes Firm.

Wheat closed firm, ½ to 1¼ above Saturday's finish; corn, ½ to ⅝ up; oats, ¼ to ⅝ advanced; barley, 1⅛ higher, and provisions unchanged to a decline of 2 cents.

In various quarters, some of the buying that brought about a general advance of grain prices today was attributed to widespread belief that congressional action would be favorable to resubmission of the eighteenth amendment.

More or less selling at the last on the part of early buyers was likewise ascribed among certain observers to news that prohibition repeal had failed to receive the necessary number of votes.

In any event, the wheat market held most of its gains, with trade attention remaining largely devoted to evidence that drought effects were becoming acute over millions of acres of domestic winter crop territory in the Southwest.

Increase of Wheat.

Wheat price advances were in the face of a decided increase of the amount of wheat on ocean passage. A sustaining factor was smallness of deliveries on Chicago December contracts, together with the fact the December open interest was now well below 7,000,000 bushels, relatively a negligible amount.

Today's falling off in the United States wheat visible supply pulled the total down to more than 46,000,000 bushels under that of a year ago.

Unofficial monthly crop estimates to be issued tomorrow were expected to indicate a very low condition of winter wheat, as well as reduced acreage.

Corn and oats swayed with wheat. Liberal buying of January lard for a Western packer held the provision market about steady.

Fidelio Brewery, Inc.

Located in New York City

(Founded 1852)

Since prohibition went into effect in 1920 a great many breweries have been dismantled and their personnel scattered. Only a very limited number of breweries have maintained their equipment intact or have available experienced brew masters and those acquainted with the technical side of the brewing industry who could upon the modification of the Volstead Act immediately begin making real beer.

The United States Brewers Association states that there are now approximately 164 breweries operating under Government permit in the United States compared with about 1,100 before Prohibition.

Fidelio Brewery, Inc. is now operating under United States Government permit

Fidelio Brewery, Inc. products are on sale in about 20,000 stores in the Metropolitan District.

Present management and technical staff that operated the Brewery successfully prior to Prohibition has been continuously operating the plant since that time.

French Franc Hit In Exchange Fall

Recovery of Sterling Laid to Short Buying by Speculators.

New York, Dec. 5 (A.P.).—Weakness of the French franc, which dropped to a new low for the year, today pushed the British pound sterling out of the limelight in the foreign exchange market. The franc sagged 3 16 of a point to 3.90 9-16 for cables, while the pound, after early weakness in which it dropped to a cable rate of $3.17½, turned around and recouped its losses and finished with a net gain of 1 cent at $3.19⅞.

Principal interest of exchange dealers was centered on the French currency which, at its closing price today, was only 3-16 of a point above the rate at which it would be profitable to ship gold from Paris to New York. Some bankers now envisage a substantial inflow of the metal from France before the end of the year. Financial circles were of the opinion that the softness of the franc was due partly to the building up of French balances here and to the possible purchases of dollars for the war loan payment due December 15. Balances of France in New York, it was pointed out, have been greatly reduced during the past several months.

Little importance was attached to the recovery of sterling the rally being attributed principally to short covering by speculators who wished to be on the safe side of any possible action that Congress may take on the war debt question. The gold currencies of Belgium, Holland and Switzerland were easy. The Italian lira firmed, as did the Canadian dollar. Shanghai tael and Mexican peso.

Price of Silver Rises.

New York, Dec. 5 (A.P.).—The price of bar silver rose ¼ cent an ounce today to a quotation of 25½ cents. Dealers attributed the gain to buying by Chinese interests.

COTTON PRICES CUT ON SOUTHERN SALES

March Closes at 5.65 as General Market Drops 4 to 7 Points.

New York, Dec. 5 (A.P.).—Cotton moved into new low ground today, but its actual loss was slight.

March contracts which had sold from 5.66 to 5.74 on a midday rally, broke to 5.55, a new low for the movement and closed at that figure, with the general market closing steady at net declines of 4 to 7 points.

The opening was 2 to 6 points lower under some Southern selling and liquidation, the market later stiffening on trade buying and covering promoted by steadiness in the grain and stock markets.

December sold up 5.57 to 5.60, while later months sold 3 to 4 points net higher with May advancing to 5.84. Prices eased again in the late trading under a renewal of commission house or local liquidation which followed an easier turn in the stock market. Closing quotations were within a point of the lowest.

A private report placed the indicated crop at 12,108,000 bales, while another estimated 12,402,000. The figures on ginnings prior to December 1, ranged from 11,198,000 to 11,419,000 bales. A canvass indicated that New York Cotton Exchange members on the average were looking for a crop of 12,126,000 bales.

The New York Cotton Exchange service placed the world's consumption of cotton of all growths for the first three months of this season at 5,823,000 bales, against 5,574,000 last year.

Liverpool reported a quiet market there. Exports today 86,841, making 3,338,475 so far this season. Port receipts 46,409. U. S. port stocks 4,785,623.

MUTUAL LIFE PAYS TWO 1865 POLICIES

Eastern Savings Division of American Bankers to Meet Jan. 26.

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

The Mutual Benefit Life Insurance Co., of Newark, N. J., recently paid a $6,000 death claim covering two policies taken out in June, 1865, nearly three months after Lincoln was assassinated. This interesting information comes from H. Lawrence Choate, general agent of the company's Washington office. The local agency was started by Joseph C. Lewis in 1845, the year the company was founded and has been doing business in the District of Columbia ever since.

It is interesting to note that John H. Snyder, who has been in the local Mutual Benefit agency for 27 years, is the leading producer for 1932 to date. Also, it is inspiring to know that Mr. Snyder took the initiative recently in signing up most of the members of the agency for a program of hard work for the balance of the year. This group determined that they would have actual canvassing interviews with at least 25 good prospects each week, which looks like a very high number to some of the veterans.

Regional Savings Meeting.

The annual Eastern regional savings conference sponsored by the savings division, American Bankers Association, will be held at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, New York City, January 26 and 27, 1933. On the evening of the first day the annual banquet will be held.

"The theme selected for the conference, 'How to Strengthen Municipal and State Credit,' is of particular importance because the portfolios of many banks contain bonds issued by State and municipalities," W. Espey Albig, who is in charge of the division, said. "The weakening of the credit structure in any city or State is reflected in the lower price of their securities."

The conference area comprises the States of Connecticut, Delaware, District of Columbia, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Vermont, Virginia and West Virginia.

Griswold Joins Paramount.

Glenn Griswold, who resigned recently as vice president of the Fox Film Corporation, has joined the financial department of the Paramount-Publix Corporation in an executive capacity.

Before entering the Fox organization, Mr. Griswold was editor of the Chicago Journal of Commerce for nine years, having assembled that daily financial newspaper when it was first published on October 14 1920. Prior to that experience, Mr. Griswold had been financial editor of two Chicago newspapers, and for two years was Western manager of Dow, Jones & Co.

Auburn Automobile Co. announces that the board of directors have declared the regular quarterly dividend of $1 per share in cash and an additional quarterly dividend of 2 per cent in stock, payable January 2, to stockholders of record at the close of business December 23.

Joseph A. Marr, general agent, Penn Mutual Life Insurance Co., for this city, will arrange the joint dinner meeting of the District of Columbia Life Underwriters Association with the fiduciary section, District of Columbia Bankers Association, in February. As this is an evening meeting, there will be no luncheon meeting of the underwriters' association that month.

Navy Construction Increases.

New York, Dec. 5 (A.P.).—Heavy construction contracts awarded in the week ended November 28 totaled $19,327,000 against $14,885,000 the previous week, said the Engineering News-Record.

Latin Bond Sellers Watch Debt Issue

Argentine May Be Urged to Seek Easier Terms on Obligations.

New York, Dec. 5 (A.P.).—American bankers who have offered bonds here for the Argentine government are watching with interest the suggestions in that country that efforts be made to obtain easier terms on its foreign debts.

The government has not yet made any such request, but yesterday it received a recommendation from its financial advisory committee that it immediately open negotiations with American, British and other creditors "to obtain a reduction in the amount of debt services under honorable conditions compatible with Argentine traditions."

A survey of the Argentine debt structure, just completed by Moody's, shows that Argentine payments approximate $3,100,000 monthly to meet its external debt service. Roughly, it is calculated that Argentine bonds privately held in Europe and the United States—roughly 45 per cent in England and a like amount here—total $500,000,000 at par value. Annual interest and sinking fund payments when the Argentine peso was at par of exchange, or 42.45 cents, required about 87,000,000 paper pesos But with the paper peso now depreciated to 25.75 cents, about 144,000,000 are required.

THE PARADINE CASE

By ROBERT HICHENS

SYNOPSIS.

Sir Malcolm Keane, K. C., is asked by Sir Simon Plaquer, a noted English solicitor, to defend Mrs. Paradine, who has been arrested for the murder of her husband, who had been blinded in the war and had been decorated with the V. C. Sir Simon tells Keane that Mrs. Paradine is a beautiful Dane, who had been rescued from a life of degradation in Copenhagen by an American diplomat, taken as a servant to America and later made her way to England. She'd married Maj. Paradine after the war. He agrees to handle the case and becomes immediately intensely interested in it.

Sir Malcolm is happily married to Gay, but when he calls on Mrs. Paradine at Holloway jail he feels the strange fascination of his beautiful client. He is worried because Lord Horfield might be named as judge of the trial and endeavors to be friendly to him.

A SUDDEN feeling of dislike shot through him, dislike of this subtle resemblance. It seemed to him that he wanted to, but could not deny it.

Gay put down her book and sighed. "What's the matter, Malcolm, dear?" she asked.

"The matter!" he said, startled.

"Yes. You are not quite happy this evening."

"I believed I was."

"Till I spoke. But now you know you are not."

After a moment of hesitation, Keane said:

"I have a big case on my mind. That's it. I've been to Holloway prison this afternoon to learn more about it. Tonight I shall have to study it."

"Is it that case of Mrs. Paradine?"

"Yes."

"Poor woman! What is she like?"

"I think she's a little like you."

He hadn't wished to say it, but he had said it.

"Really!" Gay said.

And Keane noticed that there was a sound of reluctance in her voice as if her mind wanted to push away from it his statement as untrue.

"Perhaps it's my—I may be wrong. You are such different types."

"Are we?"

And then the conversation dropped.

He had to study the Paradine case. He felt a sudden reluctance to do that, a sickness of work. But it must be done. But couldn't work get in the way of something that was greater than work? Couldn't it be or become a separating quantity, a barrier rising up between a man and something that was dearer to him than any ambition?

He had never thought of his work in this way before, literally never in all his years. Hitherto he had always gloried in his work. What was the matter with him tonight?

Keane rang the bell for the butler to turn out the lights and lock up and followed Gay up to bed.

He went to the door between their rooms. He still felt a thin barrier between them.

Gay was in a white silk wrapper in a large armchair near a bright little fire, before which lay a beautiful Persian rug. He thought of the other woman in Holloway and felt almost ashamed of their luxury.

"And I was just thinking that I didn't want to do any more work tonight."

"Must you?"

For an instant he was ready to give it up, not to go to the library that was on the same floor near their bedrooms, to stay with his wife and forget the Paradine case.

"Well——" he said.

He hesitated.

"I ought to," he added.

"Don't be too late tonight."

"I won't. I promise you."

But it was after 2 o'clock when he came to bed. And Gay seemed to be sleeping.

Col. Paradine! What manner of man had he really been, in the depths of him? That was what Keane had been trying to come at that night between leaving his wife and returning to her after completely forgetting her. (For when he concentrated on a case he forgot everything else.)

Col. Paradine had been a beau sabreur of our modern days certainly; a magnificent guardsman, a man's man, a heroic figure bound to win the admiration of every woman with a heart for the great adventure, or every man who thrilled to the trumpet call of courage. But he had quite evidently been much else.

The woman now accused of his murder had been his second wife. His first wife had had a bad time with him. Women, it seemed, had always pursued Col. Paradine from his earliest youth. They had tried to spoil him. And evidently they had succeeded in their pertinacious attempt. Under the apparent modesty about his own efforts which the Englishman of a certain class considers obligatory Col. Paradine had probably concealed, or partially concealed, an inordinate vanity. A splendid soldier, he had perhaps not been vain about that; but he had been vain about his successes with women. The soldier side of him had been first rate. Not a doubt could exist about that fact. But apart from the soldier, with his bravura, his fearlessness, his thoughtless readiness for self-sacrifice, Col. Paradine had surely been far less than admirable. Kind to his men, careful always for them, he had been cruel with women and brutally thoughtless about and indifferent to their happiness and peace. There was abundant evidence of it.

Unfortunately for the defense!

And already Keane was, in brain and soul, passionately on the defensive. Murder without a motive; such a charge isn't difficult to repel. But when there may have been a very strong motive for murder the defense is often hard put to it. As he studied the brief Keane wished fiercely that Col. Paradine had been a man of a different type. What woman would be likely to murder a blind hero who had been splendid in battle but also splendid to her? Unless, of course, she had a lover and was being kept from him by the presence of her husband.

And hitherto Keane had not found any evidence that Mrs. Paradine had had a lover while she had been married to Col. Paradine. If she had had his traces were lost. It was possible, of course, that there had been a secret marvelously kept. Keane's experience of women in big cases had taught him that when a woman wishes to keep a secret she is, as a rule, a greater adept in deception than a man. So that possibility could not be ruled out in this Paradine case.

That was well for the defense, a strong point in favor of Mrs. Paradine.

But against it there was Col. Paradine's treatment of her. During the interview at Holloway Prison she had not said a word against him. Her "line" evidently was to defend his memory if it was attacked. And, of course, it would be attacked. Now there might be one of two reasons for her defense of her husband's memory. She might have loved him very deeply and, as a loving woman will, instinctively now tried to act as a shield against his attackers. Or she might have realized how important it was for her to minimize those faults in his nature which might furnish a possible motive for hatred of him on her part.

And then Keane's thoughts went for a moment to Horfield. He didn't want Horfield to judge the case of Mrs. Paradine. He would prefer that any judge rather than Horfield should sit on the bench at the Old Bailey when the case came up for trial.

And at that moment he came to a strong resolve. If by any evil chance it should fall to Lord Horfield to judge Mrs. Paradine—for the case would certainly go to trial after the hearing before the police magistrate—Keane would do his utmost to get on good terms with Horfield before the hearing at the Old Bailey.

"Let's get up a little dinner for the Horfields, shall we, Gay?" Keane said to his wife. "It's ages since they've set foot here," said Keane, feeling slightly ashamed of himself, for he was sure Gay had at once detected that he had a reason quite other than hospitality for suggesting this dinner.

"The fact is," he added, perhaps realizing that as she was not subject to even the most delicate deception it would be wise to be frank. "I want to be on good terms with Horfield, really good terms, not apparently good ones. He's a first rate judge and not a bad fellow, and I'm a first-rate K. C.—aren't I?—and not a bad fellow, either. So why should there be any difficulty between us? Can you see a reason?"

"If there is a reason I wonder if a dinner will get rid of it?" said Gay. "But we might try."

A day was fixed upon and an invitation sent and the Horfields accepted. Keane thought he was glad. They decided to invite the Flaquers—papa and mamma and the lively and acute Judith Flaquer, who was always good company—and three others, not legal, to make up a dinner of ten. For Miss Judith they got Martin Latrobe. Then, as the dinner was fixed for a Sunday night, they asked Mrs. George Blason, the famous actress, and Arthur Lieberstein, equally famous as a pianist. Both these well-known artists were great successes in society and noted as talkers as well as for their remarkable gifts.

The problem of this dinner, as of every dinner the Horfields attended, was how to bring Lady Horfield through it without finding fault on disaster.

Lady Horfield was in bright red that evening. She had no taste, but wore clothes that showed an almost frightening definiteness of view about her array. Whatever she wore suggested that she had been to a good dressmaker, whom she had overpowered in battle and left practically for dead upon the stricken field.

The dinner went off quite well. Gay was between Lord Horfield and Sir Simon. Mrs. George Blason sat next to Sir Simon and had Arthur on her other side. Judith Flaquer was between Lord Horfield and Latrobe.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix

WITH the parts of old automobiles as his chief source of building material, and old port lights from ships as lens material, Mr. Tauchmann, amateur astronomer of Berkeley, Calif., built an observatory which experts assert is one of the best homemade star gazing outfits in the country.

He did all the work himself, from carpentry to the construction of the clock mechanism that swings the 10½-inch reflecting telescope about to follow the stars. One old rear axle housing is the declination axis, another is the polar axis. A differential housing filled with lead is the counter balance.

Mr. Tauchmann is now at work on another telescope which, when completed, will make his one of the largest amateur-built observatories in the country.

American spaghetti appears to have some qualities that suit the Italians in some of their dishes even better than Italian spaghetti, and consequently Italy imports quantities of American-made spaghetti every year. America, on the other hand, has a demand for Italian spaghetti, and Italian spaghetti is imported from Italy.

ZINOVIEV GETS IT CLEAR.

(Gregory Zinoviev, former Soviet chief, reported dead, has been found alive. He refused to talk, however, saying that he could not say anything about it until he had consulted with Soviet officials."—News item).

* * * *

REPORTERS—Comrade Zinoviev, it has been widely reported that you are dead. What have you to say?

Zinoviev—I can not deny or affirm it at this time.

Q. But we find you alive and...

A. I warn you that you are making that statement on your own responsibility.

Q. But it is obvious that you have not departed this vale of tears.

A. I can't be quoted on that.

Q. But why not?

A. I must first discuss it with the Soviet chiefs. If you will pardon me, I will call up headquarters and ask them whether I am alive or dead.

(He goes to the telephone.)

Zinoviev—Hello! Is this Comrade Stalin?

Stalin—Yes.

Zinoviev—This is Zinoviev. Or should I say this WAS Zinoviev?

Stalin—I don't understand.

Zinoviev—The reporters are here. They want to know about that rumor. Am I dead or alive?

Stalin—You are dead. Hadn't you heard?

Zinoviev—Not until just now.

Stalin—You've been dead for weeks. I can't imagine why you weren't notified. (To his secretary) Did you send Zinoviev that notice of his death?

Secretary—Positively. I even sent it special delivery so he would know about it without delay.

Stalin (to Zinoviev)—My secretary says she sent it out. This is most embarrassing to me. I told everybody five days ago that you were dead as a door nail. And now you pop up and tell me you know nothing about it.

Zinoviev—Will you send me another copy?

Stalin—No. I will inform you officially over the telephone. It's a bit unorthodox. However, I now inform you that you are dead. Understand?

Zinoviev—Yes, Comrade.

Stalin—And DON'T SAY YOU WEREN'T NOTIFIED!

* * * *

Reporters—Well, Mr. Zinoviev?

Zinoviev (hanging up the phone)—Gentlemen, the report that I was dead was correct.

Reporters (startled)—But . . .

Zinoviev—Gentlemen, Stalin is never wrong!

$300 in Eating Utensils Is Stolen From Home of Dental Surgeon.

Silver valued at $300 and comprising only eating utensils was stolen from the home of Dr. William I. Ogus, prominent Washington dental surgeon, at 3747 Jocelyn street northwest, some time Sunday.

However, a phone call to Dr. Ogus' home last night revealed he still had something to eat with.

Housebreakers have apparently reached the stage where they can actually "smell" hidden money caches. Burglars broke into a gasoline station some time Sunday at Eighth street and Virginia avenue southeast and made off with $45 in bills and silver which had been cached in a towel case by Arnold B. Lintz, proprietor.

Police last night were searching the streets for three tons of coal and a 4-ton Mack truck which apparently had been spirited away from Fifth and M streets northwest yesterday morning. Both coal and truck belong to the Marlow Coal Co.

Four white men, arrested by robbery squad detectives yesterday morning in connection with the numerous holdups recently, could not be identified by holdup and robbery victims at the police line-up last night. They were released.

After being pitched violently to the street and having his little traffic stand spattered all over the roadway last night, Policeman T. A. Schultz, traffic director at Fifteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue, became somewhat aggravated and marched the aggressor, Leroy Harmon, of 3408 P street northwest, off to the police station, where Harman was put behind the bars on a charge of driving while drunk.

Schultz suffered only a slightly lacerated head and a ruffled dignity.

BACKYARD PARKING CALLED ANSWER TO PROBLEM BY EMIG

Dupont Citizens Opposed to Scheme Designed to Help Pay Taxes.

Conversion of backyards into automobile parking spaces with remuneration of 10 cents a day to the home owner for each car parked was suggested by Maj. Clayton E. Emig as a solution to the parking problem at a meeting of the Dupont Citizens Association yesterday afternoon at the Mayflower Hotel.

Members of the association, whose homes flank Massachusetts avenue northwest and other leading streets of the section, directed a volley of criticism at the plan, the consensus being that parking on the streets should be prohibited. However, a vote to refer the plan to the traffic committee was carried.

Would Cut Taxes.

Maj. Emig pointed out that home owners could help reduce the burden of taxation by the small sums collected from automobile owners. He calculated that three cars could be parked in the average backyard, which would mean an annual income of $108, if business was good.

Members of the association complained they wanted the use of the back yards, observing, "there wouldn be any place to put the garbage. Maj. Emig explained that these details could be worked out. The advocate of the plan declared that the District Commissioners could establish an ordinance prohibiting street parking, except for business or visiting during brief periods, after the back yards were put into use.

Doubts Mob's Intelligence.

To make the back yards ready for automobile parking, fances and "old sheds" would have to be abolished, Maj. Emig pointed out. This, he said, would remove fire hazards, improve sanitary conditions and sound the death knell to the alley dwelling.

One member declared that the plan couldn't be put into operation "because you can't educate the mob."

Street Railway Switch Removal Is Ordered

The Washington Railway & Electric Co. was ordered yesterday by the Public Utilities Commission to remove a switch on Fourteenth street in front of the Department of Commerce Building.

The switch was formerly used by the Mount Vernon, Alexandria & Washington Railway for turning into C street, now closed. The Washington Railway & Electric Co. took over certain track facilities of the former traction line.

Dinner Tonight to Pay Honor to Dr. Marvin

Dr. Cloyd Heck Marvin, president of George Washington University, will be honored at a dinner given for him tonight in Corcoran Hall by the board of trustees, the faculty, and members of the administrative staff of the school.

Dr. James Howard Gore, professor emeritus of mathematics, who has been associated with the university for a longer period than any other living person, will preside. At the speakers' table with the guest of honor will be 25 men who have served the school for 25 years or more.

Chest Board Plans Hearing on Quotas

Chairman Evans to Direct Committee Discussions on Various Budgets.

Meeting yesterday afternoon at the United States Chamber of Commerce Building, the budget committee of the Community Chest, of which Joshua Evans, jr., is chairman, perfected an organization and announced plans for hearings on the budgets of the various organizations affiliated with the Community Chest. In addition to Chairman Evans, the officers of the general budget committee are Clarence Phelps Dodge, vice chairman; William J. Flather, jr., Arthur Hellen and H. L. Rust, jr., members at large; Elwood Street, secretary, and A. G. Landrus and E. E. Gallahue, assistant secretaries.

In addition to the regular officers of the general committee and group committees, the budget committee will be assisted by five consultants from the Council of Social Agencies. These are Mrs. W. A. Roberts, Mrs. Mary F. C. Leute, Miss Mary Edith Coulson, Miss Agnes Leisy and E. J. Henryson.

Elwood Street, director of the Chest, outlined the work of the budget committee at yesterday's meeting, explaining how each committee would handle its share. Chairman Evans asked approval of a letter to be sent to the head of each member agency, in which he pointed out that the Community Chest has fallen far short of its goal.

NEW HOUSE MODELS IN EXHIBIT TONIGHT

Sears, Roebuck Galleries to Stage Show; Irish Envoy Invited.

About 50 photographs and models of modern architectural projects and a number of etchings and paintings by modern artists will comprise a new show which opens tonight at the Sears, Roebuck Galleries, 1106 Connecticut avenue.

Michael MacWhite, Irish Free State Minister, has been invited to be the guest of honor at the preliminary opening. A number of other prominent persons have also been invited.

The show will be open about two weeks, daily from 9 a. m. to 6 p. m.

The architectural show consists of about ten models of modern buildings which have been built or projected. In addition, there also are a number of large photographs, and also architect's plans for other buildings. It is one of the first shows of this sort ever to be held in Washington.

The buildings are all the work of American architects, mostly of New York. The show includes a number of standardized small houses for an industrial development in Cleveland, an unusual modern country home on stilts, and several modern interiors.

McKinley Student Hurt In Retrieving Football

Falling about 20 feet through a skylight at Powell Junior High School while attempting to retrieve a football, Jack Simmons, 17, 1389 Kenyon street northwest, a McKinley High School student, yesterday suffered a possible fracture of the skull, bruises and lacerations.

He was treated at Garfield Hospital.

Tax Raise Opposed By Citizens Group

Forest Hills Association Scores Delay in Sewer Excavation Work.

Opposition to any further taxation for the District by this session of Congress was voiced by the Forest Hills Citizens Association last night. The Mapes bill will be strenuously opposed if it is brought up, it was decided.

Complaint was made over the time being taken on sewer excavation wark near the Broadmoor Apartments in Connecticut avenue northwest. A committee was delegated to consult the District Engineer Commissioner on the matter.

Moving pictures of Edward S. Potter's Montana ranch will be shown at the next meeting on January 9, it was decided.

RECEIVING STATION FOR TOYS IS OPENED

Playground Officials Ask Donors Bring Articles to Ford Building.

Determined that no poor child in Washington shall go without a visit from Santa Claus, and that no poor family will go hungry on that day, District playground officials yesterday took over the third floor of the Ford Building on lower Pennsylvania avenue as a general receiving station and also as a rebuilding plant for mutilated Christmas toys, which, the playground department announced, are as welcome as any other kind.

Unemployed men and women are being employed to repair and rebeautify the toys received.

Thousands of playground children have become interested in the movement which is being headed by the office which supplies them with recreational facilities. Yesterday the Playground Santa Claus, at Room 315 in the District Building, was flooded with contributions ranging from three-legged hobby horses to cans of lima beans. The Playground Santa hopes to reach those families which are overlooked by the various other charitable agencies.

The old gent said last night, in a statement to The Post, one of his allies, that he'd appreciate anything in the way of toys, broken or otherwise, and food. Last Christmas the Playground Santa reached 5,000 of Washington's poor.

New Navy Credit Union Waits City Heads' Favor

Approval by the District Commissioners is all that is now needed for the inauguration of the new Credit Union in the Navy Department, Leslie C. McNemar, chairman of the committee on the formation of the union, reported last night at a meeting of the Navy Department Branch of Federal Employes Union No. 2, National Federation of Federal Employes.

Mason S. Noyes, chairman of the educational and membership campaign committee, reported his committee had been organized for a membership drive.

Improvement Near For Safety Zones

P. U. C. Order Is Expected This Week to Deal With Lighting.

The Public Utilities Commission yesterday was putting the finishing touches on an order establishing improved safety devices for safety zones and loading platforms throughout the Capital. The order will be issued probably this week, after being approved by the joint board of the commission and District Commissioners.

A single bulwark, which at night will be illuminated by reflection of motor vehicle lights, will replace the buttons now in use at safety zones. Loading platforms also will be better illuminated.

The order was drafted as the result of evidence gathered at a public hearing last fall in response to a congressional request that better protection be afforded pedestrians waiting for street cars and buses.

RESIDENTS BEATEN IN FIRE HOUSE CASE BY COMMISSIONERS

District Heads Win Fight to Build Engine Base at 16th and Colorado.

Despite vigorous objections through legal channels by residents of the vicinity, the Supreme Court yesterday granted the District Commissioners permission to construct a fire engine house at the northwest corner of Sixteenth street and Colorado avenue.

Residents in the neighborhood were successful in the District Supreme Court and Court of Appeals in preventing the construction of the fire house, but the Commissioners carried the case higher.

Started in 1928.

The legal battle began when Congress on May 21, 1928, authorized the Commissioners to sell the site acquired at Sixteenth and Webster streets, which was intended for a fire house, and erect the building at the Colorado avenue location.

Henry I. Quinn and other residents of the vicinity brought suit to prevent the construction of the building on the ground that the section was a residential district under the zoning regulations and that the plat intended for building was a part of Rock Creek Park, "perpetually dedicated * * * as a public park."

Noise Discounted.

The District Commissioners insisted that Congress had the authority to locate the fire house in the park, and that residents of the section would be subjected only to such noise as is incidental to the usual conduct and operation of an engine house

Assistant Corporation Counsel Robert E. Lynch argued the case before the Supreme Court and obtained the decision which reversed the stand taken by the lower courts.

Highlands Association To Request Fire House

A fire engine house in Sixteenth Street Highlands—"but not on Sixteenth street itself," will be sought by the Sixteenth Street Highlands Citizens Association at this session of Congress, the association decided at a meeting last night.

The association was spurred into taking this action after a statement was made by a member that the appropriation made for the engine house had lapsed. The site provided by Congress was at Sixteenth street and Colorado avenue northwest, but the association will protest building of the engine house on Sixteenth street and recommend that it be placed in a commercial zone.

Charles E. Butler was appointed chairman of a committee to enlist all home owners in the section in a Christmas tree lighting. The association voted to ask the Commissioners to provide a crosswalk at Fourteenth street beween Kennedy and Montague streets.

Boards Plan Joint Potomac Meeting

Chamber, Harbors, Parks, Playground Experts to Confer on River.

The transportation committee of the Washington Chamber of Commerce decided yesterday to meet jointly with the Harbors and Parks and Playgrounds committees on the improvement of the Potomac River. Maj. J. D. Arthur, District Engineer, will be invited to attend the luncheon meeting and outline the recommendations now being made by his office to Congress. The date of the meeting will be fixed later.

Upon a vote of the transportation committee, Chairman George E. Keneipp named E. D. Merrill, Herbert G. Kaufman, H. M. Starling and Miss Louise E. Tomlin, members of a subcommittee on signs; Harry Davis, William F. Friel and Charles H. Frame on a speed limit subcommittee, and Arthur C. Smith, J. Edward Heberle and Harry King, members of a subcommittee on traffic lights.

Bosworth to Aid Seals Sale.

Hobart Bosworth, popular stage and screen actor, will speak from Station WRC of the National Broadcasting Co., at 1:30 p. m., today, in behalf of the Christmas Seals Campaign. He will relate his suffering and miraculous recovery from an advanced stage of tuberculosis.

$100,000 Stamp Collection

Prized Mistakes of Government, Carefully Guarded, Among Exhibits; Letters Carried by Gas Paper Bags in 1870 War Also Included.

When Uncle Sam's Postoffice Department makes a mistake, thousands of stamp collectors vie for the honor of obtaining the oddity and in cellophane wrappers protected by glass cages a rare collection sponsored by the Washington Philatelic Society, which opened yesterday on the sixth floor of the Washington Building, the prized mistakes of the Government are on display.

Not only are American stamp misprints but also are world mistakes on exhibit in the collection valued at more than $100,000. Letters that were entrusted to the air currents carried by paper bags filled with gas while France was at war with Germany in 1870 are to be found in the collection. Postal communications were cut off by wartime operations and the regular mails did not function.

In the 1-cent stamp issue of 1851 the Postoffice released a stamp with almost a complete absence of perforations and that stamp is highly prized by philatelists throughout the world and is now given a place of honor among the other exhibits. Its value is said to be $5,000.

Francis B. Leech, vice president of the sponsoring organizations, makes airplane stamps and covers his hobby. In his collection on exhibit there is the first official United States airmail cover sent out from the Columbia Country Club in Washington during a Red Cross benefit June 15, 1918. India, he said, is the first country to have regular airplane service, having established this mail project seven months ahead of the United States.

Stamps that inaugurated the British post and stamps that mark the fiftieth year anniversary of its establishment also are in the collection. The U. S. Postoffice, the Bureau of Engraving and the Smithsonian Institution have official exhibits on display.

Other exhibits are competitive and will be judged Saturday night, which marks the close of the educational project. Dr. Charalambos Simopoulos, the Minister from Greece; Horacio F. Alfaro, member of the United States-Panamanian Claims Commission; Mrs. C. L. Manning, curator of the Philatelic Collection at the National Museum; Harry B. Caton, and Col. Spencer Cosby will act as judges.

Albert F. Kunze, president of the stamp group, and Ernest Kletsch vice president, explain the significance of the collection to visitors.

CHILDREN HOSPITAL GAVE AID TO 41,000

Sweeney Says More Space Is Needed Unless Service Standard Is Cut.

Approximately 41,000 children received medical treatment at the dispensary of Children's Hospital during the fiscal year just ended, Thomas B. Sweeney, vice president of the board of directors, at the annual meeting of the hospital board yesterday.

This was an increase of about 6,000 over the previous year, he said, adding more than 6,000 patients were treated in the hospital wards, an increase of 2,000 over the previous year, while the actual number of hospital days of these patients was about 46,000, an increase of 7,000 over the previous year.

More Space Needed.

"Just what we are going to do unless our dispenary is enlarged no one can tell," Mr. Sweeney said. "However, one thing is sure: we must either have more space or we must curtail the service rendered in this department."

Mrs. Frederick H. Brooke, in her report as president of the Board of Lady Visitors, also pointed out the gravity of the situation through which the community is passing as shown at the hospital by longer convalescence of patients. She explained that poorly nourished children have not the recuperative powers necessary to speedy recovery. She cited this as another argument for emphasizing the slogan: "Keep the well child well."

Reports also were made on the Junior League Social Service department, the Child Welfare Society and the Children's Country Home.

Directors Chosen.

George W. Brown, Frederick de C. Faust, Dr. Edgar P. Copeland, Charles Drayton, and Mrs. Stanley Rinehart, were elected directors for five-year terms, while Mark Lansburgh, Col. M. E. Locke, L. Corrin Strong and H. L. Rust, jr., were elected for three-year terms.

The following new corporate members also were elected.

Dr. Malcolm Gibbs, Robert Swope, Frank Edmonds, Henry Brawner, Frederick McKenzie, Dr. Loren B. T. Johnson, W. F. Ham William Montgomery, C. W. Pimper, W. B. Nairn, Woodson Houghton, Samuel H. Kauffman, Philip O. Coffin and Lloyd B. Wilson.

Informal Entertainment To Honor New Citizens

Newly naturalized citizens will be given an informal reception at 8:30 o'clock tonight by the Americanization School Association at the Webster School, Tenth and H streets northwest.

Several District Supreme Court judges will be present and naturalization certificates will be issued to a number of the guests. The fourth international bazaar will be one of the features of the reception. Handicraft of many lands will be on display.

$15,000 ROBBERIES CHARGED TO YOUTH

Three Alleged Aids Also Are Arrested as Recipients of Stolen Goods.

Twenty-one cases of housebreaking involving about $15,000 have been laid to Leroy Dorsey, 21, colored, of 1740 Eighth street northwest, with the possibility of about 50 more similar cases being placed against him within the next few days.

Three white men, alleged "fences," who are said to have received a goodly bulk of the stolen property, also have been arrested and charged with receiving stolen property. They are Ben Siedel, 24, of 1240 Seventh street; Mitchell Miller, 25, of 1306 Seventh street, and Ben Zedd, 19, of 1240 Seventh street.

Dorsey was arrested Tuesday for investigation by Detective Elmer Dalstrom, of the Third Precinct. The housebreaking charges were entered yesterday and Dalstrom said he thinks many more may be attributed to Dorsey after further investigation.

Pat Crowe Gains Liberty After Liquor Hearing

Sixty-three-year-old Pat Crowe, whose name was associated with the Cudahy kidnaping case 35 years ago, yesterday appeared in Police Court to answer to a charge of intoxication. He was freed on his personal bond.

Since Crowe first gained fame many years ago he has led an adventurous existence. He has been a lecturer, author, and he styles himself now as one who is working for the good of the younger generation.

Man Struck by Truck Is Treated at Hospital

Gideon Larson, 58, 2527 Bunker Hill road northeast, suffered deep scalp lacerations and possible skull fracture when struck yesterday near Scott Circle by a truck driven by Nathan Tabor, of 523 Decatur street northwest.

He was treated at Casualty Hospital.

BRITON AVERS TASK IS BUILDING OF NEW ECONOMIC SYSTEM

Brockway Says Abundance Is Proving Curse Instead of Blessing.

"The supreme task of this generation is to build a new economic system before the present system goes down to chaos and crash," A. Fenner Brockway, chairman of the Independent Labor Party of Great Britain, declared at a dinner at the National Press Club last night, held under auspices of a group of national organizations with headquarters here.

"The economic crisis requires much more radical remedies than the public or politicians yet realize," Mr. Brockway said. "It is not a temporary depression to be followed by recovery and renewed prosperity. It represents the failure of the present economic system when confronted by the results of the mechanical revolution in industry.

Abundance Called Curse.

"Mankind has solved the problem of the production of wealth," Mr. Brockway added, "but because the present economic system does not permit an equitable distribution, abundance is proving a curse instead of a blessing.

"On the one hand the markets are glutted with goods. On the other hand, there is a greater human want than within living memory."

Attitude on Debts.

The Briton asserted that the problem of the war debts is insignificant compared with the fundamental causes of the economic crisis. Maintenance of war debts, he averred, will intensify the economic crisis.

Mr. Brockway pointed to the hunger marchers as portent of what will happen if courage and capacity are not applied to the "solution of our economic problems."

Dr. Spearman to Talk On Character Elements

Dr. Charles E. Spearman, visiting professor of psychology at Catholic University, will deliver a lecture on the two fundamental factors constituting the basic elements of human beings' mentality and character in the auditorium of the music building at the university tonight at 8:15 o'clock.

The celebrated British psychologist until recently was professor of psychology at the University of London. He also has been a visiting professor at Columbia University in New York City and at Peabody in Nashville, Tenn. He will go to the University of Chicago at the conclusion of his stay here.

False Clew

Murder Words Written in Soap on Window Prove Boyish Prank.

"Help, I'm being murdered!"

These words written in soap on the front window of a vacant house at 2013 Columbia road, gave police of the Third Precinct a busy half hour last night before they reached the conclusion that the sign was nothing but a boyish prank.

A squad of policemen descended on the house after a frantic call from a passerby who had discovered the sign. They found nothing in the house but an old shoe, a rolling pin, a derby hat and a can opener.

2,200 WATCH KNIGHT BEAT PHELPS IN TAME FIGHT

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

COWBOY PHELPS took his pony into the ring with him at Portner's Arena last night for a ten-round gallop and lost the decision to Joe Knight.

Knight, traveling on foot, caught up with the Cowboy several times in each round, but it was a case of a defensive fighter making a good fighter look bad. When the Cowboy wasn't traveling in a circuitous direction, he was locking Knight's fists under both arms to bring the fighting to a standstill and Knight spent a comparatively futile evening trying to knock out a fighter several grades below the caliber of fighters he has kayoed in much less time.

The Cowboy was a hit-and-run artist last night—almost. He ran, but rarely hit and contributed in a full measure to the dullness of the bout. If it had been a six-day bike race, Phelps would have lapped the field a dozen times, cycling backward.

Temple Sidetracks Miller.

Temple University, feeling its football oats, has sidetracked Coach Heinie Miller in favor of Pop Warner, with the implication that Miller may remain as Warner's assistant for another year.

This department always believed that Miller did a swell job with his material at Temple, first installing the game in 1925 and then winning 50 victories while losing 15 games and tying 8, a fairish sort of a record, I think, and worthy of more consideration that something that amounts to a summary dismissal.

But the gentleman who presented Temple with a $450,000 stadium on the outskirts of Philadelphia and who was instrumental in hiring Warner at a salary of nearly $18,000 a year thinks that Temple is on the threshold of a place at the top of the football world, and when an enthusiastic alumnus with the wherewithal at his command is thinking in that fashion, Heinie Miller and his $5,500 salary isn't good enough.

Baseball Wages Sharply Cut.

The big minor leagues are drifting toward a salary limit with the International joining the ranks yesterday, and high wages in the minors are on the way out.

The International League voted to limit the yearly pay roll to $39,000, which with an 18-player limit and a bit of rapid calculation provides for an average pay of only a bit over $2,100 per man, which makes the baseball profession in the minor leagues far less desirable than it was a few years ago when the rookies were drawing as much as $4,000 per annum.

With the $39,000 limit, even the ultra stars will be playing for $5,000 or less and promotion to the majors may not mean much in a monetary way for the big leagues are contemplating equally as drastic wage reductions. What effect the lower wages will have on the caliber of players, however, is doubtful, inasmuch as baseball wages, even at their present low State, may be attractive to players with other professions in these hazardous times.

MAX CAREY IN HOSPITAL.

New York, Dec. 6 (A.P.).—Max Carey, manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers, of the National Baseball League, today was a patient in St. Catherine's Hospital, Brooklyn, suffering from a severe attack of influenza. He was taken to the hospital last night.

Carey's physician, said the Dodgers' manager, had passed a comfortable night and should be up and around again in a week unless complications set in.

Johnny Kerr, of Nats, Weds Johnson's Niece

When the Nationals last winter obtained Infielder Johnny Kerr from the Chicago White Sox in a trade, the player not only bettered his position as a diamonder but won himself a bride, it seems. Last night Kerr and Miss Olive Tongier slipped away to Washington's Gretna Green, Rockville, and were married, immediately departing on a honeymoon for parts unknown.

The present Mrs. Kerr is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Tongier and a niece of Walter Johnson, recently deposed as manager of the Nats. It was through his baseball affiliations here that Kerr became acquainted with his bride. The wedding was held at the home of Father Charles R. O'Hara.

International League Adopts Pay Roll of $39,000 a Season.

Coast Fails to Fall in Line; Bid Made for Kansas City.

By JAMES L. RENICK.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Dec. 6 (A.P.).—A salary limit for minor league baseball clubs seemed almost a certainty today when the International League capitulated after two days of argument and agreed to fix a maximum as recommended by the committee of five of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues.

The limit adopted by the international circuit calls for a pay-roll expenditure of $39,000 a season per club, with no more than $6,500 paid monthly during May, June, July and August. This leaves $13,000 available for salaries of extra players from the opening of the season to May 1 and from September 1 until the close of the season.

At the same time the International circuit adopted an eighteen-player limit. This number includes a manager, in case he plays, and is exclusive of the pilot if he is a bench manager.

International Lines Up With Association.

George Weiss, of the Newark Club, cast the only dissenting vote on the two questions.

The action of the International circuit coincides with similar ones approved by the American Association several weeks ago. Only the Pacific Coast League remains adamant to a salary limit among the Class AA circuits and the association and International owners took the Coast magnates' conference tonight in an effort to win the Far West league over to the salary-limit proposition.

H. L. Baggerley, president of the Pacific group, announced his league would stand pat on its former action and would not accept a limitation. He said his league clubs reduced salaries from 30 to 50 per cent in midseason and by refusing to adopt a salary limit would in no way interfere with the American Association and International League.

Today's gathering, the last of the informal meetings before the thirty-first annual conference of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues opens tomorrow, produced prospective buyers for the Kansas City and Toledo clubs in the American Association.

Keyser Negotiating for Kansas City.

Lee Keyser, owner of the Des Moines club of the Western League, revealed himself as a possible purchaser of the Blues, but the name of the Toledo bidder was undisclosed. Receiver Al Reuben of the Mudhens identified him only as a Toledo business man.

President to Greet North-South Gridmen

(Associated Press.)

Football stars of the North and South will be greeted by President Hoover today. Members of the North and South "star" teams, assembled to play in a charity game at Baltimore Saturday, will be escorted to the White House by Senator Goldsborough, of Maryland, at 12:30 p. m.

They will be accompanied by Jock Sutherland, Pitt mentor, who is coaching the Northerners, and Dr. Marvin A. Stevens, Yale coach, who is priming the players for Saturday's game in an advisory capacity.

Griffith, Nat Owner, At Minors' Meetings

Clark Griffith, owner of the Nationals, who in turn holds an interest in the Chattanooga Lookouts, of the Southern Association, left last night for the minor league meetings being held at Columbus, Ohio. Joe Engel, Washington scout and president of the Lookouts, accompanied him.

It is understood that the Nat owner is taking the trip in the interests of the Chattanooga Club, which won the Dixie championship last season and which hopes to repeat in the next flag race. Engel reports that his team needs bolstering next season and he and Griffith hope to make some deals along these lines at the confabs.

Stuhldreher Is Seen As New Fordham Coach

New York, Dec. 6 (A.P.).—The name of Harry Stuhldreher, former Notre Dame quarter back, and now head football coach at Villanova, today entered discussions as a probable successor to Maj. Frank Cavanaugh as head coach at Fordham University.

It is understood Stuhldreher has been approached by Fordham officials.

Jimmy Crowley, head coache at Michigan State and one of the famous "four horsemen" back field at South Bend with Stuhldreher, previously was reported to have the inside track on the job, but it is believed he has decided to stay at East Lansing, where he is well liked and successful.

175 Golfers Tee Off Today in Frisco Open

San Francisco, Dec. 6 (A.P.).—Both amateur and professional golfing stars will tee of her tomorrow in the 18-hole qualifying round of the third annual San Francisco national open match golf tournament. The 64 low scorers will pair off Thursday in 18-hole match play rounds.

Led by such noted pro performers as Olin Dutra, of Santa Monica, P. G. A. champion; Horton Smith, of Oak Park, Chicago, and Leo Diegel, of Agua Caliente, the field numbers 175 entries.

Those who play for pay will match strokes for a purse of $2,500, plus a percentage split of the gate receipts.

Two eighteen-hole rounds will be played Friday with 36 hole matches in Saturday's quarter-finals, Sunday's semifinals and Monday's finals.

Coach Mesmer Gives "Skull" Drill to G. U. Basket Ball Squad

VETERAN G.U. COURT TEAM BOLSTERED

Hargaden, Sure Shot, Adds Strength to Combination.

(This is the second of a series of basket ball articles dealing with the prospects of Washington's college teams for the coming season.)

By BOB CONSIDINE.

STANDING in the end of Georgetown's, egg-shaped gymnasium is a little dark-eyed man, with faultlessly groomed hair, who is starting out on his second year of coaching with high hopes of grafting some of his own personal genius for basket ball on to a small, not excessively fast or facile, court squad.

He is Freddy Mesmer, who, back three or four years, shone as has no Hilltop basketer ever before or since. He looks over his prospects, knows just about what they can do, and attempts to fit their shortcomings into the most difficult basket-ball schedule perhaps ever attempted by a District team. He says, very earnestly, that Georgetown will be lucky if it gets an even break this season on the court, and that is probably true, for if ever a knock-'em-down-and-drag-'em-out list of basket ball games was compiled Georgetown has compiled it.

Hargaden Consistent Shot.

One thing Georgetown has this year that it did not have last year is a consistent shot. In Ed Hargaden, big sophomore from Syracuse, Mesmer's old stamping grounds, the Hoyas have a youth who is deadly from close-in under the basket, and around him will be built a new assortment of under-the-basket plays which the team did not have last year. Tommy Carolan is potentially the "hottest hand" on the team, but is not the most consistent shot in the world.

Mostly Georgetown will have a veteran team. Capt. Crowley, Bill Connors, Vernon Murphy and Joe Corliss have seen plenty of varsity competition. Besides Hargaden, last year's freshman team has produced no other outstanding player except Charlie Parcells, whose speed and bulk promise much.

The team will have to "steal" the tap-off again this year. Georgetown hasn't managed to scrape up a responsible center since Don Dutton, pivot man of Mesmer's own day at Georgetown. About the only hope Georgetown has of dominating the tap-off this year is the possible developing of Fred Callahan, 6-foot-4 football center, who is slowly taking to the court game.

Linemen, Backs Split Even Among 32 New Grid Leaders

NEW YORK, Dec. 6 (A.P.).—A cross-section of the youngsters chosen to lead college football teams into action next fall shows that the pendulum of superiority between the line and the back field, shuttling back and forth year after year, has stopped dead in the middle for 1933.

Of 32 captains-elect, 16 will bark whatever orders are needed from the back field, while the same number will rise violently from the line to air up the morale when it is running low. So far as these indicate a trend, it is toward the choice of ball carriers.

Yale and Harvard both have broken with a somewhat persistent tradition by choosing their new captains from the backfield. Jack Dean, a full back, takes over the honors of Carl Hageman, at end, at Cambridge, while the Eli leadership passes from John Wilbur, burly tackle, to Bob Lassiter, fleet half back. At Princeton, however, the captaincy passes from Josh Billings, a guard, to Art Lane, at tackle.

Columbia, Syracuse and Michigan, among others, have shifted leaders from the line to the back field. Brilliant Cliff Montgomery, quarter back, succeeds Steve Grenda, guard, at Columbia. Frank Tisdale, full back, replaces Tom Lombardi, a tackle, at Syracuse. Stan Fay, half back, takes over the honors Ted Williamson carried at end for Michigan.

Neither Army nor Navy, however, chose to pick their captains for 1933 from beyond the first line trenches. Army merely replaced one great guard, Milt Summerfelt, with another, Harvey Jablonsky, Navy; shifted from Jim Reedy, at guard, to Hugh Murray, at end.

Ohio State alone chose cocaptains, a guard and an end.

Of the 32 colleges noted, ten half backs, four full backs and two quarter backs made up half the captains-elect, while six tackles, six ends and four guards acquired the remainder of the titles. They are:

BACKS—Cliff Montgomery, Columbia; John Buonnano, Brown; Bob Lassiter, Yale; Pete Zimmer, Chicago; Stan Fay, Michigan; Herbert Warner, Amherst; Joseph Shields, Springfield; James Kelly, Swarthmore; Ed Danowski, Fordham; Walter Tropp, Ursinus; Michael Pasco, St. Lawrence; Bill Pendergast, Manhattan; Frank Tisdale, Syracuse; Herman Walser, Illinois; Harry Temple, New York U., and John Dean, Harvard.

LINEMEN—Albert Krankota, Duquesne; Sidney Gillman, Ohio State; Charles Reiss, Holy Cross; Charles Schiele, Missouri; Win Anderson, Colgate; Hugh Murray, Navy, all, ends; Art Lane, Princeton; Bill McGee, Hamilton; Bill Fehring, Purdue; Don Lynch, Niagara; Ray Burger, Virginia, and Jim Finch, Penn Military, all tackles; Charles Kinston, Trinity; Carl Davis, Williams; Harvey Jablonsky, Army, and Joe Gallus, Ohio State, all guards.

Earl Clark Outstanding On U. P.'s Star Pro Eleven

CHICAGO, Dec. 6 (U.P.).—The United Press today selected its all-star team from the National Professional Football League.

Rocky Wolfe, attache of the Chicago Bears and Cardinals; Coach Patsy Clark, of Portsmouth, and Coach Ralph Hones, of the Bears, aided in selecting the eleven best players in the league, which ranks as the fastest in operation.

The selections:

Pos.	Player and Team.	College.
E.—	Ray Flaherty (Giants)	Gonzaga
T.—	Cal Hubbard (Green Bay)	Geneva
G.—	G. Emmerson (Portsmouth)	Texas
C.—	Tim Moynihan (Cards)	Notre Dame
G.—	Jules Carlson (Bears)	Oreg. State
T.—	Len Grant (Giants)	New York U
E.—	Tom Nash (Green Bay)	Georgia
Q.—	Earl Clark (Portsmouth)	Colo. Col.
H.—	A. Herber (Green Bay)	St. Rezis
H.—	R. Lumpkin (Portsmouth)	Ga. Tech
F.—	Bronke Nagurski (Bears)	Minnesota

The team is powerful in every position. The back field is composed of one of the greatest players who ever raced down a gridiron and the line of aggressive men who have proved their worth in many games.

Earl Clark at quarter back, is unquestionably one of the greatest players in history, and has been rated the greatest all-around star in the country.

For a second team the committee selected Dilweg, of Green Bay, and Hewitt, of the Bears, as ends; Christenson, of Portsmouth, and Gordon, of the Chicago Cardinals, as tackles; Zeller, of Green Bay, and Kopcha, of the Bears, for guards; Barragar, of Green Bay, as center; Molesworth, of the Bears, for quarter back; Presnell, of Portsmouth, and Campiglio, of Stapleton, as half backs, and Hinkle, of Green Bay, for full back.

Bennie Allen Wins In Cue Comeback

Former Champion Scores in First Test in Pocket Billiard Tourney.

New York, Dec. 6 (A.P.).—Seeking once again the title he held nearly two decades ago, Bennie Allen, of Kansas City, today opened his comeback campaign with a brilliant exhibition of shot making in the national pocket billiard championship tournament at the Capitol Billiard Academy.

The 42-year-old veteran, handling the cue with the same technique that carried him to the billiard heights in three successive years, 1913-1915, soundly trounced his fellow townsman, Walter Franklin, 125 to 74, in 13 innings.

Frank Taberaki, of Schenectady, N. Y., also a former champion, found the going difficult, however, falling before the consistent playing of Pasquale Natalie, of Chicago, many times a challenger but never a champion. Natalie won, 125 to 65, in 26 innings.

Allen hit his stride in the twelfth inning and with a run of 28 passed Franklin. Holding a margin of five balls after Franklin had pocketed 15 in his half of the twelfth, Allen slowly dropped one after another of the colored ovals in the pockets until he had scored 46—his high run of the game and enough to win.

Young Jimmy Caras, of Wilmington, Del., scored the first upset in the tournament tonight, defeating George Kelly, of Philadelphia, runner-up in 1931, 125 to 92, in 19 innings.

Ruth Bats 1.000 at Table, Hunting Camp Cook Learns

NEW BERN, N. C., Dec. 6 (A.P.).—Babe Ruth, who packs a heavy wallop on the baseball diamond, has come to this section of North Carolina to hunt—packing a heavy appetite.

Take the word of Amos Davis, of Morehead City, Negro cook at the camp, for the appetite of the home-run king, who is bagging almost as much game as he did circuit clouts during the baseball season.

Ruth arrived at Camp Bryan, near here, Saturday, and immediately started out, in company with several friends, in search of game. Up at 7 a. m., he went deer hunting, but that failed to produce results, so he came back in several hours, changed from deer-hunting clothes to bird-hunting clothes and came back with a quota of doves and two turkeys.

But about this appetite, the Bambino carries about with him. Davis says Ruth is always ready for a meal and has about "the biggest appetite" of any man he ever cooked for, "not even excepting Mr. Ed Barrow, Yankee business manager."

Take Sunday, for instance, Davis said. The menu consisted of roast turkey—that Ruth had shot—roast ham, boiled ham, Irish potatoes, sweet potatoes, collards, cornbread, toast, coffee, cake and pie.

"Mr. Ruth will be hungry for dinner," Davis said, as he prepared the meal. "He didn't eat much breakfast—only two eggs when he usually eats five or six—and two or three links of sausage and I don't know how much bacon and about a loaf of bread made up into toast."

Ruth, Davis said, is an inveterate tree climber—it's one of his favorite outdoor sports, although the baseballer sets up until midnight joking and swapping yarns about the camp fire. He's always up at 7 a. m. and ready for a hunt, the cook added.

Ruth now sleeps in a comfortable bed at the camp. He used to sleep in a wall bunk but one night it crumpled under his weight and so he tore it down and put a store-bought bed in its place.

COURT HOPES BRIGHT AT CENTRAL

Gloomy Predictions of Coach Are Upset in Practice.

By LEWIS F. ATCHISON.

BEFORE the start of the football season Coach Bert Coggins predicted that his Central team would not be very strong and the records prove that he smacked the nail squarely on its head. Yesterday Collins vouchsafed the information that his basket ball team will be even weaker than were the gridders, if such a thing is possible. But after witnessing Central in practice scrimmages it looks like Coggins is whistling the wrong tune.

The Blue and White will be represented by one of the strongest quintets since the days of Moser, McDonald, Wilner, Benta and the rest of that famous wrecking crew. The team is big, strong and fast. It can ram more balls per minute through any given basket than any team this reporter has seen in some time, a trait that will stand it in good stead throughout the season.

Coggins had Bill Burke and Mario Gregorio at forward yesterday; Cliff Keyser at center, and Ollie Tipton and Buddy Nau at the guard positions. The combination had possession of the ball most of the time and passed, dribbled and scored points in the style of pros. But they didn't suit Mr. Coggins, who grumbled:

"Yeh, they look good now, but what'll they do in the series?"

On the second team Smith and Bryant held down forwards, Melicove was at center, with Pistolas and Irons at guards. This quintet didn't look bad, but was no match for its fast-stepping opponent.

Central opens its season tomorrow night, invading the Boys Club for a tussle with the home team.

Byrd to Tell Students Of Grid Game Charges

Curly Byrd, coach of football at Maryland University, and also vice president of the institution, will appear before a special meeting of the Student Congress this afternoon at 4:15 o'clock in the university's student center, to answer repeated questions raised by students who claim that they were overcharged for admission to Maryland's grid games away from home this year.

The bone of contention is a $1.65 charge made for the Maryland-Navy game at the Baltimore Stadium.

Byrd, in his capacity as vice president, will also be asked to explain why the university forwarded a bill for $49.21 to the freshman class for alleged damages done to the Horticulture Building when supposed freshmen painted on the walls certain entreaties to the varsity to beat Hopkins.

Steele Suspended By New York Body

Draws 60-Day Penalty for Fouling Lewis; Tom Marvin Goes Free.

New York, Dec. 6 (A.P.).—Ray Steele, who fouled Strangler Lewis in a heavyweight wrestling match here last night, was suspended for 60 days today by the State Athletic Commission while Renato Gardini and John Ezko, wrestlers who leaped into the ring in the mob scene that followed the foul, were set down indefinitely.

The commission tried unsuccessfully to find some punishment for Tom Marvin, another wrestler who took advantage of the excitement to smite Jack Curley, the promoter, on the chin, knocking him down and out. Marvin had no license of any kind to revoke.

Babe Blames Official of A. A. U.

Miss Didrikson Says Auto Indorsement Urged But Refused.

DALLAS, Tex., Dec. 6 (A.P.).—Babe Didrikson, world's greatest woman athlete, declared today that if any one was to blame for the incident resulting in her disqualification as an amateur it was Foster Jacoby, Texas Amateur Athletic Union official.

In a statement given out through Homer Mitchell, her employer, Miss Didrikson reiterated she did not give her consent to publication of her picture in an advertisement of a new automobile model, the grounds for her suspension by Amateur Athletic Union officials. She said:

"A few days ago, Foster Jacoby, Texas Amateur Athletic Union official, came to me and wanted me to go with him to a local automobile dealer. I consented. Mr. Jacoby, Gordon Perry, owner of the automobile agency, and myself got in one of the new cars and drove around a bit. They both tried to get me to sign an indorsement of the car. I told Mr. Jacoby, the Amateur Athletic Union official, that it would impair my amateur standing. He didn't seem to think so, but I refused to sign.

"I did have my picture made with the car, but strictly instructed them not to use it in any kind of promotion work. The next thing I heard, is my suspension. If any one is to blame, it is the Amateur Athletic Union representative who has been trying to get me to turn professional since my victories in the Olympics at Los Angeles."

Mitchell, an insurance man, said he intends to fight for Miss Didrikson's reinstatement through the courts if necessary.

Dykes to Manage Chisox, Is Report

Former Mack Infielder to Succeed Fonseca, Says Columbus Dispatch.

Chicago, Dec. 6 (A.P.).—The Chicago Evening American today published a special dispatch from Columbus, Ohio, that reports were current that Lew Fonseca would not be retained as manager of the White Sox through the 1933 season.

Jimmy Dykes, obtained last fall from Philadelphia, was slated as Fonseca's successor, the dispatch said.

Harry Grabiner, vice president of the White Sox, said no change was contemplated and that Fonseca was absent from the baseball meeting at Columbus because of the illness of his mother.

Philadelphia, Dec. 6 (A.P.).—Jimmy Dykes, former Athletics' third baseman, said tonight he does not want to manage the Chicago White Sox until his playing days are over, but that an offer of a player-managership would be a "different proposition."

Cowboy Sent To Floor in 4th Round

Is Up Without Count But Slows Action by Running Tactics.

Knight Always Ahead; Finazzo and Irving Win Decisions.

THE Southern light-heavyweight crown, which Joe Knight staked against Cowboy Owen Phelps, former Arizona cowpuncher, last night at Portner's Arena in Alexandria, still adorns the head of the fighting Georgian. The result was never in doubt.

Before what arena officials called the largest crowd in history—estimated at 2,200—Knight belted his opponent with enough lefts and rights to win every round of the dull ten-round battle and a unanimous decision. Neither Referee Charlie Short nor the judges gave Phelps a single round, so convincing was the Dixie boy's victory.

Phelps' showing was disappointing. Long considered a tough man to box because of his unorthodox style and his weaving, bouncing and bobbing ring tactics, the Arizonan failed to show any sustained attack or even a blow that would so much as sting his adversary. Knight did all of the leading and Phelps obviously did all of the holding.

Phelps Keeps Away From Knight.

With Phelps dancing around the ring from corner to corner and backing away every time Knight prepared to fire his shot, and clinging to his opponent after charging in to block punches, the Dixie champion found it practically impossible to trade blows at close range. But when blows were landed, Knight was the man to land them.

Knight proved his superiority from the opening gong. In the second he smacked a walloping left to Phelps' solar plexus and a few seconds later stung him with lefts to the face. Phelps is said to have the reputation of being able to fathom all left-handed artists, and also never to have been knocked out or off his feet, but in the fourth round the raven-haired Southerner cut loose with a volley of punches and a right cross followed by a quick left to Phelps' jaw, which swung the cowboy around and sent him to the canvas without a count. Phelps arose. As he did Knight followed with two crashing lefts and another right that had the cowboy dizzy. It looked like Knight was on his way to a knock-out, but Phelps braced and weathered the storm just as the bell rang.

Knight Accepts Bid to "Come On."

In the fifth, Phelps came out dancing, and in backing away from one of Knight's lefts told the champion to "come on." Knight did, but Phelps jumped away, and then tied him up in a knot. The crowd booed in the sixth and serenaded the fighters with a chorus of boos and hisses as they went back to their corners in the seventh. There was more razzing in the eighth.

Knight finished the fight as fresh as when he started. He weighed 168 pounds; Phelps, 163.

The semiwindup of six rounds went to pudgy Joe Finazzo, 163-pounder of Baltimore, by a clear margin, with Walter Kirkwood, Washington 150-pounder, as the victim. Kirkwood was battered hard, but gamely took the blows.

In the feature preliminary of six rounds, Henry (Popeye) Irving won a unanimous decision from Lloyd Phelps, of Mesa, Ariz. George Esrick, of Baltimore, whipped Jesse Belt, substituting for Cary Wright, in the opening preliminary of four rounds, while Roy Kid Manley, southpaw slugger from Arkansas, showed marked improvement in boxing in his four-round victory over Leroy Zinkam, of Baltimore.

GILBERT, WITH 2 JEFFERSON PARK WINNERS, TOPS JOCKEYS

Mills Shoved Back to 2nd In Race

Roguish Eye in Comeback After Lay-Off Since 1928.

Easily Wins Feature, With Protractor Next Home.

JEFFERSON PARK RACE TRACK, Dec. 6 (A.P.).—Johnny Gilbert's determined dash after Hank Mills finally was rewarded with the running of the third race. Riding the longshot Strap Hanger, the Kansas boy crashed into the winning column with a length and a half to spare for his 183d winner, one more than his rival has to date. Toy Town was second with Miss Hutcheson third.

Miss Alden, with Mills in the saddle, finished fourth. Both Gilbert and Mills had lightly regarded mounts and they raced closely aligned for nearly the entire journey. Miss Alden faltered in the closing furlong, while Strap Hanger went on to catch and pass Toy Town in a drive. The winner paid $18.40.

Gilbert Completes Double in Fourth.

Gilbert increased his lead over Mills by earning a double in the fourth contest, the speedy gelding Indicative leading all the way to give Gilbert two in a row. Four lengths behind Indicative came Nell Kuhlman to annex the place from Smear by a neck. Once in front Indicative left no doubt as to his superiority. Gilbert sitting still as his charge easily outran the field. Nell Kuhlman made up a lot of ground in the final quarter-mile to beat Smear. The winner paid $3.80.

Gilbert came mighty close to passing Mills as early as the second event when his mount, the well-played Donate, was beaten a neck by the $27-for-$2 shot, Imelda, Beck up. Muir Station was third, two lengths back after a rough trip.

Gilbert shot Donate into a daylight advantage after the break with Wichita and Imelda next in line. Turning for home Gilbert saved ground, used his whip and drew away slightly as Imelda challenged, but the latter's bid was too strong in the final furlong and Donate succumbed in the closing strides.

Roguish Wins After Long Lay-Off.

It looks like J. J. ("Bathhouse John") Coughlin's 6-year-old Roguish Eye is going to have a lot to say in repudiation of the old axiom, "They never come back." Making his first public appearance since he was beaten a head by High Strung in the Belmont Futurity of 1928, the son of Flittergold—Sly Wink today made some capable sprinters look very cheap in the featured Algiers Purse of 6 furlongs.

Roguish Eye outran his field by a wide margin all the way and finished a half-dozen lengths clear of L. Perry's Protractor, the latter piloted by Hank Mills. Quatra Bras II took the show, another length and a half away. The winner's time was 0:23 1-5, 0:47, 1:12, and he paid $7.20.

Jockey P. T. Martin rode the victor, and, although away last in the field of six, Roguish Eye was well up in the bunched group. He quickly dashed to the fore, and, winding a roguish eye at his pursuers, opened up a wide lead that was increased at every pole, winning with plenty in reserve. Protractor was hard ridden and was always second best.

G. W. "Most Valuable" Gridman to Get Trophy

Omicron Delta Kappa, national honorary fraternity, which has a chapter at George Washington University, yesterday placed in competition a 23-inch high silver trophy which it will present to "the most valuable player" of the 1932 Colonial football team at the football banquet to be held December 14.

Sports editors of the various newspapers in Washington will select the player. The trophy is a perpetual one.

Tickets for the banquet, which is being given by the alumni to celebrate the successful season, are on sale at the G. W. athletic office.

AT THE POST

with Bill Bennings

DEAR AL: JEFFERSON PARK, DEC. 6.

It's beginning to look like Count Bennings can't tell a lie. I warned you several days ago that I was going to dig up a few good things as soon as I got the lay of the land here. Started off yesterday with Catino at $7 and made it two in a row with my exclusive longshot pick, Imelda, at $27. Had to be satisfied with some stragglers in the money in the third, fourth, fifth and sixth but we knocked them for a loop in the final with Earl of Warwick at $25.80. I have come to the conclusion that you need more than a form sheet to pick winners at this merry-go-round. Well, Old Roguish Eye didn't need that prep. Stepped right out and won at the first asking. I didn't have the word, so had to put him second. If the urge comes to wager tomorrow, all you need is the dough and these.

BILL.

FIRST RACE—Boy, oh, boy! Here's the special fresh from Maryland and rarin' to show the natives a thing or two at a mile and a quarter. Shipped well and only needs a rider with confidence enough to sit tight until the turn into the stretch. I mean MONOCLE. The other places I will assign to previous winners at this course—SOUTHCO and PORT O' PLAY.

SECOND RACE—I chased POLAIRE into the money on one occasion and now let's see if I can squeeze out a set of brackets. There's little class here. ROYAL TREASURE and AIR WISE for the rest.

THIRD RACE—JUSTINA has been showing good form in the morning and this may be the indicator for a winning performance. Looked like rain here tonight and an off track would help them put this one over. The ancient MONTFERRAT may be up to a good effort. BLUE JOHN for the show.

FOURTH RACE—WHIPPERCRACKER comes to the test with reports that he is in best condition. Has class after a fashion, and I believe he will lead HOOPS home. LA SALLE has failed me, so I'm putting him third. If the track becomes muddy, DURVA would move up.

FIFTH RACE—I'm going to give MODESTO a chance. This one has shown nothing here, but I have reason to believe that an upset will not be a surprise in some precincts. EISENBERG and COL. HATFIELD for the place battle.

SIXTH RACE—CAMP BOSS was no Man o' War in Maryland, but a fair sort of sprinter. This one may work up enough energy to slide to the wire ahead of MOST WISE and ALTMARK.

SEVENTH RACE—BUSINESS might pick up in this. Not a classy animal, but good enough on occasions to beat such as these. KYBO and DESERVE for the rest. If the substitute race is needed, tab these: PRATE, MASTER OGDEN and UNCLE CHARLIE.

Hitting the Headpin

MEMBERS of the Columbia Heights loop opened up with a bombardment on the duckpins that shook the very foundations of Arcadia last night in a brilliant exhibition of bowling pyrotechnics. Oddly enough, only one record was shattered in the general assault on the pins.

Perce Wolfe blasted the individual record with a 421 score that promises to last the remainder of the year. Dave Liggum came within three pins of equaling the game mark held by Sam Simon when he peppered the pins for a 172 score. He finished with a 414 set.

The teams rolled double-header matches and Paully Harrison seized the opportunity to roll a pair of 400 sets. The first was 15 bottles above that figure and the second exceeded it by an even dozen sticks. Harrison also had games of 150 and 158.

Others who improved their season averages considerably were Charley Walson with a 159 game; Ollie Webb, 166; Karl Gouchenour, 154 and 407 set; Ed Konnick, 150; "Reds" Rhodes, 151; "Lefty" Wesley, 153, and Nick Chaconas, 153.

Among the teams, Vincent's Barber rattled out 620 and 634 games; Arcadia had a 645 count and Ambassador Laundry, 651. Cool's tattooed the maples with 628 and 631 games and 1,865 and 1,816 sets. Swann's rolled an 1,815 set also.

O'Connell's 135 game and 355 set topped the Insurance League pinspilling at Lucky Strike. Eureka took high game honors with 546 and Peoples Life marked up a 1,581 set.

Ellis, with a 111 game, and Thomas, with 308 for his set, led the individual lists in the Eastern Star Ladies League at Lucky Strkie. Ruth dropped 503 pins for high team game, and 1,444 for the set. Modernists rolled a 562 game and Victorian a 1,589 set.

Runlale's 155 and Story's 357 accounted for individual awards in the Supervising Architects loop at Lucky Strike.

The boys who print this page had themselves a time of it yesterday at Lucky Strike in The Post League. Suess, Orme and Kobb were battling it out for high individual set and it was a close race with Orme's 342, one pin ahead of Suess, who, in turn, was a single point in front of Kobb. But along came Scott with a 377 that made the others look like a bunch of beginners. And Scottie took the game honors with no trouble at all, rolling 134.

A similar battle for team honors was in progress between the Diamonds, Pearls, Gothics and Minions. All were closely bunched. A more consistent crew, however, bagged the laurels with a 1,513 total. Pearls managed to save high game from the wreckage, 526.

Moore starred in Section C, Holy Name League, last night, rolling 133 and 377. Holy Comforter pounded out a 537 game and Holy Trinity copped the set honors with an even 1,500.

Loretta Leaman hung up a new game mark for the season in the Washington Ladies' League at Columbia last night when she scattered 151 pins. Her set was 357. Catherine Quigley bettered the latter with 367. Sue Harrison, who sports an 88 average for the season, surprised with a powerful 148 game and 353 set. Bee Ques, with 1,613, and Columbians, with 556, topped the teams.

Stenographic rocked the maples for a 496 game and 1,424 set in the Internal Revenue Ladies' loop at Columbia. Mae Sperber's 325 set and 118 game were high.

L. Grimmnitz established an all-time game record for the Postoffice Department League at Columbia, knocking down 151 pins. Bob Fellers' 351 set was best. Ebonies took the five-man laurels with 1,514 and 573.

Deuchert's 146 and 379 scores were the best of the lot in the Men's Lutheran League at Arcadia. Georgetown rattled the maples for a 583 game and St. John's No. 2 followed suit with 1,680 for set.

In the Ladies Lutheran League, also at Arcadia, Miss Broeker garnered the individual honors with a 132 game and 306 total. Zion's 514 and Trinity's 1,387 accounted for the team awards.

And lest we forget, league secretaries are reminded to not delay forwarding the team standings for Sunday's paper. Get them in by Friday, or sooner.

Marions Satisfied With Sandlot Title

It was a sorry looking group of young men who gathered last night for the final meeting this season of the Marion football team. All who played in the final game of the season against the Mohawks last Sunday were nursing bruises of one nature or another. Some were seriously injured.

The Marions are satisfied with the amateur grid title of the city, the Hawks can and should have the pro title. The Indians convinced them of this last Sunday.

A final check-up on all injuries revealed the following players to be the most seriously hurt:

Rudy Hughes, possible broken ankle; George Shorb, wrenched knee; Frank Harper, wrenched knee; "Hike" Licarione, dislocated hip; Grogan, simply exhausted; Steel, possible rupture of stomach, sprained hand. All were in excellent physical condition before the game.

The Mohawk injuries were nil.

WILSON FIVE WINS OVER WESTERN

Overcomes 11-3 Lead at Half to Defeat High School Team.

"BONES" COURTNEY, whose lean, angular figure was a prominent part of Eastern's championship basket ball team last season, led Wilson Teachers College to a thrilling 19-to-17 victory over Western yesterday. The future schoolmasters came from behind in the closing minutes of the fray to nab the victory.

Exhibiting a vast improvement over its first appearance of the season last week against Bethesda-Chevy Chase, Western opened up with a steady attack on the cords that enabled it to lead by a score of 9 to 0 at the end of the first period, and 11 to 3 at the intermission.

Substitutes Unable to Hold Lead.

But the substitutes who had filtered into the fray from the Western bench as the score mounted were unable to protect the lead and Wilson pulled up to a 17-to-10 count as the final period opened. Courtney flipped two baskets in rapid-fire order, and another 2-pointer by English, followed by George Fox's successful free toss, knotted the count.

Fox put Wilson out in front for good with a pot shot from the side court, and though Western peppered the backboard in the final minute of play, it failed to score.

The Western Lightweight Ineligibles defeated the Lightweight Eligibles, 13 to 11, in a fast preliminary game.

Community Center Fives in 2 Sections

19 Teams Will Answer Call With More Expected to Enter League.

Nineteen teams answered the call of the Community Center Basket Ball League last night when a reorganization meeting was held at Central High to receive franchises. At least five more teams are expected to enter before entries close December 13. Games will be played at Central, Eastern, Roosevelt, Hines and Powell gymnasiums.

The teams will be divided into two distinct leagues, according to their expected ability, which will be ruled on by an independent board of managers. At the conclusion of the season the winners and runners-up of both leagues will play a round-robin for the championship.

The nineteen teams which sent representatives to the meeting were as follows: Sholl's, Eagles, Atlas, Griffith Consumers, Tremonts, K. of C., Swann's, Naval Reserves, First Baptists, Powell, Delaware & Hudson (defending champions), Mount Vernon, Western Wildcats, Crescents, Bureau of Investigation, Drakes, Rhode Island Baptists, United Typewriters and Olmsted Grill.

All the teams plan to enter the annual Washington Post-A. A. U. tournament for the District championship upon the conclusion of league play.

DEPARTMENTAL LEAGUE.

The Departmental Basket Ball League opened last night at the Y. M. C. A. with Reconstruction Finance beating State Department, 29-18; Labor nosing out Bureau of Standards, 27-25, and Naval Hospital doing about the same thing to Patent Office, 26-22.

Labor's victory over Bureau of Standards came in the last minute of play.

TROJANS GET LET-DOWN IN WORK

Coach Fears Staleness for Notre Dame Clash.

By PAUL ZIMMERMAN.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 6 (A.P.).—Fear that his University of Southern California football squad might become stale if given too much work in preparation for its game with Notre Dame here Saturday caused Coach Howard Jones to ease up on practice today.

Word filtered from behind the locked gates of Troy that the workout this afternoon did not include even so much as dummy scrimmage, and although the drill was brief, Coach Jones let it be known the remaining practice sessions would be even shorter.

No Practice Scheduled Friday.

The chances are strong there will be no workout the day before the game. Coach Jones, in cutting the practice schedule, chose what he believes is the lesser of two evils, for some of the players have a tendency to put on too much weight when work isn't meted out in large doses.

Continued reports of the influenza epidemic aboard the Notre Dame train en route here have not affected the Trojans. The entire team continues to move along without serious injury or illness, and all hands are inclined to be a bit dubious about word concerning the dire condition of the Ramblers.

Capt. Tay Brown, big left tackle, said yesterday he was off feed and felt as though he was taking cold, but reported in good condition for today's practice.

There has been no indication as to what the trend of the secret workouts has been in regard to the Trojans' plans for offense or defense, but some are inclined to believe Coach Jones has been priming his team for an aerial battle.

Trojans Confident of Line Power.

The fact that only two touchdowns have been scored on S. C. this year, both of them by air, has put supreme confidence in Trojan backers that the Ramblers are going to find it just as hard to crack the powerful line as did eight other teams.

Judging from past experience, the Trojans expect to find perhaps as much trouble penetrating the Notre Dame forward wall, which leaves the decision entirely in the air.

Bob McNeish, a sub half, is the best pass thrower on the squad, but Ford Palmer, an end, swings back to do some throwing, and both of the quarter back candidates, Homer Griffith and Irvine Warburton, pitch the ball with comparatively good success. Palmer seems to be the best receiver of the lot, although Griffith and Gordon Clark take the ball occasionally.

Ambulances Will Meet Notre Dame's Train

Chicago, Dec. 6 (A.P.).—Ambulances will remove Notre Dame "flu" victims from the train when the squad speeding westward for a game with Southern California at Los Angeles Saturday reaches Tucson, Ariz., tomorrow morning.

As the result of the illness to his players Coach (Hunk) Anderson, according to special dispatches to the Herald and Examiner, tonight is at a loss to name a starting lineup for Saturday's game. One of his regulars, Ray Brancheau, right half back, has been confined to his berth since the team left Chicago. He has been under constant care of a physician.

The other ailing members, notably Joe Kurth and Steve Banas, have been able to get up for awhile, but Anderson is taking no chances and has wired ahead for two ambulances to meet the train at Tucson.

HOUGHTON ON RADIO.

Al Houghton, Kenwood Golf and Country Club professional, broadcast the first of his weekly winter golf series, "From Tee to Green," over radio Station WOL last night. He was interviewed by Dave Herman, Post golf writer. Houghton will be heard every Tuesday night at 6:15.

Stocks Ignore Wet Defeat In Advance of 2.6 Points

Best Rally Since Nov. 10 Is Staged in Sale of 1,110,458 Shares.

New York, Dec. 6 (A.P.).—Stocks enjoyed their best rally in almost a month today.

The share market showed no further traces of disappointment over the rejection of prohibition repeal. On the other, hand, prices were firm from the opening. Fairly liberal gains in the first hour were held through the morning and early afternoon, a circumstance that doubtless had its effect on the short interest, which briskly elbowed its way out in the last half hour. Net gains, ranging from a fraction to more than 5 points, averaged into a rise of 2.6 points, the largest since November 10. Turnover increased to 1,110,458 shares.

President Hoover's message crowded out other news, although a glance at the foreign exchange tables showed sterling firm and French francs at another new low, this time down to the gold point. Also, reports reached Wall street of further and rather substantial shipments of gold from England, although it was assumed in banking quarters that the latter had nothing to do with the December 15 debt installment.

The President's communication to Congress, stressing Government economy and a general manufacturers' sales tax, met with a kindly reception in Wall street quarters, which hold that a balanced budget is the first requirement toward lasting recovery. The manufacturers' tax idea has many friends in financial circles; so, also, has the general thesis of banking changes.

Apparently on the thesis that the balance of news was on the constructive side, stocks rose just as easily as they had recently declined. The market in several cases was thin, but its technical position was strong and short repurchasers generally found offerings limited.

Union Pacific's gain was more than 5 points, American Telephone's about a point less, Santa Fe's nearly 4, and Allied Chemical's 5. Automobile stocks assumed considerable group activity, even though it may be a little early for the usual preshow demonstrations. U. S. Steel had a net gain of 2¾, American Can, Westinghouse, Du Pont American Can, Tobacco "B," Case, North American, Southern Pacific, New York Central and Northern Pacific 2 to more than 3, and General Motors, Chrysler, Montgomery Ward, Bethlehem Steel and Standard Oil of New Jersey, among many others, about a point each.

Safeway Stores was pushed up about 5 points under heavy selling evidently inspired by dividend uncertainty; it recovered partially. International Telephone also weakened in response to its Spanish situation; otherwise, soft spots were few.

Foreign debts held temporarily in abeyance, but it was indicated that a special presidential message would be sent to Congress on this subject.

Trade reports included further evidence that November chain store business had declined at a slower rate from a year ago than did October sales. American Metal Market, in its weekly comment on the steel industry, said no further recession was expected, except for possible curtailment over the holiday period. "January," it stated, "should bring marked seasonal improvement and the favorite expectation for general recovery from depression places the real beginning in March."

Stocks.

Prices mounted from a fraction to 5 points in the best rally since November 10. Sales mounted to 1,110,458 shares. The average gain was 2.6 points. Traders showed no further disappointment over the repeal defeat.

Bonds.

Loans failed to follow the late rally in stocks, and closed one-tenth of a point down. There were exceptions in Government issues and some specialties. The turnover was $8,514,000.

Curb.

The market climbed in the most pronounced manner in weeks, partly in sympathy with the squeeze of shorts on the stock exchange. Gains ranged from a fraction to 4¾ points. The turnover amounted to 180,000 shares.

Wheat.

Smashing of corn prices to the season's bottom dragged other grains down. Wheat closed ⅝ to 1 cent lower. Bullish reports on the winter crop failed to aid the market. December wheat sold at 43¾ to 43⅞ cents.

Cotton.

Prices were generally higher on the trade's buying. March closed at 5.77, with the market up 11 to 16 points. Liverpool attributed steadiness there to local buying and firmer Egyptian cotton.

FOREIGN MARKETS.

(Associated Press.)

London—A more cheerful tone prevailed on the Stock Exchange today. The recovery in sterling exchange helped gilt-edged securities, which were also supported by investors. Attention was also directed toward industrials, oils and mining shares. Transatlantic issues benefited by the higher Wall street opening. The closing was steady.

Paris—The tendency on the bourse was better with French gilt-edged shares and international issues leading the remainder of the list. Gains were attributed in some sections to the more optimistic feeling regarding debt settlements. The closing was firm.

Berlin—Trading on the boerse was hesitant and prices closed weak.

THE METAL MARKETS.

BONDS CONTINUE DIP IN HEAVIER TRADING

Fluctuation of Prices Hold to Narrow Range; Sales, $8,514,000.

New York, Dec. 6 (A.P.).—The bond market failed to follow a late rally in stocks today and, with the exception of United States Government loans and some foreign and domestic specialties, prices generally held to a narrow range.

The trading volume was considerably larger than that of yesterday, however, with sales totaling $8,514,000 par value. The Associated Press-Standard Statistics average for 60 domestic corporate bonds dropped one-tenth of a point.

The better tone in the Federal list was attributed partly to President Hoover's reference to the balancing of the budget in his final message to Congress. Also the Treasury's December financing terms, due momentarily, were expected to be favorable. There was an unusually heavy turnover of Treasury 3s, some 800 changing hands during the day at a gain of three thirty-seconds of a point. Liberty 3½s equaled their high for the year, and other Federal issues were up moderately in rather light trading.

Among railroad liens that gained 1 to around 3 points were some of Baltimre & Ohio, Canadian Pacific, Canadian National, Canadian Northern, Chesapeake Corporation, Chicago & Eastern Illinois, St. Paul, Chicago & Northwestern, Rock Island, Erie, Grand Trunk, Illinois Central, Louisville & Nashville, Missouri Pacific, New York Central, Southern Pacific, Southern, Union Pacific, Virginian Railway and Wabash. Santa Fe loans eased, as did some of the Soo Line, New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, Nickel Plate, New Haven, Northern Pacific, Pennsylvania, Pere Marquette, Reading and Texas & Pacific.

New highs for the year were recorded by Brooklyn Union Gas 5s of 1945, Consolidated Gas 5s of 1957 and Public Service 4s of 1971 and 4½s of 1970. International Telephones were under pressure owing to troubles with the corporation's important Spanish subsidiary. The internationals showed losses ranging from ¾ to 3½ points after rallying from much greater declines. International Paper issues were heavy, as were those of Postal Telegraph, Laclede Gas, Inland Steel and American & Foreign Power.

In the French group, French 7s and 7½s reached new 1932 highs, while gains of a point or more were registered by some loans of Australia, Belgium, Brisbane City, Colombia Mortgage Bank, Tokyo Electric Light

Bond Traders Settle Snarl In Values of B. & O. Issues

New York, Dec. 6 (A.P.).—A number of bond traders and their brokers were busy today trying to unravel a snarled situation growing out of arbitrage transaction in Baltimore & Ohio Railroad 4½s and the stamped bonds of the same series.

The stamped bonds represent those that have been 10 per cent paid in accepting the refunding plan proposed to meet the March 1 maturity. They had been selling around $550 per $1,000 bond, compared with $610 for the plain bonds. On the surface it appeared that ten of the plain bonds could be purchased for $6,100, presented for payment of 10 per cent of $1,000, leaving cost price of $5,100 compared with a price of $5,500 at which they could be sold as stamped bonds.

The arbitraters, however, failed to remember a New York Stock Exchange rule providing that when a payment in cash is made on bonds the amount of the cash payment is to be deducted from the par value. Therefore a quotation of $550 for the stamped B. & O. bonds really meant 55 per cent of $9,000 for ten bonds, or $4,950 against cost price of $5,100. Thus there was a loss of $150 instead of a profit of $400.

Santa Fe Railroad Orders Steel Rails

26,484 Tons Purchase Is One of Largest This Year.

New York, Dec. 6 (A.P.).—Santa Fe Railroad directors have authorized the purchase of 26,484 tons of steel rails, President W. B. Storey announced today.

This is one of the largest rail orders placed this year. In former years much larger orders for rails were common at this season, but the 1932 volume of buying will be the smallest in many years, according to steel executives.

While steel rail prices were reduced to $40 a ton from $43 some weeks ago, something of a deadlock on rail purchases is said to exist. It has been reported in Wall street that a number of the railroads have considered placing fair-sized tonnages for rails, but have been holding off in the belief that a further cut in the price may yet be made by the companies.

Lehigh Coal Plans Bond Adjustment

Company Proposes to Pay 50 Per Cent in Cash; Balance in Notes.

New York, Dec. 6 (A.P.).—The Lehigh Valley Coal Co. has proposed to holders of its $8,684,000 first mortgage 4 and 5 per cent bonds, maturing January 1 next, that they accept 50 per cent in cash and 50 per cent in five-year 6 per cent notes, secured by the Lehigh Valley Railroad Co., which guarantees the maturing bonds.

Announcement of the plan was made jointly today by the coal company and the railroad under the signatures of J. M. Humphrey, president of the coal company, and E. E. Loomis, president of the Lehigh Valley Railroad. The statement points out that sufficient cash for the payment of the bonds in full can not be provided in the usual manner by the sale of securities or otherwise.

In accordance with the plan, it is stated the Reconstruction Finance Corporation has authorized a loan of $2,000,000 to the railroad company, which together with the first mortgage sinking fund cash and securities of the coal company equivalent to approximately $2,275,000, enables the coal company to offer payment of 50 per cent in cash.

CURB CLIMBS AGAIN IN BUOYANT DEALING

Rise Partly Due to Squeeze of Shorts; Sales up to 180,000 Shares.

New York, Dec. 6 (A.P.).—The curb market bulged up in the most pronounced manner in weeks today, partly in sympathy with a squeeze of shorts in the late trading in the stock exchange.

The turnover swelled to 180,000 shares, some 40,000 more than yesterday's, and all important groups moved ahead. Short covering was notable in Electric Bond & Share, which rose more than 2 points. Other utilities were also mostly higher. American Gas & Electric, Consolidated Gas of Baltimore and Niagara Hudson advanced about a point.

Aluminum Co. shot up 4¾ to 48. In the mining issues, Lake Shore, prominent Canadian gold issue, was given another whirl, carrying it up 1⅝ to a new high for the year at 30¼. Teck Hughes, another gold mining issue, was turned over in some volume, but failed to make headway. An industrial specialty to reach a new high for the year was Novadel Agene, up a point to 44¼.

Celanese first preferred was strong, in response to resumption of dividends. The stock rose a couple of points. Tubize "A," another artificial silk issue, however, sagged. Oils responded less notably than other groups, although Gulf, Humble and Indiana were all up fractionally at the close.

WHEAT VALUES SINK ON CORN'S TUMBLE

Latter Settles to Lowest Level for Season; Oats, Irregular.

Chicago, Dec. 6 (A.P.).—Smashing of the season's bottom-price record for corn today plunged all grain values downward, despite sensationally bullish crop reports concerning United States winter wheat.

Suggestions were current that the Government final crop estimates on corn December 15 would show a total corn supply of 434,000,000 bushels larger than was in sight at the corresponding time last year. Stop-loss selling by speculative holders of corn broadened out suddenly, and found the market devoid of aggressive support.

Corn underwent a maximum fall of 1½ cents a bushel, but later rallied somewhat, closing unsettled, ⅝ to ⅞ under yesterday's finish; wheat, ⅝ to 1 cent down; oats, at ⅜ decline to ⅛ gain, and provisions unchanged to 12 cents setback.

Lack of Buying Disappoints.

Disappointment was widespread as to lack of new buying after issuance of monthly unofficial crop summaries today that showed severe drought over vast stretches of territory had reduced the condition of domestic winter wheat to the lowest point on record.

Only fractional advances in values followed this exhibit, and selling that developed later revealed corn as the most vulnerable cereal on the list.

The day's minimum prices of corn were reached about simultaneously with gossop which went around as to what the Government crop report December 15 was likely to indicate regarding corn supplies this season.

Before succumbing to the influence of bearish action of the corn market, wheat was governed mainly by monthly unofficial crop summaries, which put the condition of domestic winter wheat at 72.6 and 74.6, compared with 79.4 a year ago.

Lowest Previous Record.

The lowest previous condition ever known was in December, 1922, when the percentage was 75.2. In addition to the low condition of winter wheat, a decrease of about 6.3 per cent in acreage was shown.

A crop of about 430,000,000 to 442,000,000 bushels of winter wheat was suggested, compared with a 25-year average of 400,000,000 to 787,000,000.

At the new low levels in corn, the fact became apparent that some interests were accumulating fresh holdings. Decidedly unfavorable weather predicted for the corn belt aided rallies. Oats chiefly followed corn.

Provisions weakened with hog values and with grain.

COTTON PRICES RISE ON TRADE'S BUYING

March Closes at 5.77 as General Market Gains 11 to 16 Points.

New York, Dec. 6 (A.P.).—Cotton was generally higher today on trade buying and covering prompted by steady cables, light offerings from the South, and the strength of the stock market.

After selling up to 5.79 during the early trading, March reacted to 5.68, but firmed up again closing at 5.77, with the general market closing steady at net advances of 11 to 16 points.

The opening was 4 to 6 points higher. Offerings were comparatively light and active months worked about 9 to 14 points net higher during the forenoon.

Buying for Continental.

Some buying was reported for Continental account. Offerings increased slightly at the advance to 5.88 for May contracts, causing a moderate setback, but prices firmed later on renewed covering and trade buying stimulated by the late strength in the stock market. Most of the active months made new high prices for the day with May advancing to 5.90 and closing at 5.88. Closing quotations were within 1 to 3 points of the best for the day.

While trading was more active than yesterday, general business was restricted by the disposition to await Thursday's Government report. Two more private reports were issued with figures on indicated crop ranging from 12,018,000 to 12,316,000 bales. The average of six private reports points to a crop of about 12,212,000 bales.

A few additional December notices were issued, amounting to 2,000 bales. Liverpool cables attributed the steadiness there to local buying on the firmer ruling of Egyptian cotton. Egyptian cotton futures in Alexandria were unchanged to 16 points higher. Exports today 47,360, making 6,835,835 so far this season. Port receipts 59,606. U. S. port stocks 4,789,081.

Cottonseed Oil.

Bleachable cottonseed oil was easy today owing to the decline in lard, establishing new lows for the season and closing at net declines of 1 to 2 points.

The easiness of hogs was also a depressing factor with the day's business aggregating 600 barrels. Bleachable spot closed 3.45, December 3.49, January 3.55, March 3.70, May 3.82, July 3.92.

Dollar Sells at Highest For More Than Year

Paris, Dec. 6 (A.P.).—The dollar was quoted at 25.615 francs on the foreign exchange market today, the highest it has been for more than a year. The pound sterling also gained slightly, touching 82.25.

Very few dollars were on the market, and both advances were attributed to short covering. The rate at which it would be profitable to send gold to the United States was not quite reached. That figure is a fraction under 25.63 francs to the dollar.

Cotton Goods Steady.

New York, Dec. 6 (A.P.).—Cotton goods were steady and quiet today. Wool goods demand was light and scattered. Rayon yarns continue to sell when spot deliveries are available. Burlaps were quiet.

U. S. GOLD RECEIPTS HIGHEST IN MONTHS

$17,500,000 to Be Shipped From England; Other Big Sums Arrive.

New York, Dec. 6 (A.P.).—Today's reports of monetary gold movements indicated the largest flow of the yellow metal to this country in months.

Metal amounting to $17,500,000 was slated for shipment from England tomorrow, and $9,900,000 arrived on transatlantic liners today.

In addition, the Federal Reserve Bank's daily statement indicated a net gain in the Nation's monetary stock of $10,428,100 up to 3 p. m., evidently including part of the arrivals on today's transatlantic steamers.

International banking circles understood, although official information was unavailable, that the large movement of gold from England was in a substantial part for the account of continental central banks wishing to build up their dollar balances. Whether any of it was for the account of the Bank of France could not be learned. The French franc weakened to a point which would theoretically attract gold from Paris, although no shipments from that source were reported.

The Federal Reserve report listed imports of $5,940,000 from England, $994,700 from Canada, $893,700 from Holland and $139,000 from Mexico. There was also a gain of $3,600,700 through a release of that amount of metal which had been held earmarked for foreign account. There were no exports, but there was a deduction from the total through an increase of $1,140,000 in the earmarked stock.

Sales Reported Less By Montgomery Ward

Chicago, Dec. 6 (A.P.).—Montgomery Ward & Co. reported today sales for November, 1932, aggregated $16,551,568, compared with $18,402,376 in November last year, a decrease of 10.6 per cent.

Total sales for eleven months of 1932 were $159,014,106, against $197,462,316 the corresponding time in 1931, a decrease of 19.47 per cent.

Steel Is Unchanged.

New York, Dec. 6 (A.P.).—Steel prices unchanged.

MACK TRUCKS VOTE REGULAR DIVIDENDS

Santa Fe Road to Pay Usual $2.50 on Preferred on February 1.

New York, Dec. 6 (A.P.).—Mack Trucks, Inc., today declared a regular quarterly dividend of 25 cents a share, payable December 31 to stock of record December 16.

Directors of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railroad Co. today declared the regular semiannual dividend of $2.50 on the preferred stock, payable February 1 to stock of record December 30.

Canada Dry Ginger Ale, Inc., reports for the year ended September 30 net income of $423,821, equal to 84 cents a share against $1,685,614, or $3.33 a share in the preceding fiscal year.

A. M. Byers Co. reports net loss of $922,353 for the year ended September 30, contrasting with net profit of $81,587 in the previous year.

Hupp Motor Car Corporation had net loss of $3,405,190 in the nine months ended September 30 against loss of $1,073,294 in the same 1931 period.

American Power & Light Co., member of the Electric Bond & Share group of utility companies, today halved the dividends on its two cumulative preferred stocks. Directors declared a dividend of 75 cents on the $6 preferred, against $1.50 previously paid in each quarter, and voted a payment of 62½ cents on the $5 preferred against $1.25 heretofore disbursed quarterly on that issue. Both dividends are payable January 3 to stock of record December 16.

International Paper & Power Co. reports for the nine months ended September 30 net loss of $5,275,371, compared with net profit of $1,871,204 in the corresponding period of 1931. For the quarter ended September 30, the company had a deficit of $3,001,567 compared with a loss of $1,856,236 in the preceding quarter and profit of $298,729 in the like 1931 period.

Chicago, Dec. 6 (A.P.).—Directors of Abbott Laboratories declared a quarterly dividend of 50 cents, payable January 1 to stockholders of record December 19.

Alfred S. Burdick, president, announced a Christmas bonus to employes of 5 per cent of November salaries. November sales were larger than a year ago.

Crude Oil Output Cut 64,000 Barrels

Daily Average Yield Drops to 2,104,000 Units; Texas Leads Loss.

(Associated Press.)

Production of crude petroleum in October totaled 65,219,000 barrels, a daily average of 2,104,000 barrels, but a decline of 64,000 barrels from the daily average in September. The total was a decline of 260,080 barrels daily, or an average of 11 per cent, from October a year ago.

The figures announced by the Department of Commerce said that while the decline was quite general the major portion occurred in Texas. The output of the east Texas field totaled 11,131,000 in October. A daily average of 359,000 barrels, compared with a daily average of 371,000 barrels in September. The decline, the department said, of 12,000 barrels was partly the result of slowing down in field activity although the primary cause was the reduction in the allowable per well of from 46 to 44 barrels per day on October 1 and to 40 barrels on October 15.

The decline in crude production and increased refinery demand were reflected in crude stocks which fell off 2,085,000 barrels, compared with a decline of 1,270,000 barrels in September. The net decrease in total stocks of all oils of 5,735,000 barrels did not measure up to that of September by about 2,000,000 barrels. The indicated domestic demand for motor fuel in October totaled 32,255,000 barrels or a daily average of 1,040,000 barrels, a decline from a year ago of 8.1 per cent. Stocks of motor fuel on hand November 31 was 47,040,000 barrels, or 893,000 barrels below the total on hand at the close of September. The stocks of all oils at the end of October amounted to 607,407,000, compared with 613,142,000 at the end of September.

Wilmington Plants Add 213 to Employes' List

Wilmington, Del., Dec. 6 (A.P.).—A gain of 213 employes in 307 industrial plants during the last 30 days was reported today by the Wilmington Chamber of Commerce.

Total employes in these plants was reported at 23,786. The greatest gain, the Chamber of Commerce reported, was in the leather manufacturing industry.

Collections Become Easier.

Chicago, Dec. 6 (A.P.).—Department store credit men informed the Federal Reserve Bank that collections are easier to make. In August the ratio of month-end collections was 24.8 per cent of sales, in October it had increased to 29.6 per cent.

THE PARADINE CASE

By ROBERT HICHENS

SYNOPSIS.

Sir Malcolm Keane, K. C., is asked by Sir Simon Flaquer, a noted English solicitor, to defend Mrs. Paradine, who has been arrested for the murder of her husband, who had been blinded in the war, and had been decorated with the V. C. Sir Simon tells Keane that Mrs. Paradine is a beautiful Dane, who had been rescued from a life of degradation in Copenhagen by an American diplomat, taken as a servant to America and later made her way to England. She had married Maj. Paradine after the war. He agrees to handle the case and becomes immediately intensely interested in it.

Sir Malcolm is happily married to Gay, but when he calls on Mrs. Paradine at Holloway Jail he feels the strange fascination of his beautiful client. He is worried because Lord Horfield might be named as judge of the trial and endeavors to be friendly to him. He and Gay give a little dinner party at which they ask Lord and Lady Horfield.

WHEN a party was small Keane was fond of general conversation. But that was to be avoided when Lady Horfield was present, for her natural nervousness and consequent inepitude were greatly increased by a multiplication of hearers, and if she knew that several persons were listening to her, among them being her husband, she confounded herself in astonishing statements followed by immediate and piteous withdrawals. The only chance with her was to keep her, if possible, engaged in strictly private talk. And this Keane set himself to do, rather neglecting Lady Flaquer who, however, understood perfectly the why of his behavior. Thus it was that Keane and Lady Horfield passed a great part of dinner in a sort of uneasy dual isolation, about which surged the general conversation of the rest of the party. Lady Horfield, though confused, had a strong sense of her social obligations, and she set herself with a will to the task of holding her host's attention. Though Keane had no idea of it she secretly admired him very much and thought him a great lawyer and because of that she wished to impress him.

She was surely conscious of the effort Keane was making to keep her talk to himself or to keep his talk all for her. Perhaps even she discerned his unflattering reason, but she made no attempt to break away. On the contrary, she seconded him, leaning sideways toward him and uttering her contradictory remarks in a low and almost confidential voice, as if she and he were discussing some subject which they must keep to themselves.

"Horfield has a great opinion of you, Sir Malcolm. At least—well, I believe so, though indeed it's difficult to be sure with Horfield, isn't it? He is so full of whims. Not that—I don't mean that he is whimsical. I shouldn't like to say that. But he—he plays with ideas, don't you know, and one can scarcely tell sometimes—and yet no one can be more clear and definite than he. The most decisive judge on the bench, they call him. But I mean in ordinary life it amuses him to see how people take things. You mustn't think I mean he is sly. I shouldn't like you to think that. For he really has a hatred of—but he loves to play his fish—not with you of course. He would never dream—he has such an opinion of you. And you like him—don't you?"

"There are few men I enjoy a serious talk with more than with your husband."

"Ah, yes; he can be serious! But——"

At this moment a peal of laughter greeted some remarks of Mrs. Bigson's, which was added to, perhaps amplified, by the judge. Lady Horfield's small folded-in mouth tried to unloose itself in a smile, though she had not heard what was said.

Suddenly she fixed Keane with a pair of eyes that looked almost fierce in intent.

"Could you be a judge? Could you pronounce sentence?"

"Of penal servitude?" he asked.

"Of death?" she almost whispered. "I would rather defend than judge," Keane said. "But both defense and judgment are necessary parts of the machinery of the law."

"When Horfield has to put on the black cap I'm frightened. At night when he comes home and I know he has done it——"

Her little flapping hands tapped the table nervously. Suddenly Keane felt deeply interested.

"I understand your feeling fully," he said. "And respect you for it."

"Do you? Really?"

"But isn't he more upset than you are? I have often thought of that."

"Of what?"

"Or the evening, the night passed by a judge in his own home after he has sentenced a man or woman to be hanged. Can he sleep?" Don't you find him altered when he comes home on those awful days?"

"No, just the same—apparently."

"Ah?"

"But he acts to me. He won't let me see that he's upset. He acts—wonderfully. If it wasn't that I know—but I do know. There's pity in his heart, but——" her voice, in spite of its whispering quality, became portentous—"he would rather die than show it. People misunderstand him because he's so witty and amusing. But I know what he is."

The fierce intensity had not left her small excited eyes which seemed demanding assent from Keane to all that she had been saying. "He likes you. He appreciates you," she murmurmured. "At least I——" Her voice subsided.

"I'm glad," Keane forced himself to say.

And then he felt the need of disentangling himself from his amazingly unexpected intimacy, and he drew Latrobe into the conversation. Looking down the table he saw Gay's imaginative eyes fixed upon him, and there was a curious scrutiny in them. No doubt she was remembering their conversation before dinner.

. . . . . .

When the women had gone to the drawing room on the first floor of the big house Keane got up and moved to the other side of the table.

"What are you drinking, judge?" he said, pulling up a chair between Horfield and Sir Simon, while Latrobe and Arthur Lieberstein got into conversation.

"Some of this remarkable port. Thanks to my daily ride in the park I'm still able to drink port. I haven't seen you out these last few days."

"No. The fact is I've been sitting up so late at night—your fault, Sir Simon—that I've been forced to sleep late on these winter mornings."

"Shall I withdraw a brief or two from you?" said Sir Simon. "What do you say? I might begin with the brief for Mrs. Paradine."

"Any brief rather than that!" said Keane, with an attempt at humorous lightness.

"You are deeply interested in that case, no doubt?" said Lord Horfield, lifting his glass to his thin lips.

"O, I see a great chance there!"

"Ah! Well, of course, the case is going to be talked about a lot. In fact, every one in London seems to be discussing it already."

Latrobe and Arthur Lieberstein had stopped talking and turned toward the three older men.

"When does it come up before the magistrate?" asked Latrobe.

"Immediately," said Sir Simon, rather curtly.

As a rule he greatly disliked discussing legal matters in which he was concerned in society, especially when journalists were present. He had made a slip in mentioning Mrs. Paradine and now realized it.

"I knew Col. Paradine, poor fellow," said Lieberstein, speaking with a strong foreign accent.

"Did you?" said Keane, evidently surprised.

Sir Simon fixed his keen eyes on the pianist, who was a thick set man of not more than 32 or so, with the usual pianist's mane of hair and Slavonic features.

"Yes. I met him in Spain when I was very young and he was military attache in Madrid. At that time he was a magnificent man, adored by the women. And Spanish women, you know, are not reticent in showing their feelings. Poor Paradine! He devastated Madrid at that time!" said Lieberstein. "It was tragic to see him after the war, decorated and deprived of practically everything that made life worth living for a man such as he was. He loved music, and when I was over here I used sometimes to go and play to him. He was not a musician, but simply loved music and, like many military men, was specially fond of music I should call sentimental. For instance, he always made me play to him Liszt's 'Liebestraum.' That gives you his measure."

Sir Simon nodded.

"But good—in its way," he said.

"O, yes. Genuine stuff of the sentimental kind."

"Now we have his musical measure!" said Horfield. "These little things are very revealing."

"I usually ended my program for Paradine with 'Liebestraum,'" said the pianist. "But one twilight—it was in this month, I remember, I was tempted by the devil, I'm nearly sure, to add another piece, though I had the definite sensation that poor Paradine was near the breaking point. And I played a transcription of my own of Strauss' 'Blue Danube.'"

"I've heard you play it," said Sir Simon. "Youth in Vienna. Terribly upsetting!"

"His second wife, this famous Mrs. Paradine, was there on that occasion. It was the only time I met her. He always wished to be alone when I played. I think because he was so moved by music and didn't wish to show it. A soldier, you know. But that night she was there."

He stopped and seemed to consider something, throwing his powerful head back.

"Perhaps that was why I played my 'Blue Danube' transcription," he said. "It never occurred to me before. She was beautiful."

Butte Again Normal After Trade Holiday

Butte, Mont., Dec. 6 (A.P.).—Business returned to normal here today after an eight-day mercantile moratorium participated in by most of the larger stores because of disagreement with the Clerks Union over terms of a new working agreement.

All clerks who failed to show up for work on November 28 returned to their posts today, while officials of the union and of the employers' association entered into negotiation in an effort to harmonize their differences. It was not believed the task could be accomplished in less than two or three days.

"Siamese Twins" Die; Their Brother Thrives

Malden, Mass., Dec. 6 (A.P.).—Priscilla Ann and Barbara Joyce, "Siamese twins" of triplets born three days ago to Mr and Mrs. Frank H. Reed, died today as surgeons were considering the feasibility of separating them. Their triplet brother, a normal boy continued to thrive.

Physicians had expressed the opinion they could grow to womanhood either as Siamese twins or separately.

Brieux, Dramatist, Dies; Damaged Goods Author

Nice, France, Dec. 6 (A.P.).—Eugene Brieux, dramatist and member of the French Academy, died today of pleurisy. He was 74.

His most widely known play probably was "Damaged Goods," which spread his fame around the world a few years ago. For twenty years he produced a play a year, and each was an event in the French theater. During the war he abandoned his career to care for the blind soldiers.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix

HENRY SCOTT, radio entertainer and pianist, can play anything from popular jazz to classical music wearing heavy mittens. Expert pianists are unable to explain how he is able to execute intricate numbers with his hands bound up in clumsy mittens.

An interesting explanation of Scott's adoption of his strange technique is that once, while a youth, he sat down to play the piano after coming in from out of doors without removing his mittens. His present teacher is said to have seen him play only with his mittens.

The fact that a fad will boost the price of any commodity beyond belief is clearly demonstrated in the tulip craze that swept Holland in the seventeenth century. One rare and particularly desired variety of tulip—the Semper Augustus—established an all time high in the tulip marts of Amsterdam when it was quoted at 250 times its weight in gold.

One of them sold for $1,840 in cash, a team of good horses, a new carriage, together with harness and other equipment. Then suddenly the bottom dropped out of the tulip market, and it took Holland a generation to recover from its tulip depression.

The device patented in 1918 under U. S. Patent Letters No. 1,286,595 was primarily a clothes hanger, according to the application. But, the inventor pointed out, it could be used as a musical instrument by placing paper over the wires and humming against it—like playing a comb.

Ezra Rowe was the crack kick-off man on the University of North Carolina eleven for two seasons, 1928 and 1929. He was used in nine games for the initial play of one or both halves.

Colors give added realism to strange things and happenings illustrated by John Hix on a full page in The Sunday Post.

THE ONCE OVER

H. I. PHILLIPS

THE SIMPLE INAUGURAL.

FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT will have a cut-rate inaugural. The next President of the United States will not exactly drive a Model T down Pennsylvania avenue, hitch it to a tree and take office in a pair of blue jumpers, but the ceremon will be very thrifty.

* * * *

The Army and Navy will be omitted entirely from Mr. Roosevelt's program, as he has Mr. Hoover's word that he will leave willingly.

* * * *

The Forgotten Men of the Roosevelt inaugural will be the old-time drum major and cavalry colonel.

* * * *

According to custom, Mr. Roosevelt will call on Mr. Hoover on March 3. This carries out an old tradition under which Herbert will be tapped for membership in Alpha Delta Exitus.

* * * *

(Note: This is a sort of last warning, allowing him time to shave, chat with the keepers and decide definitely whether he wants to confess everything or still insist that he is innocent.)

* * * *

On March 4 the formality of changing the line-up officially occurs. Members of the House and Senate call on Messrs. Roosevelt and Garner and escort them to the White House. They also take Charlie Curtis along as a good fourth at bridge.

* * * *

From the White House President Hoover and his successor ride to the Capitol in the first car, with Vice President Curtis and his successor in the second, and with Clark and McCollough in the third.

* * * *

A brief stop is made in the Senate chamber, where Mr. Curtis is officially released to Toledo.

* * * *

Ceremonies then shift to the Capitol steps, where the most impressive rites take place, namely the transfer of the hair shirt from Mr. Hoover to Mr. Roosevelt, with four cans of comfort powder thrown in.

* * * *

Mr. Roosevelt then presses a button, releasing 256 Hoover secretaries, automatically dumping the Cabinet into the Potomac and granting all the Rapidan trout a full pardon.

* * * *

A carrier pigeon is then freed, pulling a string which cuts a circuit, releasing five boatloads of Hoover commissions.

* * * *

Jim Farley then breaks a bottle of beer over Congress and the slump is over.

Key Mansion

Restoration Project Urged at Meeting of Civil League Group.

The restoration and maintenance of the Francis Scott Key Mansion in Georgetown, as a national shrine, was urged yesterday by the national executive committee of the United States Civil Legion at a meeting in the Continental Hotel.

Opposition was voiced to immediate payment of the soldiers' bonus and to cancellation of war debts. The group also urged reorganization of the national economic structure so that the machine would be made subservient to human welfare.

In its resolution, the committee urged that Congress pass legislation to authorize and direct the Director of Public Buildings and Public Parks to communicate with the civic organizations throughout the country which have expressed willingness to assume the leadership in financing the restoration of the Key mansion.

For the ascertainment of need and the administration of relief funds, it was urged that the principle of the draft board and regional organization be established to avoid waste and duplication.

The committee also urged the establishment of a 30-hour week, without reduction of pay, except for possible temporary adjustments during its initiation; and also favored the principles behind the Wagner and the Costigan-La Follette bills.

The organization is composed of those who served the country during the war in a civil capacity.

Shop-Early Movement Is Declared Success

A quiet but decided revolution in Christmas shopping methods, which has been apparent in Washington stores this month, is country-wide, it was said yesterday by Sylvan King, chairman of the shop early-mail early committee of the Merchants and Manufacturers Association.

"The public change to a more sensible Christmas shopping method," he said, "likewise changed the merchandising methods of our Washington stores. Based on recent experience, particularly that since the war, the progressive merchant today has his complete holiday stocks ready for shopping early in November instead of waiting until well after the first of

HOUSE GROUP TODAY MAPS D. C. PROGRAM FOR SHORT SESSION

Will Rush Important Bills; Traction Firms Scored by Mrs. Norton.

The District's short session legislative program, covering a wide range of subjects, from "blue sky" legislation to proposed tightening of local kidnaping laws, will be mapped by the House District committee at a meeting set for 10 o'clock this morning.

Chairman Mary T. Norton said she will review with the committee all matters pending before the body, with a view to selecting the most important for presentation on the first House "District Day."

At the same time, Mrs. Norton directed a broadside of criticism at the local traction companies for their opposition to reduced fares for school children.

Sees Education Threat.

"The determined fight of these transportation agencies to defeat the express and apparent will of Congress is a matter of great concern," she said, "especially at this time of extraordinary economic stress."

She said their opposition might tend to defeat the compulsory school attendance law.

Opposition of the companies, she said, "makes it vital that the House take steps to make an acquiescence on the part of the companies to a reduced fare for school children, a condition precedent to actual consummation of the merger."

She characterized as "ridiculous" the contention that reduced school fares are responsible for traction financial losses, and suggested that the companies might gain patrons by reducing all fares for short trips

Bills Now Pending.

Thirteen bills that have passed the Senate and are pending before the House District committee will be reviewed today. In view of the fact that scant time for District legislation will be found at this session, Mrs. Norton is of the opinion that a weeding-out process may be necessary.

These bills would regulate the sale of stocks, foreclosure of mortgages, sale of real estate, amend the home care act for children, amend the veterans' guardianship act, provide for support of illegitimate children and require moving picture houses to give ample notice when all available seats are occupied.

Some 54 other House bills, on which no action has been taken, are pending before the committee.

Dentists to Meet In Capital Today

Dinner at Columbia Country Club to Be Given to Dr. G. W. Dittmar.

National figures in the dental profession who will arrive here today for a conference with the officials of the Public Health Service will be guests of the District of Columbia Dental Society at a dinner to be given at 7 o'clock tonight at the Columbia Country Club in honor of Dr. G. Walter Dittmar, of Chicago, new president of the American Dental Association.

Dr. Charles D. Cole, president of the Washington society, will be toastmaster, and Dr. Dittmar, who is making his first visit to Washington as president of the American Dental Association, will make the principal talk.

Among the distinguished guests will be Surgeon General H. S. Cumming, Dr. C. E. Waller, assistant surgeon general; Dr. L. R. Thompson, assistant surgeon general, and Dr. Clinton C. Messner, chief dental surgeon, all of the Public Helath Service; Rear Admiral Charles E. Riggs, surgeon general of the U. S. Navy; Dr. Lyman J. Briggs, director of the Bureau of Standards; Dr. Homer C. Brown, chairman of the legislative committee of the American Dental Association; Dr. J. Ben Robinson, president of the National Association of Dental Schools; Dr. C. Willard Camalier, president of the National Association of Dental Examiners, and Dr. Albert L. Midgely, secretary of the Dental Educational Council of America.

$5,012 in Jewelry Lost, Stolen or Taken in Fun

Dr. H. D. Scott, 1426 Twenty-first street northwest, reported yesterday the loss of a stick pin and ring, valued at $5,012, but told police he did not know whether they had been stolen, lost or taken in fun.

The amiable doctor, who has retired from active practice and now operates a rooming house, said that while he was at the Dupont Market, Twenty-first and P streets northwest, a friend had "kidded" with him and asked for the jewels. As part of the word play, he said he took them off and put them in his vest pocket. On returning home he discovered they were missing.

He said the stick pin was set with a 2.98 carat diamond, and the ring had a 3.2 carat diamond.

KING MOVES TO END BONUSES ON LOANS

Bill Is Introduced in Senate Following Testimony in Rent Inquiry.

Senator William H. King (Democrat), Utah, yesterday moved to put an end to the alleged practice of paying a "bonus" for extension of a loan or renewal of a mortgage note in the District.

Following testimony before the Senate District rent investigating subcommittee that this practice is sometimes followed here, Senator King yesterday introduced a bill to make it a misdemeanor, punishable by $500 fine or six months' imprisonment.

His bill would sanction payment of a reasonable interest, when fixed verbally at not more than 6 per cent, or, in writing, at not more than 8 per cent.

Bills extending the value of individual property that might be disposed of by the police property clerk without letters of administration from $50 to $100 were introduced in the Senate by Senator Arthur Copper (Republican), Kansas, and in the House by Representative Mary T. Norton (Democrat), New Jersey.

The bills would reduce the time limit for disposing of automobiles in police custody from six months to three months. The step is sponsored by the Commissioners, who point out that issuance of letters of administration on law-involved properties is costly to the District.

Art Critic Will Resume Lecture Series Tonight

The fifth of a series of lectures on "Great Epochs in Painting" will be given tonight and tomorrow morning by Ada Rainey, art critic, who is lecturing at the Leageu of American Pen Women at Stoneleigh Court. The lecture tonight will be at 8 o'clock and that tomorrow at 11:15.

Her subject this week will be French painting. The subject next week will be English painting.

Two Apartments Robbed of Clothes

$46 Is Stolen From Safe in Office During Owner's Absence.

Mrs. Frances J. Ewen, of 1803 K street northwest, yesterday reported that clothing valued at $127 was stolen from her apartment. She believed a duplicate key was used by the burglar.

Robert K. Peterson, of 2114 N street northwest, also reported the loss of clothing worth $50. He said the door to his apartment was jimmied.

Dr. J. Russell Verlirycka, of 815 Connecticut avenue, reported some one stole $46 from his safe which he had left open in leaving his office for a few minutes yesterday.

K. C. Annual Christmas Reception to Be Tonight

The reception and annual Christmas party of the Washington General Assembly, Fourth Degree, Knights of Columbus, will be held tonight at 8 o'clock at the Mayflower Hotel. Capt. George R. Ellis is chairman of the committee in charge.

The reception, for the newly initiated members into the honors of the fourth degree, will be featured by an address by the Rev. John M. Nelligan. Edith Reed and her Radio Kids will supply the entertainment.

PURITANISM REVIVAL FORECAST IN PARLEY OF CHURCHMEN HERE

"Free Church of America" Is Goal of Three Groups Attending Session.

Puritanism will be revived with more powerful influence than ever before under the organization of a free church in America, it was predicted by noted religious leaders last night at a national church dinner at the Raleigh Hotel.

This movement to combine the leading Protestant denominations under one head will be launched on December 14 in Boston at a meeting of the committee on organization, made up of members of the Universalist Church, it was learned. The idea for the free church was first proposed a year ago at a meeting of the American Universalist Association.

At the committee organization meeting in Boston, a constitution will be adopted which will provide for admission of any church "willing to apply Christ's principles practically to society of today."

Churches Represented.

The committee's report will be acted on at a convention of Unitarian Churches in Boston next May and by the Universalists at a meeting in Worcester, Mass., in October.

Churches represented at last night's dinner—Congregational, Unitarian and Universalist, all of the Puritan tradition—are expected to form the nucleus of the free church council, as leaders of these denominations have already given intimation of combining. If the plan materializes, the word "free" will be inserted in the names of the various churches.

Speakers at Dinner.

Speakers at the dinner included the Rev. Roge F Etz, D. D., secretary of the Universalist general convention; the Rev. Charles E. Jefferson, D. D. LL.D., minister for 32 years of the Broadway Tabernacle Church, of New York, and now honorary minister of this church; the Rev. Walter Spooner, D. D., superintendent of the Middle Atlantic Conference of Congregational Churches and the Rev. Louis C. Cornish, D. D., president of the American Unitarian Association.

A welcome to the "new puritans of the twentieth century" was given by the Rev. Russell J. Clinchy, minister of the Mount Pleasant Congregational Church, and president of the Washington Congregational Club, who was toastmaster.

Lansburgh Dance Attended by 700

200 Employes Entertained at Banquet for Their Sale Efforts.

The annual dance of the Lansburgh & Bro. Mutual Relief Association was held last night in the ballroom of the Kennedy-Warren and was attended by 700, including employes of the store, their families and friends.

Earlier in the evening 200 employes of the store, who attained or exceeded their quotas in the recent anniversary sale at Lansburgh's, were guests at a banquet. Martin Waxman was toastmaster.

Jack Bogan was chairman of the dance committee. The board of the relief association is composed of Mark Lansburgh, Ralph Goldsmith, Howard Singer and Howard Berry. Between dances entertainment was given. Marx Kahn is president of the relief association.

Back to Jail

Extradition Papers for D. C. Suspect Awaited in New York.

Kenneth Hundred, who is wanted here in connection with housebreakings in the Northwest section, and his allegedly bigamous wife, the former Frances Hodge, of Washington, were remanded to jail in New York yesterday for 30 days pending arrival of extradition papers, according to an Associated Press dispatch. Both are wanted as fugitives from justice in Maryland also.

Copies of the Maryland indictments charging Hundred with burglary of the home of Mary M. Slack, of Baltimore, on November 25, and Mrs. Hundred with receiving stolen property, were presented in court.

Hundred and his wife were arrested last week in a New York railway station as Mrs. Hundred was arriving from Washington.

Thief Gets Policeman's Car Near Station House

For boldness this theft ranks high. When Private Jeremiah J. Cullinane went on duty yesterday afternoon he parked his car at the rear of the First Precinct station house. When he finished his shift last night and started to go home he found his car was gone.

TRAFFIC TOLL

TO DATE.

Redoubled precaution on the part of both pedestrians and drivers is urged by traffic authorities during the busy Christmas season.

Pedestrians are advised to stop and look before crossing a street, never to pass from behind a street car or automobile and by all means to wait for the traffic light to change. Motorists are warned to refrain from taking corners at high speed and to be sure their brakes are functioning properly.

Police statistics reveal an ever-increasing list of deaths and injuries. The figures are:

	1931	1932
Deaths	71	114
Injuries	3,340	3,570
Accidents	7,689	7,777

GEORGE W. HUTCHISON.

GEOGRAPHIC SOCIETY HONORS HUTCHISON

Dinner Given for Associate Secretary, Completing 25 Years' Service.

Twenty-five years' association with the National Geographic Society by George W. Hutchison, associate secretary of the organization, was recognized yesterday when he was the honor guest at a luncheon given by fellow officers in the headquarters of the society.

Back in 1907, Mr. Hutchison, Gilbert Grosvenor and John Oliver La Gorce were the "staff" of the National Geographic Society, and the membership was 31,000. Now there are more than 1,000,000 members.

Mr. Hutchison, who lives in Ballston, Va., is an ardent sportsman. He and a group of friends are members of a hunting club down the Potomac, which provides them with their "off the job" diversion.

Dr. Grosvenor, president of the society and editor of the National Geographic Magazine, presided at the luncheon. The guest list was made up of Mr. Hutchison's associates among the officers and the staff of the society and a number of his close personal friends. Those who attended in addition to Dr. Grosvenor and Mr. Hutchison and Dr. La Gorce were John Joy Edson, Frederick V. Coville, Franklin L. Fisher, Herbert A. Poole, J. R. Hildebrand, Frederick Simpich, Dr. William J. Showalter, Melville Bell Grosvenor, Albert H. Bumstead, Maynard Owen Williams, Charles Martin, L. W. Gillette, Dr. Allan Scott Wolf, Dr. Lewis H. Taylor, Robert V. Fleming, Hilleary G. Hoskinson, Elisha Hanson, Charles W. Beck, of Philadelphia; Hal Sorensen, of Philadelphia; John H. Davis, Thomas W. McKnew, Albert W. Tucker, McFall Kerbey, E. John Long, W. Robert Moore, L. Rohe Walter, Leo A. Borah, Worth Shoults, Vernon H. Brewster, Gerard F. Hubbard, Leonard C. Roy, Hashime Murayama, Conrad C. Smith, Dr. Guy W. Latimer and Gilbert G. La Gorce.

1932's Largest D. C. Water Award Is Let

Philadelphia Concern Low Bidder With Estimate of $95,646.

The largest water main contract of the year was let yesterday by the District Commissioners to Peter & A. J. Ellis, Inc., of Philadelphia, on the lowest estimate of $95,646.

Contract calls for construction of 7,600 linear feet of 48-inch water main, beginning at Fifth and Upshur streets northwest, extending north in Fifth street to Illinois avenue, thence northwest in Illinois avenue to Georgia avenue, and north in Georgia avenue to Military road.

Ten bids submitted on the project ranged to a high estimate of $184,237.50.

Man Suffers Jaw Fracture in Crash.

Donald L. Carter, 21, of 3625 Lowell place northwest, suffered a fracture of the jaw and severe lacerations yesterday when his car collided with the car of John Simuro, 39, of 1218 Connecticut avenue, at Forty-fifth street and Cathedral avenue. He was treated at Georgetown Hospital.

BUREAUCRATIC FORM OF GOVERNMENT HIT BY APPEALS JUSTICE

Dry Laws Cited as Example of Usurpation of Rights of States.

Deploring the present bureaucratic form of government, Josiah A. Van Orsdell, Associate Justice of the District Court of Appeals, cited the eighteenth amendment last night as an example of how Federal functions had usurped the right of the States as intended in the Constitution.

Speaking before the Society of Colonial Wars at the Willard Hotel, Justice Van Orsdell stated that all amendments after the fourteenth were departures from the fundamentals of the Government as outlined by the founders, and that at each session Congress was flooded by proposed amendments contradictory to all principles of American government.

Asks for Assistance.

Back to the Constitution was his plea to the assembled organization. He bade them all assist in curbing the tendency to corrupt the Government.

The present wave of legislative measures breeds communism and other "isms" he warned. The Constitution as drawn up guaranteed the protection of private property, and its maintainance in its original intention is imperative to American ideals, he said.

Officers Are Named.

Following Judge Van Orsdell's address the society elected the following officers: Caleb Clarke Magruder, deputy governor general; Ralph P. Barnard, governor; Gen. William E. Horton, deputy governor; Dr. A. Camp Stanley, lieutenant governor; William H. Somervell, deputy secretary, and Robert C. Jones, treasurer.

Police and Firemen Win March Handling Praise

Resolutions congratulating the Metropolitan Police and Fire Departments on the way they handled the hunger marchers, and suggesting that their members be given extra days off in payment for overtime work were adopted by the North Cleveland Park Citizens Association last night.

The association also approved action of the federation in suggesting that the new schoolhouse on Reno road be named for President Woodrow Wilson.

Bids Due Shortly On New Fire House

Action Is Not to Be Taken, However, Until Return of Chief Watson.

Upheld by the United States Supreme Court in their efforts to build a fire engine house on the northwest corner of Sixteenth street and Colorado avenue, the District Commissioners soon will advertise the project for bids, it was indicated yesterday. No action will be taken, however, until the return of Fire Chief George S. Watson, now away on sick leave, Commissioner Herbert B. Crosby said.

The municipal government has more than enough money available out of the original appropriation to construct the fire house, and it is likely that bids now will be considerably under the contract price of 1929 because of the great drop in construction costs and the keen competition among contractors.

The appropriation amounts to $71,716, and a contract was awarded in 1929, to be rescinded later, to James L. Parsons, jr., on a low bid of $57,100. The Supreme Court decision ended a four-year legal fight between the Commissioners and residents of the Sixteenth street area.

Roses and Potatoes Deserve Politeness

Say "Mister" when you come face to face with a potato and a rose; be polite, for many of both plant species bear the most illustrious names in history.

Dr. J. B. S. Norton, professor of botany at the University of Maryland and retiring president of the Botanical Society of Washington, addressed the society last night at the Cosmos Club on "Lady Roses and Honorable Potatoes." Whereas some of the species bear romantic names such as Buffalo Bill even the lowly potato can ascend to the glory of the crowned heads of Europe in their naming.

The history of the country can be traced, he explained, by the names of roses. Corresponding to their particular dates tubers bore the name of "Henry Clay," "Floradora Girl," "King Tut" and "Emperor William." Two varieties of roses were named after Rudy Vallee.

Dr. Norton suggested that the naming problem had become so acute that an advisory board would be a help to the botanists and that some of the roses only received their present "handles" because all other words in the dictionary had been exhausted.

The organization elected the following officers at the meeting: Dr. Charles Brooks, president; N. R. Smith, vice president; Dr. Charlotte Elliott, recording secretary; Dr. Freeman Weiss, corresponding secretary; Miss Edith Cash, treasurer, and Dr. C. L. Shear, delegate to the Washington Academy of Science.

CITIZENS ARE TOLD OF FINANCE FRAUDS

Columbia Heights Group Is Addressed by H. L. Davis on Safe Investments.

Protecting the investor from fraudulent and spurious securities was the subject of an address before the Columbia Heights Citizens Association last night by Herbert L. Davis, District superintendent of insurance.

Mr. Davis read at length from Senator Reed's bill regulating the sale of securities in the District, now in the Senate, and explained the operation of fraudulent mortgage schemes and investment banking rackets which have been broken up by Federal agents in the past few years.

In commenting on Senator Reed's bill, the speaker said: "Reforms are never accomplished by herded groups, but by diligent, aggressive individuals." The Senate bill received the approval of the association.

The possibility of paying taxes by the installment plan was accepted in the form of a resolution by the association, and the Federation of Citizens Associations and the District Commissioners will be asked to investigate the advisability of putting such a plan into operation in the District.

It was pointed out that the tax delinquency for this year has amounted to $4,000,000, and the reduction of incomes in Washington has made it almost impossible for some people to pay their taxes. The installment plan is now in successful operation in various cities.

The association also adopted a resolution asking the discontinuance of the practice of employing day school teachers of the District in the various night schools.

LICENSE REVOCATION BOARD ESTABLISHED BY COMMISSIONERS

Plans Hearings and Review of Evidence Affecting Persons Involved.

The District Commissioners yesterday set up a board for the revocation of licenses to consist of the superintendent of licenses, an assistant corporation counsel, and a police officer to be designated by the Superintendent of the department.

The board will hold hearings and review the evidence in all cases in which recommendations of license revocations are made. It will then make recommendations to the Commissioners, who may revoke or suspend licenses under the act of July 1, 1932.

Commissioners' Power.

"There are at present pending a considerable number of instances in which proceedings should be instituted to revoke licenses and to provide for the hearing of persons affected," William A. Roberts, special assistant corporation counsel, stated in a report on the proposal.

The Commissioners are empowered by the recent act, which in itself requires many additional vocations to take out licenses, to revoke any license issued under the act when "in their judgment such is deemed desirable in the interests of public decency or the protection of lives, limbs, health, comfort and quiet of the citizens of the District of Columbia, or for any other reason they may deem sufficient."

May Not Subpena Witnesses.

While the revocation board may hold hearings, it has no authority to subpena witnesses, in the opinion of Edward W. Thomas, assistant corporation counsel.

"The Commissioners may not delegate judicial or quasijudicial obligations such as are imposed on them by the terms of the license act," he stated in a formal opinion. "They have no authority unequivocally to issue subpenas and force the attendance of witnesses to any hearing held by them, much less to empower a proposed 'committee' so to do."

The revocation board will not control character licenses required of hackers, as a special board is given this task because of the great number of such licenses considered during the year.

$25,000 Bond Is Set For Theft Suspect

Police Trying to Connect Youth With Series of Housebreakings.

LeRoy Dorsey, colored, 21 years old, yesterday was held for a $25,000 bond when he was arraigned in Police Court before Judge Ralph Given on a charge of housebreaking. According to Assistant United States Attorney Michael F. Keogh, police are attempting to connect the youth with three score housebreakings.

Three merchants alleged to have received large quantities of goods from Dorsey were scheduled to have been arraigned yesterday, but their cases were continued until today. They are Ben Seidel, Mitchell Miller, and Bennie Zedd, each of whom was held under bond of $2,000.

Detective E. L. Dalstrom arrested Dorsey when his suspicions were aroused by the boy running through an alley at Sixteenth and S streets northwest. At that time he had an armful of clothing, traced, police said, to Fentiss Gardner, colored, from whom it allegedly had been stolen. Twenty-five suits of clothing, women's dresses and coats were recovered subsequent to Dorsey's arrest.
